Music and Philosophy.
One Cosmic Grain.
Henry Ford Chins Himself.
The Boy Led the Dog.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

GALLUP, N. M., Dec. 2.

THIS IS written high in the mountains of Northern Arizona, a long way from the great Pacific. You always regret leaving that big ocean, for it seems to say as you turn your back:

"Why do you leave? I am the only REAL thing on the earth."

William Packer agrees with that. One of General Motors managers, in charge of the western Chevrolet zone, he drives 400 miles from the Hearst ranch, at San Simeon, to the Barstow railroad station at what he calls "a nice rolling gait," 60 miles an hour, mixing music with philosophy.

Says he, whirling around on one of those strange curves on the Pacific Coast that makes the sun seem to rise out in the ocean:

"Have you read where some highbrow says this earth is only a cosmic grain of sand in an infinite universe? That may be true, boy, but it's SOME grain of sand.

"Look at that ocean. It takes you four and a half days to get to Honolulu, and then you haven't even got a good start for Australia."

THE OLD nursery rhyme, "rings on her fingers, bells on her toes, and she shall have music wherever she goes," comes true in a modern automobile.

You are rolling along, offending no one, when suddenly a radio, concealed somewhere in the "Chevy" begins roaring "Oh, You, Lay, EE, Oh."

Mr. Packer, as in a trance, says:

"They are wonderful. On big trucks, drivers sometimes run twenty hours without rest. They have radios to keep them from going to sleep."

That unseen yodler would make any driver stay awake. There is other music, for Mr. Packer is the only man able to drive 60 miles an hour with one hand and play "Home Sweet Home" on the mouth organ with the other.

This he does, while his stalwart friend on the back seat, Marsh Johnson, formerly of Buffalo, N. Y., now of Oakland, Cal., accompanies him lugubriously. Sometimes, both join in with the unseen radio singers.

Crossing the desert in old covered-wagon days with no radio or mouth organ, and no 60 miles an hour, one-hand driving must have been tame.

IF YOU tire of soft sunshine, winter roses, camellias, gardenias, and January ladies in minute bathing suits, as this writer does some times, try genuine winter in the mountains of Northern Arizona. Grim, solemn pines that disdain to blossom cover every hill.

Snow covers the ground, and the wind that blows over those hills blows away ten of your heavy years. Here it does not surprise you to see a man 75 years old lifting a log so heavy that an Easterner 30 years younger could do nothing about the log but look at it.

MR. HARRY HARTZ, the 1927 A. A. A. champion, on this train, won the 500-mile automobile race at Indianapolis this year, winning for the third time and forever the silver cup more than seven feet high, containing $5,000 worth of coin silver and costing $10,000 at Tiffany's. His Miller Hartz car was driven by Fred Fraeme.

Mr. Hartz talked more about Henry Ford than about his own car. He said:

"Mr. Ford was honorary referee of the race. His son Edsel, who brought his two little boys with him, drove the car that set the pace, starting off the racers."

This writer, when honorary referee several years ago, learned what "setting the pace" is like, sitting next to Walter Chrysler in an open car. It flew around the track, glued to the slanting sides by centrifugal power, like a crazy fly racing around the inside of a saucer. Chrysler said:

"I'm going nice and easy, only eighty, to get the boys started all together, evenly."

Mr. Hartz continued:

"The most interesting thing for the racing men was the competition between Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone for the chinning championship. Henry Ford won easily, 3 to 0. He chinned himself three times. Firestone didn't even get all the way up. But that, he said, was because his product is supposed to cling to the ground.

"When he was referee several years ago, Henry Ford, without telling the boys about it, insured the lives of all the thirty racers for $10,000 each. None of them was killed, luckily. The boys all think a lot of Henry Ford, wherever you go."

Mr. Ford, temporarily laid up in Detroit, may like reading that.

AT WINSLOW, near the border between Arizona and New Mexico, you drop letters for the east-bound mail plane that will soon fly through. Friends in New York will see the letters two days before they see you. That is progress.

The Rodeo Association of America announces that Donald Nesbitt, of Quemado, New Mexico, is the world's champion cowboy. He won 3,450 points in competition this year, and must

NO LENIENCY, CONGRESS LEADERS' EDICT

Washington May Not Reply to Notes, Stimson Says

Strong sentiment against debt delay re-asserted itself at Washington today with Speaker Garner making the flat prediction that Congress will block leniency to Europe.

France has joined her plea to that of Great Britain for postponement of the debt instalment due the United States on December 15. Its second note, requesting delay, is in the hands of President Hoover.

Like Great Britain, France bases the request on the contention that compulsory payment not only will retard eventual economic recovery for the world, but also will undo the progress already made toward that objective.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—A flat prediction that Congress will not act to relieve America's war debtors was made today by Speaker Garner.

At about the same time, Secretary Stimson at the White House told newspapermen "it may not be necessary to reply" to the latest notes from Great Britain and France asking suspension respectively of payments of $95,550,000 and $20,000,000 due in less than two weeks.

The Democratic Vice President-elect told reporters:

"Congress is not going to change the situation.

"I said to Mr. Hoover, when I was down at the White House a week or so ago, that the sooner the European nations realize the United States expects to be paid the better off the whole world will be.

"I still think that.

'NO LENIENCY'

"They (the debtor nations) may continue to talk about it all they please, but Congress won't do anything about it. We have the right over here to do what we think best, just as they have."

Others powerful on Capitol Hill also expressed strong opposition to acceding to Great Britain and France.

The Secretary of State gave the first intimation that the United States might not answer the new debt communications as he hurried back to the State Department after a cabinet meeting at which the war debt situation—and newly received French note in particular—were discussed.

Dry Repeal Checked In House

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—A fight to modify the Garner outright repeal resolution delayed a decision in the House Judiciary Committee, meeting in informal session today.

Chairman Sumners (Dem.), of Texas, announced after a two-hour discussion, the committee would continue its session this afternoon.

Proposals were made in a secret session of the committee by Republicans and Democrats that the resolution be amended to provide constitutional protection for dry states and outlawry of the saloon.

Immediately after the committee met, Representative Tarver (Dem.), of Georgia, an uncompromising dry, protested that the meeting was illegal and raised a point of order against taking a vote.

The committee had before it: The Garner resolution carrying out the Democratic national platform, a proposal by Representative Michener (Rep.), of Michigan, for substitution of the repeal resolution of Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia; a plan by Representative McKeown (Dem.), of Oklahoma, to give Congress power to permit sale of liquor in wet states and the suggestion of Representative Dyer (Rep.), of Missouri, to submit repeal to state legislatures instead of to conventions.

Representative Beck (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican wet bloc, issued a call today for all Republican wets to meet at 9:30 a. m. Monday to consider giving their solid support to the Garner repeal resolution.

SCHLEICHER AT HELM IN GERMANY

'Iron Man' Named Chancellor; Hitler Says: 'We'll Fight'

International News Service.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, Germany's "iron man," today was appointed chancellor of the Reich by President Von Hindenburg.

Von Schleicher accepted the appointment.

Von Hindenburg's decision to charge Von Schleicher with the task of forming a government was made only after several other members of the Von Papen cabinet threatened to resign if their former leader were reappointed to the post.

AIDED BY VON PAPEN

Von Papen himself, it was learned, fully realized the precarious situation the nation faced, and urged appointment of Von Schleicher as the best means of ending the governmental impasse. To Von Papen's persuasion, the octogenarian president reluctantly acceded.

Belief was expressed that Von Schleicher would retain the war ministry portfolio for himself and that the new cabinet would be appointed formally Monday.

Despite the new chancellor's reputation as a strong man, it was pointed out, the new government is intended as a cabinet of "conciliation" which will attempt to avoid all recurrences of civil strife by dropping Von Papen's "reactionary constitutional reforms."

"WE'LL FIGHT"

WEIMAR, Germany, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—"I made a proposal and they turned it down."

This was the cryptic statement of Adolf Hitler, Nazi leader, today when questioned on Von Schleicher's appointment as chancellor.

He added a brief quotation from Martin Luther:

PAYROLL CUT DODGED BY CLARK

Kline Aide's Stand Puts Reductions Up to Council

Public Safety Director James M. Clark made it plain today that the city administration will stand pat on the payroll and that it will put up to Council the responsibility for any substantial slashing of the $25,000,000 budget.

President of Council John S. Herron, flung defiance at city firemen reported to have threatened political reprisals if their payroll was tampered with.

FIGHT TO FINISH

With Mayor Kline, Herron and other councilmen up for re-election next fall, the budget making took on the appearance of the beginning of a finish fight.

At a heated initial budget session of Council Clark agreed to make three cuts totaling $176,377 in the Fire Bureau estimates for 1933, which aggregate $2,819,687.

These cuts were $168,140 in the firemen's pension fund, reducing it from $405,000 to $236,860 through the reduction in pensions from $86 to $51 monthly; $4,401 from the supplies account, and $3,836 from the equipment account.

Asked if this was the best he could do, Clark replied:

"That is the extent of my concession unless you want to interfere with our efficiency."

HERRON ANGERED

Previously President Herron had become impatient with Clark's apparent reluctance to slashing his estimates. He said:

"We have to cut $5,000,000 from this budget and here you are offering these cuts of a few thousand dollars. How long will it take you at this rate?"

Clark flushed as he replied:

"There are only two ways to balance the budget and you know what they are."

Herron also clashed with Fire Chief Richard Smith as to the necessity of eliminating fire en-

Cut City Taxes!

The budget estimate sent to City Council by Mayor Kline would necessitate a 7-mill increase in taxes if adopted.

Following are the opinions of some of Pittsburgh's leaders concerning the tax situation:

Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation:

"The city of Pittsburgh eventually will own most of the property in town if the tax situation is not corrected.

"It is perfectly ridiculous to talk of increasing taxes when the income from real estate is not great enough to carry the present burden. The city would not be able to collect increased taxes. We must get taxes down to a level to conform with the amount of money available. That means big reductions, not small reductions.

"In every city I have visited recently, efforts are being made to reduce municipal expenses so that tax cuts can be made. This makes the situation here particularly remarkable.

"The city must cut taxes because property owners simply do not have the money to pay at the present high rates."

H. M. Reed, president of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company:

"Taxes are too high and must come down. The only way to get them down is simply to put them down. This can be done by doing without municipal activities and departments which are not essential. All of us have suffered from reduced incomes, both in our salaries and in the return on our investments. Under such conditions it is impossible for us to continue to pay for a luxury type of municipal government."

W. U. Follansbee, chairman of the board of the Follansbee Brothers Company:

"When nearly all lines of business are suffering from losses and face the necessity for reducing wages and salaries and in every way are undertaking the greatest possible economies in order to reduce expenses, it seems ridiculous that a municipality should not make similar efforts in order to cut down the burden of taxes."

R. Templeton Smith, vice president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company:

"It is absolutely essential not only not to raise taxes, but to cut them, if Pittsburgh industry is to compete with industrial organizations in other districts where municipal governments have been mindful of the necessity for lowering taxes."

INFURIATED GIBSON ON STAND

Angry Parent Tells of Plea for Marriage Of Daughter

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

NEW CITY, N. Y., Dec. 2.—A father who substituted the law court for the traditional shotgun took the witness stand today in the trial of Sidney Herbert Homewood on a charge of betraying Charlotte Gibson.

Robert Gibson, his eyes small with anguish, told the parental story of his daughter's alleged betrayal before a courtroom crowded with spectators.

In a room behind the court Charlotte waited for the outcome of the trial which can send to jail the man she says is the father of her unborn child. She was weary, after her three days of searching interrogation as to details of her hopeless romance, but still vindictive.

GIRL'S MOTHER ILL

The girl's mother, Gibson said, is in a "precarious" condition and confined to the house. Gibson, a New York attorney and local chicken fancier, has been in court each day, but was not allowed to hear his daughter reveal the course of her love with Homewood.

He also did not hear today's opening witness, Dr. Harold S. Heller, who first informed Miss Gibson last June that she was to become a mother. Details of the "wrong" agitate the father so much he cannot speak of it without angry tears in his eyes.

Gibson told how he had accompanied Charlotte and Homewood to numerous horse shows where Homewood's horses were entered, although Gibson sometimes paid the entry fees.

On one occasion Mrs. Frank Homewood, the defendant's mother, was along, as was Alec George Homewood, his cousin, Gibson said. He made it appear the families were on very good terms, although Charles H. Finkelstein, attorney for Homewood, yes-

FIGHT TO BRING BACK SPINELLI

HARRISBURG, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania will fight to bring Guiseppe Spinelli back from Italy to answer the Volpe murder charge.

The law reached out from Pittsburgh after the three racket barons were shot to death, found Spinelli in Agropoli, near Salerno, and today the state approved the application for his extradition.

Spinelli is specifically charged with the slaying of "Prince Johnny" Volpe. He was indicted for murder and voluntary manslaughter.

The extradition papers were returned to District Attorney Andrew T. Park, of Allegheny County. With supplementary data, they are to be sent to the State Department at Washington and then to Rome.

Eventually they will reach the town where "Big Mike" was arrested recently.

Park, in his application, asks that Francis C. Ferriss, 102 Sampson street, Pittsburgh, be deputized to bring Spinelli back for trial.

Gasoline Tank Fire Scalds 3, Two Die

BALTIMORE, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Two men were scalded to death and a third probably was fatally burned today when they were trapped in a tank for cracking gasoline at the plant of the Continental Oil Company here.

The dead are Arthur L. Warnick, 37, and Joseph Auberger, 33, both boilermakers. Joseph Sampson, 40 is not expected to live. A fourth workman climbed to safety.

HINDMAN, ONCE DRY CHIEF, HELD

Attorney Wayne W. Hindman who was Pittsburgh's first prohibition administrator, was in jail in Clarion, Pa., today after having been arrested in Pittsburgh last night on a warrant charging embezzlement.

Hindman, who is also a former state senator, is accused of embezzling approximately $300 from a Clarion County farmer, Arthur McKee, according to Police Chief H. L. Carson, of Clarion.

The former dry czar was arrested in the Allegheny General Hospital where he had been a patient three weeks suffering from infection of the teeth. City Detectives Harry McKelvey and John McCollough arrested him for Clarion police.

Hindman directed the enforcement of prohibition in Pittsburgh for almost a year in 1920 and 1921. For a while he also had charge of state enforcement.

In 1927, Judge F. P. Schoonmaker removed him as receiver for the Hay-Walker Brick Company after creditors had complained of not receiving payments. He was one of the lawyers who represented the defense of John A. Bell, the Carnegie banker.

Death of Son Ends Gregg 'Victory' Fete

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 2.—Death prevented former Congressman Curtis H. Gregg from presiding as toastmaster at the victory dinner of 500 leading Democrats of a half dozen counties in the Penn-Albert Hotel last night. He had just started his duties when he was summoned to the bedside of his son, George G. Gregg, ill of a blood clot on the lung. The son died a short time after his father arrived.

'Finney' Dies, 42 Years Newsie at Postoffice

Leaders of Politics Numbered Among Customers

The little figure of "Finney" is missing today from the news stand in front of the postoffice; strange hands make change, fold and arrange the papers from here and other cities of the world; strange voices repeat the name of the papers. The corner, without Finney and his ever-present stogie, is strangely vacant.

Mr. Finn

For Pittsburgh's best-known newsie these 42 years dropped the last stogie from his hand, smiled his whimsical knowing smile and shook off the last breath from his fragile body. He died early this morning at his home.

In the death notices his name appears as John J. Finn, 51, of 1462 Dormont avenue, Dormont, but for more than two score years judges, lawyers, political powers and modest workers—the men and women of courts, politics and

The Clemencia, out of Halifax, was in a sinking condition and was abandoned. The number of sailors rescued was not revealed.

Lone Bandit Robs Grant Street Cafe

He is believed to have been the same man who stuck up the Thomas McAn shoe store at 411 Smithfield street yesterday afternoon.

Dug 3,000 Graves, Dies as Auto Upsets

CHARLEROI, Pa., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—John Harrington, 57, who, as an employe of the Monongahela Cemetery, had dug graves for more than 3,000 people in 25 years, was killed last night when a car overturned on Ginger Hill.

Perry State Bank, Pittsburgh, 15 per cent, December 20. Total payment will be $81,538 to 4,065 accounts. This is the third payment, previous payments totaling to 45 per cent.

The electric wires burst into flames, which were extinguished by workmen. The incident was seen by members who returned to the chamber.

CLARK STANDS PAT ON PAYROLL; CUTS UP TO COUNCIL

HERRON SCORES SAFETY HEAD FOR STAND

Smith declared insurance rates would be increased if any engine houses were dispensed with. Herron retorted:

"We cannot and will not have the tax rate so high that it takes away the life savings of men and women who have been laying up for old age."

TOLD TO COME BACK

Herron wound up with this admonition to Clark and Smith:

"You go back and have a talk with your men. Take some more slack out of this budget."

Referring apparently to reported reprisal threats by firemen, Herron declared:

"We made this budget and we are going to make the next budget."

Councilman Harry A. Little asked Clark and Smith:

"Why don't you cut this budget? These cuts are not enough."

Herron refused to give safety department officials any credit for the pension fund cut. It was brought out that the budget has set up the old rate, instead of the proposed reduced rate now being contested in the courts.

When the police bureau estimates totaling $3,205,104 were taken up, Clark said he believed an item of $7,300 for carfare might be eliminated, but that this was required by ordinance.

One of the councilmen interjected:

RADIO CARS FAVORED

Clark stated he had agreed to eliminate some items, but he would ask Council to add $36,000 for replacement of radio cars.

Herron responded:

"I feel kindly toward that gestion. I believe more radio will lead to elimination of ny policemen."

letter from J. W. Bamford, man of the taxation committ- Building Owners and Man- Association, hinting at a tax- rs' strike, was entered on the ds and brought this comment President Herron:

"I think it best to have our work judged after it is completed. I feel sure there is a united group in Council trying to bring this budget within the city income."

H. S. Breitenstein, Mayor's auditor, and J. Roland Brady, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, were among those present when the budget session opened.

FIGURES DISPUTED

The first few minutes was taken up in an argument between President Herron and Councilman Robert Garland over whether Pittsburgh or Baltimore spent the most money. A telegram from Baltimore stated that city spent $45,000,000, but it was uncertain whether that figure included school expenses.

Directors of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce are opposing the Kline budget, and taxpayers are to hold a public protest meeting at 4 p. m. today in the Chamber rooms to demand a radical cut in municipal estimates for 1933.

In the preparation of the budget, according to the Chamber of Commerce resolution, no attempt has been made to consider the desperate condition of the taxpayers.

REDUCTION EXPECTED

At the same time, the Chamber of Commerce looks confidently to City Council to reduce the expenses of city government. The resolution states:

"Such reduction should include the decrease of salaries to a point consistent with present conditions and comparable to existing lower living costs."

The Homewood Building and Loan Association has passed a resolution demanding a reduction of 25 per cent in City, County and School taxes. If this relief is not afforded, it is declared that many homes will be lost, hardship placed on many worthy taxpayers and their families, and a reduced amount of tax money made available in the end for expenditures.

MAYOR KLINE BOWS TO THE WILL OF PUBLIC DEMAND-

GOV. ROOSEVELT CUTS VACATION

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Dec. 2.—(INS.)—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt will cut short his vacation here and leave for Albany, N. Y., Tuesday, in order to be at the Capitol for the opening of the special session of the Legislature, on December 9.

Acting Gov. Herbert H. Lehman called the New York Legislature into special session to aid New York City in its present financial plight by repealing laws providing for mandatory salary increases.

The President-elect made the announcement of his decision to leave several days ahead of schedule while swimming in the patients' pool at the Warm Springs Foundation.

PHILA. SLASHES CITY SALARIES

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Still awaiting their belated November 15 pay, 23,000 city-county employes today watched with growing interest the efforts of City Council to effect some $20,000,000 in economies to avoid a deficit and balance the 1933 budget.

Before a cheering crowd that filled the galleries, the councilmen last night announced municipal salary cuts ranging from 11 to 27 per cent, decided that policemen, firemen and park guards will have to get along next year with this year's uniforms at a saving of $300,000, and decreed a cut of $760,000 in the street lighting appropriation.

It was decided also to eliminate private city-paid telephones in the homes of officials, a saving of $12,000, and to seek permission for the use of a special transit fund of $4,318,000.

Permanent Pay Cuts Urged for Officials

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The economy committee of the Ohio Senate today decided to recommend that salary cuts for all state, county elective and appointive officials be made permanent.

A special legislative session cut salaries five per cent on the first $1,000; 10 per cent on the next $1,000, with graduated cuts of two and a half per cent on each additional $1,000 until a maximum of 20 per cent was reached.

Council Padlocks 'Phone Booth to Cut Expenses

Dravosburg councilmen today were out to cut municipal expenditure as a padlock adorned the telephone used by the police and fire department.

From now on, Police Chief Charles Livingston must be consulted before any outgoing calls are made. Council entrusted the lone key to his keeping. Incoming calls will not be hampered by the restriction.

WARNS OF NEW TAX MEASURES

Development of every means of opposition by business interests will be necessary to block new state measures of taxation, Robert Haight, legislative bureau manager, Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce, warned the local chamber in an address yesterday.

Haight said the state faces a crisis in its fiscal policy. Charging few legislators favor curtailment of state spending, he said:

"The question of patronage is more dominant in the mind of the legislator than that of retrenchment."

Warning was sounded to fight possible re-enactment of the present sales tax, which automatically is repealed February 28. Haight expressed fear the act might become a permanent feature of state revenue. He explained:

"The alternative to excessive taxation is to reduce the overhead cost of government and live within present revenues. There are many boards and commissions that might be eliminated without any great harm being done and thus considerable overhead saved."

CHILDREN CAUSE FATAL WRECK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Spikes placed on the rails by children are blamed in a Safety Bureau report for a passenger train wreck August 19 on the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad at Cleveland, in which one person was killed and six were injured.

Director Borland, of the bureau, said there had been five instances of spikes, stones and tie plates found on tracks of the railroad in the vicinity of Cleveland since January 20. In three instances children were arrested and placed on probation. A 13-year-old boy was arrested in connection with the fatal accident and committed to an institution at Hudson, O.

Borland said the commission's inspector found many spikes, bolts and nuts lying along the track.

Economy Leaguers Oppose Tax Strike

Caution against a "taxpayer's strike" was urged in a resolution adopted today by the executive committee of the Western Pennsylvania Branch, National Economy League. The committee stated such a move would damage the city's credit indefinitely. It recommended "orderly and scientific" methods to obtain tax cuts.

PROF. EINSTEIN DEFENDS HIS PACIFISM

Denies Communism Charge Brought By U. S. Women

POTSDAM, Germany, Dec. 2.—For the space of a few minutes today Prof. Albert Einstein put down his paper and his sharply-pointed pencil, deferred consideration of of common mortals, and "proudly defended" his cherished cause of pacifism.

It was in answer to the charges made against him by the Women's Patriotic Organization in Washington, which demanded his exclusion from the United States as a Communist.

The wizard of relatively did not want to talk. But "Mama" Einstein thought the attack called for an answer, and he consented. Seated at a table in his simple study, he said:

DENIES COMMUNISM

Disposing of the charge of Communism, he said:

"I belong to no political party.

"Publicly, I am a scientist, but as a private citizen I claim the right to feel and believe and fight for the interests of culture and of justice.

"I have always considered it my duty to intervene when justice is at stake, even though I am bitterly attacked for it.

"I feel honored because I have always had a certain kind of enemies.

"I have always fought war—an attitude which the majority of sound political opinion in the United States appreciates.

"Proudly I rise to defend so-called 'war resisters,' whom I regard as greater heroes than those who allow themselves to be sacrificed upon the altar of misconceived patriotism."

WIFE CENSORS MAIL

During the interview, a postman walked into the cottage and plumped a heap of letters down in front of Einstein. He left opening of letters to his wife. She remarked:

"I never let my husband see newspaper clippings about his own person, but I do let him read about his scientific accomplishments."

The only other visitor during the talk was a sleek black, gray and yellow cat, which slipped in and rubbed its head against the scientist's legs. He observed:

ROW AT TUITION 'SALE' HEARING

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Henry S. Fitch, accused as a peddler of scholarships to state-aided colleges, was held in an additional $1,000 bail by Magistrate John F. Cozens today on charges of false pretense and fraudulent conversion. Fitch, said to be suffering from a nervous breakdown, was not present at the hearing.

A group of new complaints caused a demonstration at the hearing as it was charged Fitch had fleeced the parents of at least 75 other students.

Fitch is charged specifically with accepting $450 from David Brand, Temple University student, for a scholarship which the latter said he did not receive.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD . . . "I WISH MY PICTURES BETTER"

TALLULAH QUITS HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Her film career admittedly disappointing to herself, Tallulah Bankhead, Alabama actress, who first gained fame on the London stage, has said farewell to Hollywood with "no great regrets." As she left for New York, she said:

"I wish my pictures had been better. None of the parts really suited me or my particular personality or the type of talent I am presumed to possess. But that's over now and there was none I feel could be held to blame for it."

The actress denied reports she had signed a new contract with any film company. Eventually she expects to come back to Hollywood, she said, but her immediate plans depend upon developments after she arrives in New York.

AMELIA LEAVES BY TRAIN

Having lectured in Wilkinsburg High School last night for the benefit of crippled children and welfare work, Amelia Earhart, famous woman flier, had gone to Detroit today to continue her speaking tour.

She traveled by train. Her plane is in the workshop in New York for radio installment.

Speaking under the auspices of the Wilkinsburg Rotary Club, she described her trans-Atlantic solo flight. She was neither frightened nor lonely, she said, because of her concentration on the business of flying.

Discussing her landing yesterday in Butler, instead of here, Miss Earhart complimented her pilot, Miss Helen Richey, McKeesport, saying it would have been silly to attempt landing here in a plane unequipped with blind flying instruments in the prevailing atmospheric conditions.

MINISTERS ASK DAY OF PRAYER FOR DRY LAW

Urge Churches Set Sunday for Special Services

A day of prayer has been asked in all churches of the Pittsburgh Ministerial Union in an endeavor to prevent changes in the national prohibition law. Five local groups in a joint letter to pastors request these prayer services be held Sunday. They also urge written protests be sent to congressional representatives.

The letter is signed by the Rev. Dr. James M. McQuilkin, temperance committee chairman, Union Ministerial Association; Mrs. Elizabeth J. Gibson, president of Allegheny County W. C. T. U.; the Rev. Dr. P. W. Snyder, president, Council of Churches; Attorney A. T. Morgan, chairman, commission on social service, and F. S. Cousley, president, Allegheny County Sabbath School Association.

Citing a first request "to make our National Congress, soon to assemble, and prohibition a matter of earnest prayer," the letter continues:

"Second, that you ask your congregation to write or wire your United States senator and congressman from your district, protesting against any legislation in the coming session that will legalize beer and light wine, or otherwise weaken our national prohibition law.

"Immediate, determined, concerted, fearless, prayerful action on the part of the church and affiliated organizations is imperative, if the temperance heritage of our nation is to be maintained."

'FINNEY' DEAD; VET NEWSIE

sports—and the rest of the world that passed his corner—knew him as "Finney."

Had he only sold news, he might have passed unnoticed. But he related it as well. Paradoxically he was a follower of the events in city and national life, and a student of economics.

One of the quickest newsboys to sight a customer or fold a paper, "Finney" was also a lover of books and had collected a fine library in his Dormont home. He liked to attend literary and travel lectures at Carnegie Music Hall, and to browse in the library.

He was also a devotee of opera, which he frequented at every opportunity, and a student of political science.

"Finney" had saved his money, and had made a number of real estate investments in Dormont.

He will be remembered by Pittsburghers as he stood before the Postoffice, stogie clamped in his mouth, ever ready with a cheery word of greeting or, if need be, of sympathy, for everyone.

He was a member of Pittsburgh Lodge No. 11, B. P. O. Elks, and No. 76, F. O. Eagles. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Mary Kinsella Finn, and a sister, Mrs. Thomas McGall.

Funeral services will be held in St. Bernard's Church, Mt. Lebanon, Monday morning.

A gold mine has been found near Mount Ararat, at Kagizman, and Turkey, which owns that territory, expects to take out three hundred million dollars in gold.

That will interest many Americans that haven't thought about Mount Ararat since Sunday school days, when they believed the ark landed on a sharp mountain peak, all the animals being lowered by rope.

THIS WOULD interest angels. Chicago has a "conveniences" shop, operated for charity, prepared to do almost anything. A lady telephoned for a boy to exercise her dog on a rainy night, and the boy who came, eager to earn a little money, was so small, so young, that the owner of the dog felt bound to walk with him, lest he be run over. She walked both boy and dog.

This is an interesting civilization. If you hired a pup to walk a boy on a rainy night the "cruelty society" would lock you up.

Bonelli's Metropolitan Debut 'Stops Show'

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—They stopped the show at Richard Bonelli's Metropolitan debut last night.

In the "golden horseshoe" Park Avenue stood up and cheered—with as much gusto as the Ghetto in the galleries.

The opera was "La Traviata"—founded on the love epic of Camille and Armand Duval.

The second act of this melodious Verdi work offered Bonelli the big moment for his baritone role. As Bonelli, in the role of Germont, burst into his appealing aria, whispers of admiration sped over the audience, punctuated by nodding heads.

Then the climax: Traviata was in sobs—the audience in ecstasy. It paid no heed to the custom of awaiting curtain calls before bestowing approval.

Five times Bonelli was shoved from the wings. The orchestra laid aside its instruments, the conductor his baton. All joined in the ovation.

Rosa Ponselle, as Traviata, was forced to drag Bonelli out for the last two bows. In his excitement, he backed into a table, bowling it across the floor.

A silver-caped grande dame in a box touched off the rounds of plaudits. She cried:

"Bravo, Bonelli."

It was a distinct Italian air. But Bonelli, who once studied engineering at Syracuse University, was born Richard Bunn, in Port Byron, N. Y.

190 STUDENTS INVOLVED IN VICE RING

Murder Indictment To Be Sought in Houston Expose

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Declaring "shocking" conditions of vice among boys and girls of high school age had been uncovered in Houston, Frank Williford, assistant district attorney, said the grand judy today would inquire into illegal operations reported to have been performed on at least four girl students of one high school.

Indictments will be returned ranging from misdemeanor charges to one of murder resulting from an alleged criminal operation, he predicted.

Kenneth Haygood, 19, was being sought by police as the alleged keeper of a disorderly house frequented by high school boys and girls. Williford said:

"Matters already investigated by the grand jury and appearing to give ground for indictments involve 190 school children."

Managing editors of the three Houston newspapers were called before the grand jury and requested to help in reawakening parents to their responsibilities. Ministers of all faiths also will be asked to co-operate.

E. E. Oberhaltzer, superintendent of schools, blamed the "wide-open attitude in the home," adding:

"The dad wants to carry on and the children do, too.

"The schools are the direct reflectors of the home attitude and conditions. The children in school are just as good as their homes are."

Oberhaltzer denied there had been any drinking or immorality in the schools.

The eastern high pressure developed over the southeastern states, while the western low pressure centers are moving northward toward the lakes. There is a center of low pressure north of Lake Superior, another over Kansas and another over British Columbia, with centers of high pressure over the plateau section and over Saskatchewan. This distribution of pressure is producing mild weather over most of the country. The rising pressure over the plains states caused a drop in temperature over that section to freezing or slightly below, while the high in the Southeast is responsible for mild weather over the Ohio Valley states. Father of Society Girl Denounces Horseman

TELLS OF FAMILY LIFE

The Gibson family lived in a Victorian atmosphere untouched by the "new freedom" of the modern world, the father showed. Through his account of his daughter's life filtered the picture of a girl who might have come out of an early New England novel, a girl who went on skating parties with large crowds of men and women, and had her friends over for "refreshments on the lawn." The father did not want her "encouraged" to get an automobile either, but Homewood finally sold her one himself.

It was in an automobile the alleged betrayal took place.

Chaperonage was part of the Gibson credo, however. Gibson said:

"She did not go to the movies much; hardly at all, until she went with the defendant—and then only to parties consisting of Homewood and some other members of his family."

Gibson said on June 27 he received a telephone call from Alec Homewood. This was the day he learned his daughter had "got into trouble." When he spoke to Charlotte about it, she left the house in her automobile and was gone three hours. Her father called the Homewood house and she was there. The district attorney asked:

"When did you see the defendant next?"

AGREED TO MARRY

"Next morning about 9 o'clock. He came into the living room and I told him he had wronged my daughter. The defendant admitted it, but agreed to marry her."

But the next day, which was to have been the wedding day, Gibson said, Homewood 'phoned and said he was having a "terrible family quarrel," and could not come at the appointed hour. He did not show up until the following day, when he asked to see Charlotte alone. He kept putting the matter off from day to day, Gibson related, until finally he said he could not keep his promise at all.

OFFERED TO PAY COSTS

Gibson said he told Homewood that the marriage would cost him nothing, not even the marriage license fee, for the father was willing to stand all costs.

It was as late as July 1 that Homewood proposed to marry the girl, take her away for two weeks and then return her to her father. Gibson refused this proposition. Homewood is said to have cried:

"You can't make me marry her. You can only make me support the child."

Then Gibson told him he had consulted his lawyer and gave Homewood 24 hours to do "the right thing." Gibson concluded:

"He went out. I called to him: 'You'd better take the line of least resistance before this results in such tragedies as suicide, madness or even murder.' He paid no attention."

Here Caesar Barra, of defense counsel, moved for a mistrial on the grounds this was prejudicial, but the motion was denied.

WIFE'S LOYALTY TOLD AT TRIAL FOR DIVORCE

Sheltered Girl Named As Co-respondent In Her Home

A wife's loyalty to her husband figured today in the divorce suit of Mrs. Florence G. Cornell, of 279 Ashland avenue, against Elliott C. Cornell, in which she named a former Pitt co-ed.

Her husband, Mrs. Cornell said, brought the girl, an expectant mother, to their home and kept her there all night. The girl was identified only as "Mildred," a Pitt student from Youngstown, who roomed in the home of Mrs. A. A. Cornell, Cornell's mother, in North Craig street.

Cornell did not contest the suit. His present whereabouts are not known to his wife, she said.

CALM ON STAND

Speaking in a low voice, Mrs. Cornell told of her husband's declared unfaithfulness. The intense strain of her testimony showed only in an occasional trembling of her lips.

She told the court how Cornell finally confirmed rumors he was keeping company with another girl—rumors she failed at first to believe.

First indication of his infatuation, she said, was when he stayed away from home over week-ends, and at other times returned late at night. Finally, she avowed:

"He gave me my choice of spending Sunday afternoon or night with him. The rest of the day he said he'd spend with Mildred."

Mrs. Cornell told the court how affairs came to a crisis one day last June. It was then her husband brought Mildred home with him. She recalled telling him:

"Well, I guess I better see her now."

TALKS WITH GIRL

But she testified Cornell advised against it:

"No, you better wait until morning—she's hysterical."

Mrs. Cornell told the court:

"I went downstairs and sat beside her. I saw she was crying. She admitted to me that she expected to become a mother.

"She was so hysterical, my husband didn't know where to take her and she stayed in my home all night."

Both Mildred and Cornell left the home the next morning, according to testimony, and have not been seen since.

Cornell's mother, weeping as she took the stand, testified that Mildred roomed in her home and that:

"I told her to go because I knew she wasn't doing right. I asked her to break with my son.'

The Cornells married on September 1, 1917. Mrs. Cornell told the court that she has four children, the oldest a girl of 11.

ARREST FORMER FOLLIES GIRL

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Patricia Salmon, who newspaper sports writers here said advanced from a singing role in a tent show at Shelby, Mont., to Ziegfeld's Follies, was arrested yesterday by federal immigration inspectors for investigation concerning her entry into the United States from Canada.

Miss Salmon, the sports writers said, gained note as a singer when she appeared in a show in Shelby prior to the Dempsey-Gibbons fight, the praises of writers assembled to report the fight winning her a place in the Follies.

She was taken into custody after singing before a Shriners' luncheon club. Inspector Robert H. Voss, who made the arrest, said her entry into the United States through Portal, N. D., was questioned. She was released on $500 bond.

PEGGY JOYCE'S $50,000 LINKED WITH CRASH

Bank, Actress Suing Each Other Over Stock Losses

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Sometime, at a period more than three years ago, Peggy Hopkins Joyce—whose maiden name, it appears, was Marguerite Upton—had $50,000 worth of securities.

Now the securities are gone, and the Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company, which held them as collateral on a $32,500 loan, wants $2,500 more, which it says is still due on her note.

The plaintiff today filed in City Court a bill of particulars, asking, among other things, just when the stock market crash set in.

Miss Joyce, who is also suing the bank for $2,500, stated in her answer that she gave the bank $50,000 worth of securities as collateral when she borrowed the $32,500.

After the crash, she said, the bank demanded payment, but agreed to sell enough of her securities to pay the note in full. It is her claim that, if the sale had been made promptly, there would have been enough money to pay the note and she would have had $2,500 besides. That's why she has filed a counter-suit for $2,500.

Answering her suit, the bank denies there ever was any agreement to sell her collateral, and that, when she was pressed for payment, Miss Joyce pleaded for indulgence.

In its bill of particulars the bank formally asks "the time when it is claimed the alleged panic occurred in the stock market."

CHILD SEES MAN KILL WIFE, SELF

Pistol bullets terminated the broken romance of Conley Mumpower, 52, and his wife, Mary, 50. The little girl, between sobs, told police:

"I got out of bed and went to the kitchen to wash my hands and face.

"Grampa was sitting down in the kitchen on a chair.

"I heard him tell Gramma he had been following her all around the city. She was in the pantry getting something for breakfast.

"All of a sudden Grampa jumped up. He had a gun in his hand. Hhe shot Gramma in the back, two times.

"Then he shot himself in the head and fell down by Gramma."

Radio Stylist Charges Husband Slapped Her

MRS. RUTH ATLAS . . . HER TESTIMONY: "HE SLAPPED ME"

'Ruth Millstone' Relates 'Cruelty' To Judge

Mrs. Ruth Atlas, 6421 Bartlett street, former radio style commentator, testified her husband slapped her and they quarreled over money matters, at the hearing of her divorce suit against Noah Atlas, in court yesterday.

She told Judge James H. Gray her husband wanted her to advance $500 with which to bring his brother from Europe to this country. Her husband is at present in Palestine, she testified.

The couple was married February 20, 1930, the testimony disclosed. The wife charges cruelty. She was formerly heard over radio stations WJAS and KDKA as "Ruth Millstone."

HINT HE'LL QUIT AMUSES FORD

DETROIT, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Henry Ford has no intention of withdrawing from personal direction of his industrial empire.

The 69-year-old automobile magnate, recovering from the major operation he underwent last Saturday, when told of rumors that he would retire, said:

"The only way to retire is to retire every night and get up early the next morning ready to work again."

Mr. Ford said he was going to "show them something really new" in automobiles.

Business, said Mr. Ford, can increase its present pace by "producing cheaper things." He said:

"Everybody who expects to do much next year will have to begin now. We're going to have a better standard of living than ever."

HOOVER SHUNS WOMEN'S PLEA

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—A group of nine women, among them several social registerites, today were refused an audience with President Hoover when they called at the White House as members of what they termed "the women's independent committee of the constitutional rights of the 'hunger' marchers."

Led by Mrs. William B. Osgood Field, Jr., of New York, they filed into the office of Theodore Joslin, one of Mr. Hoover's secretaries, and were told by him that it would be impossible for them to present their petition to the President in person.

Among those requesting the appointment were Mrs. Corliss Lamont, daughter-in-law of Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Mrs. Lincoln Steffens, wife of the journalist; Mrs. Polly Chase Boyden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, of Chicago; Miss Margaret Hatfield, writer, and Carol Weiss King, an attorney.

Her strength depleted by her recent activities in Hollywood and on the stage, Miss Barrymore was ordered to bed after developing a fever. She has been playing the leading role in "Encore."

U. S. ARRESTS SCORE IN RAID ON 'REDS'

'Army' Denounces City After Being Well Fed, Helped on Way

Several hundred "hunger marchers" moved out of Pittsburgh Washington-bound today after enjoying the comforts the city provided for their overnight stay.

At Uniontown, federal officers raided an alleged Communist headquarters, where preparations were being made to welcome the marchers, and arrested a score of persons. James Evans, 26, alleged Communist leader chosen to address the "hunger marchers" at a mass meeting late today, and Charles Vuich, 21, were held for deportation proceedings, the authorities said.

The caravan passed through Homestead, Munhall, Duquesne and other Monongahela Valley towns, leaving stragglers as several vehicles broke down. The "marchers" planned to spend the night in Uniontown.

PARADE BALKED

An attempt was made to parade afoot into McKeesport, but the marchers were hustled back into their machines by the police, and they continued, cheering and singing.

A 15-minute stop was made at Ninth and Water streets, McKeesport, while members of the United Front Committees of McKeesport and Glassport spoke. A permit for the street meeting was granted by Mayor George H. Lysle. The McKeesport delegation announced a telegram was being sent to President Hoover demanding "no terror against the hunger march and the full right to petition Congress and demonstrate for the demands we unanimously approve."

The departure from Pittsburgh was orderly. Police escorted them across the Point Bridge and along Carson street to Hays. Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey said a leader of the group named Morton thanked him, and said they would "stop on the way back for gas."

TAKE CITY SUPPLIES

More than 500 men and wom breakfasted at Bohemian H North Side, this morning, loa trucks and automobiles with ga line and surplus food paid for the city, and set out again for capital. There they will atte to tell Congress what they th the country needs, including dole and unemployment ins ance.

Speakers told the visitors th opinions of what Pittsburgh and Allegheny County needs at mass meetings last night. They said Council had provided funds for caring for them "reluctantly." The Kline budget was assailed, and economy recommendations included a salary of $2,500 for Mayor Charles H. Kline, and "even that probably would be too much."

WELL FED HERE

They found little to complain about the stew and bread provided in Bohemian Hall, however, and six were given hospital treatment. Two, who attaches at the Allegheny General Hospital said suffered from pneumonia, were detained. They were Frank Czopski, of Detroit, and Nick Zantzeer, of Kalamazoo, Mich. The others were treated for minor ailments.

The visitors were quartered for the night at the International Socialist Lyceum, 805 James street; Bohemian Hall, and halls at 1545 Ohio street and 1225 Voskamp street.

Marathon Dancers May Face Maladies

The seven "successful" marathon dancers, still on their feet at Motor Square Garden when police stopped the 6-month-old grind Wednesday night, face as possible eventualities apoplexy or dementia, according to Dr. G. E. Weigand, who conducted an investigation of sleep at Mellon Institute.

Both are possible to one who undergoes long and severe physical strain, Dr. Weigand said.

FRANCE CITES HOOVER DEBT STUDY PLEA

PARIS, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The second French note requesting postponement of the war debt payment due the United States in December noted with satisfaction today that President Hoover was disposed to recommend to Congress a new examination of the debt question as a whole.

The French text of the note, which had previously been sent to Washington, was made public shortly after noon today and renewed the request for suspension of the $20,000,000 in interest.

The note declares:

"The French government desires to emphasize that it never has thought of contesting the juridical validity of the various agreements which are the basis of the war debts."

LAUSANNE PACT

But referring to the agreement reached at Lausanne, the French government wrote that it was in the mind of Europe to be part of a general rearrangement of governmental payments.

The note said:

"It would be grave indeed if the agreement obtained with such difficulty at Lausanne should have to be reconsidered.

"Would it not be equitable if, in the same spirit of international solidarity and in consolidating the results already achieved, the American government would accept in its turn postponement of the December interest?"

President Hoover's moratorium was inspired by a desire to re-establish world prosperity, says the note, but the economic depression has been greatly aggravated since 1931. The note declared:

"Everywhere misery and unemployment are increasing. This depression can only get worse if intergovernmental debts must be paid before negotiations can be undertaken to revise them."

EXPERTS' REPORT

The note referred to a report by economic experts who considered this problem recently at Basel, condemning unanimously as pernicious to the restoration of world economics the transfers of funds necessitated in the war debt payments without some counterpart.

Despite a budgetary deficit of nearly half a billion dollars, it says, France voluntarily abandoned an annual income from reparations of approximately $85,000,000. She accepted this heavy sacrifice because she was convinced that the existing agreements could not be observed without risking profound financial and economic disturbances.

Unless there is a radical shift in favorable American commercial balance with Europe, says the note, debt payments now would necessitate increasingly ruinous operations by the debtor nations in the credit and exchange markets.

As for the recommendations of the American President for a re-examination of the debt situation, which was contained in his original reply to the French request for postponement, the communication said that from the French viewpoint this implied the President believed such a study seemed necessary.

DAVIS CONFERS ON ARMS

GENEVA, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Norman H. Davis, American arms expert, and Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, conferred today in an attempt to bring order out of Europe's armament impasse.

International News Service learned the American delegation hopes the conference will prove the first step toward attainment of a modest but concrete arms limitation pact.

It was learned the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany have already reached a partial agreement on the proposed pact, which Davis wished to make final when the miniature five-power conferences begin Monday after Baron von Neurath, of Germany, arrives.

The proposed limitation agreement, it was learned, would sidestep the French security and German equality demands as requiring too protracted negotiations.

U. S. Spurns Appeals For Debt Delay

White House, he told newspapermen over his shoulder:

"It may not be necessary to reply."

While he did not elaborate, the statement was understood to mean the government feels its position has been clearly stated in its replies to the original requests and that the latest communications present no new proposals requiring answer.

In answering the first British and French notes as well as those from other debtors, President Hoover stated that no reasons had been advanced to justify suspending the December 15 payments.

REED SUMMONED

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, who was consulted extensively by the President during his moratorium negotiations, was called into the meeting with Secretary Stimson.

The Secretary of State went to the White House more than half an hour before the start of the President's semi-weekly cabinet meeting and smilingly told newspapermen, in response to inquiry, that he bore the French note in the fat brief case he carried.

The President immediately began to familiarize himself with the note of the Paris government, which expressed satisfaction that he favored some review of the debt field.

Coupled with this statement of satisfaction, however, the French note reiterated the request for a moratorium on the approximately $20,000,000 due the United States on December 15.

State Department aides worked much of the night in its translation.

Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic leader, said:

"The British note amounts to this: Let us have some more discussion leading toward a further reduction and extension of payments.

"It is impossible. Only Congress can grant such an extension, and Congress won't do it. There isn't a member who isn't pledged to his constituents against a further reduction.

"There is nothing for Europe to do but pay or default, and I think everyone will pay."

Other comment was:

Representative McFadden, of Pennsylvania, ranking Republican on the House Banking Committee:

"There is nothing in the note that was not known heretofore. The note does not change the situation.'

Representative Bankhead, of Alabama, one of the House Democratic leaders:

"I am not in favor of a suspension of the December 15 payments.'

Senators Smoot, of Utah, Republican chairman, and Harrison, of Mississippi, ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, were warmly critical of the British statement that increased tariffs and restrictions against American goods would be necessary if payments were resumed.

Senator Harrison said the British note "is the plea of a special pleader that presents every conceivable possibility of disaster and naturally exaggerates those possibilities."

BRITAIN'S NOTE

Great Britain's new appeal for war debt relief—an appeal delineating dire consequences to world recovery if refused again—was studied thoughtfully by the American government before receipt of the French note.

The communication said:

"Any resumption of these payments is bound to accentuate the gravity of the present crisis and to compromise fatally all efforts to counteract it."

There was included the statement that, if the obligations must be met, the Anglo-American trade balance must be strengthened in Great Britain's favor. The note said:

"In the present circumstances, this could only be done by adopting measures which would further restrict purchases of American goods.

"To the extent, therefore, that payments were resumed to the United States Treasury a definite and unfavorable reaction must follow to the United States producer."

GIST OF BRITISH PLEA FOR DELAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The gist of the British note on war debts as revealed here today:

Debts discussion "might bear fruitful issue for revival of world prosperity."

"Prospects of success would be materially improved by the postponement of the December installment."

To the extent that payments are resumed, "a definite and unfavorable reaction must follow to the United States (farm) producer."

'FATAL RESULTS'

Without readjustments, the Lausanne agreement (slashing German reparations) could not be ratified; the question of reparations would remain unsettled; and fatal results might well be found."

Remedial action is necessary, not only on British debt but also on "the whole system of intergovernmental obligations with which it is related."

Despite the American position to contrary, there is in fact a connection between reparation and war debts, "and this was by implication admitted by the United States government when they proposed a moratorium."

The note stated:

"While the British share of total indebtedness to the United States is only 40 per cent of the total debt payments made to the United States 80 per cent has come from Great Britain."

"Discharge of all international debts must in the long run take the form of a transfer of goods or services. The debt represents today in terms of goods not less than twice the amount which was borrowed."

"The effect of the American tariff has been to restrict rather than facilitate the import of manufactured goods which the United Kingdom produces. If war debt payments had to be resumed, it is apparent that the exchange position of this country would need to be strengthened by a reduction of the very heavy adverse balance of the visible trade of the United Kingdom and the United States."

IRISH ATTACK BRITISH NOTE

DUBLIN, I. F. S., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Great Britain's note to the United States again urging suspension of the next installment of war debts was the subject of a bitter editorial in today's Irish Press, a government organ. The paper said:

"Britain acknowledges the debt and agrees, if driven to it, to pay in gold, which is the commodity it will most hurt the United States to receive, but she holds half a dozen pistols to America's head while calling on her to 'collect if you dare.' After which Britain condescendingly agrees to discuss with the American government how best the payments may be postponed."

The principles underlying the British note are diametrically opposite to those Britain is applying in regard to the Free State, the newspaper continues.

JAP MASSACRE OF CHINESE RELATED

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service.

FUSHUN, Manchuria, Dec. 2.—I returned to Fushun today from the scene of a massacre after trodding the damp earth where 2,700 Chinese men, women and children were put to death by Japanese machine gunners on suspicion of harboring Chinese soldiers in their homes.

The wholesale killings had been disclosed in a communique issued by Chinese authorities at Shanghai.

They were flatly denied by Japan.

VISITS RUINED VILLAGES

On orders from International News Service headquarters, I came to Fushun from Mukden and embarked upon a tour of what were once the villages of Chunchinpu and adjacent communities all lying within a 50-mile radius southeast of this city.

What I saw with my own eyes and heard from the lips of refugees and inhabitants leave no possibility of doubt.

The unbelievable massacre took place.

The evidence which I found cannot be disputed.

The charred remains of the three villages put to the torch when their residents had been slain thrust blackened brick and mud walls to heaven like plaintive arms.

Roofs and beams were reduced to ashes.

The three villages, once bustling with the earthly industry which has made Manchuria the goal of Asiatic ambitions, were as quiet as the tomb.

NOTHING LEFT ALIVE

In one community, there was nothing left alive, not even so much as a mongrel dog.

Every Chinese farmer, peasant, coolie and child of either sex that I found still alive in that valley of death told the same story.

The Japanese came and herded the villagers together like cattle in a corral, took them to nearby slopes and hillsides at bayonets' point, and there slaughtered them.

Why was it done?

The answer was always the same.

It was in reprisal against these villages because Chinese rebel troops who attacked Fushun on a night in mid-September, causing damage of 350,000 yen and killing several Japanese, passed through that district before or afterwards.

Even the Japanese admitted that the insurgents were not natives of the villages.

Pastor Supports Story of Shooting Flying Rabbit

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Farmer John W. Hull tells it as follows:

Hunting near here he saw a hawk swoop down, clutch a rabbit in its talons and soar skyward. Hull blazed at the flying rabbit. The shot struck the bunny, knocking it from the hawk's claws. Hull related:

"The bird kept on going, but the rabbit fell and I just walked a few steps and picked it up."

Hull's hunting companion, the Rev. Samuel Spencer, pastor of the Morrisville Methodist Church, says such are the facts.

BLONDE FOUND STRANGLED

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 2.—(INS.)—The nude body of Mrs. H. K. Buchanan, of Dallas, was found on the floor of her apartment yesterday when she failed to report for work and a search was started for her.

The pretty 28-year-old blonde woman had been choked to death, police said, and her body, after being stripped of the clothing, was covered with a sheet and a blanket.

A note, weighted down with a pair of dice, was found on the table in the room. The note read, police said:

"So you don't love me."

BOY, PARENTS END LIVES

VIENNA, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Twelve-year-old Alfred Sarian had not been doing very well at school.

The teacher asked his parents to meet her and talk over the poor scholarship of their son.

Alfred turned on the gas in the kitchen stove and asphyxiated himself. Later neighbors found Mr. and Mrs. Sarian dead in their gas-filled home.

Ohio Boy Fugitive Slain by Policeman

DE KALB, Ill., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—James Streavel, 20, of Dayton, O., was shot and killed last night by Policeman Oscar M. Larson, when he ignored a command to halt an automobile.

Allen McKenna, 21, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., the other occupant of the car, was arrested. Authorities said both escaped from the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield Monday.

CHARGES ROAD REPAIR BUNGLE

Charging that $30,000 state funds was squandered in resurfacing a mile and a half of the Tarentum-Freeport road, recently completed, Homer E. W. Woods, secretary of the Allegheny Valley Chamber of Commerce, with headquarters in Tarentum, has asked Governor Pinchot to investigate.

In a letter to the governor, Woods asserts the road is worse now and that the job is a "complete failure." The road had been objected to as rough and full of holes.

AUTHOR'S WIFE REGAINS GEMS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—It took a court order to do it, but Mrs. Booth Tarkington, of Kennebunkport, Me., wife of the author, today was in a fair way to recover jewels she values at $2,150.

The valuables consisting of a sapphire and diamond platinum watch and an aquamarine diamond brooch were found in possession of Jay Larue, alias Borton, by Washington police October 11.

Finding the name "Booth Tarkington" on the back of the watch resulted in communication with Mrs. Tarkington who told the police the jewels had been stolen from her home about September 4.

Police said they could not turn the jewelry over to Mrs. Tarkington without a court order as Larue refused to sign a release. A suit for replevin against the property clerk of the police department followed and today a United States marshal had taken possession of the jewels preparatory to surrendering them to Mrs. Tarkington's lawyers within three days.

Larue, picked up when he was trying to pawn the jewels, was turned over to police of Daytona, Fla., on another charge. A woman arrested with him, who gave her name as Cynthia Larue, was sent to Philadelphia at the request of authorities there.

SICK GIRL, AIDED BY DOLL, GOING HOME SOON

Word comes from the Children's Hospital that little Dot Grant, whose condition for the better was apparent the moment she received her dolly—"Precious"—from the Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady, is steadily improving, and will be home within a very few days. In the meantime the Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady is the busiest big girl in Pittsburgh. Here is a message she wants to convey to all little girls:

Dear Little Girls:

I had a letter from a little girl this morning who said she wanted one of my dollies. She also said she would start getting her subscriptions early next week. I wonder why she is waiting for next week. I wonder why she isn't out among her friends and relatives TODAY. If she could see the expressions of joy on the faces of the hundreds of little girls who already have been given "Precious" or "Ducky" she wouldn't hesitate another minute.

The rush is really on. Up to this time I have given out more dollies than ever before in Pittsburgh for a like period. So, if you are anxious to get "Ducky" or "Precious" for a pal, now is the time to do it. Don't wait until the last minute rush.

Bear in mind that this year's dollies are really adorable—the cutest, the prettiest and the most lovable I have ever given away. Wherever they go they bring supreme happiness. Now, take my advice, don't wait until later and get in the Christmas jam. Get your dollies right away.

Here are the names of some of the hundreds of little girls who have already obtained three new readers for the Sun-Telegraph. They will all have their "Ducky" or "Precious" in a day or two: Alice May Nehilla, Jean Henke, Loretta Scalyo, Rose M. Miller, Jean Forrest, Jean Cameron, Constance Anthos, Betty Jane Eggers, Eileen Roberts, Clara C. Hinch, Grace McIntyre, Josephine Deigan, Julia Bodziak, Rose Amatangelo, Alberta Terry, Nedra Hall, Betty Thoma and Catherine Savage.

If you don't know how to get one of my dollies and want more information read the display announcement on another page of this issue of the Sun-Telegraph.

Yours sincerely,

Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady

HER 'PRECIOUS' STANDS

MERYL RICHTER, 6 . . SHE'S PROUD OF HER NEW BABY DOLL

Miss Meryl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Richter, 1425 Howard street, North Side, with her new dolly, presented to her as Christmas nears by the Sun-Telegraph's Doll Lady for getting three new readers for this newspaper. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Mother Saves Baby From Fire in Home

Seven persons, among them a mother carrying her 2-year-old son, escaped from a fire in their three-story brick and frame home at 366 Boquet street, this morning.

The fire started in the rear of the second floor, it is said, from an overheated coal stove, and was discovered by Mrs. Lena Rossi, 23. She carried out her son, Eugene; warned John Dalesandro, 57, and his three children, Helen, 19; Victor, 17, and William, 22, as well as the owner of the building, Corcetto Pascurelli. Damage was estimated at $800.

COX INSPECTS BREADLINE DAILY

Who's who in the breadline? Father Cox looks 'em over every day as they line up at Old St. Patrick's for their daily bread and finds that it doesn't require much imagination to realize that 90 per cent of the men in that line had seen days of plenty. He said this morning:

"The depression played no favorites. It hit almost everyone. There is hardly a family that I know of that has members employed where the income is not spread to relatives and friends less fortunate. And the saddest part of it is in the fact that I cannot see any immediate change for the better."

The demand on Father Cox gets greater each day. There's never an end to the breadline or to the pleas from women for food for the homes. Considering all conditions the public has been loyal to Father Cox. If it were not for this fact he could not carry on.

These are some of the reasons why the Sun-Telegraph has inaugurated a drive for funds for Father Cox's unemployment relief activity. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or through the cards he and his assistants are distributing, gives a liberal cash commission to his funds.

ATTIC 'JAILER' SENTENCED

GALLIPOLIS, O., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—His weight nearly doubled and his voice recovered, 4-year-old Loren William Hoctor was on the road to normal health as his foster-mother, Mrs. Lucy Hoctor, was sentenced yesterday to four months in jail for keeping him penned in a dingy attic for two years.

Authorities said the boy, found September 7, was half-starved and nude, could not talk and scarcely could see when brought out into the sunlight. He weighed only 17 pounds.

At the county children's home he was given special care. His weight has increased to 30 pounds and he now is able to talk.

Mrs. Hoctor was convicted on a charge of neglect. Judge R. W. White gave her husband, Sylvester L. Hoctor, 90 days on a similar charge, but suspended sentence.

INSULL ARREST PAPERS ARRIVE

ATHENS, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Extradition papers for Samuel Insull, indicted former utilities magnate of Chicago, arrived in Greece today aboard the steamer Adria.

The pouches were handed to a messenger from the American legation, who loaded them into a small car and drove to Athens from Piraeus.

Charles Bellowes, one of two Chicago state's attorneys who came to Athens to hasten Insull's extradition, announced he would visit the legation today and study the papers.

They will probably be handed to the Greek foreign office tomorrow, Bellowes said. A decision is expected within three days after the papers are submitted to the Supreme Court.

5 Accused in Auto Theft Ring Arrested

WHEELING, Dec. 2.—Following an investigation by agents of United States Bureau of Investigation, four alleged members of the notorious national automobile theft gang were placed under arrest here last night and are each held under $5,000 bail. The men, all from the Philadelphia (Pa.) district, are Louis Carcione, 20; John Jordon, 20; Dominic Cusano, 20, and John Green, 19. Baldo Cocci, a fifth member, was arrested at Philadelphia.

Pittsburgher Hurt In Los Angeles

FOOTBALL ✝ Army, Navy Coaches In Walsh Show ✝ BROADCAST

'Charlie Chan' Makes Air Debut

A "double feature" football bill, with Edgar (Rip) Miller, Navy coach, and Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, coach of Army, as Christy Walsh's interview guests, is listed on CBS-WJAS tonight at 9 on the eve of the Army-Navy grid battle.

Miller, who learned football from the late Knute Rockne, starred as a tackle at Notre Dame, where he was a teammate of the famed "Four Horsemen."

Maj. Sasse

Tomorrow afternoon will see a Sasse-coached Army team in action for the last time, the game marking the completion of Sasse's fourth and last season as Army coach. Army regulations limit the tenure of a coach's post to four years.

* * *

Program Pointers

Walter Connolly, well-known Broadway actor now appearing in "The Late Christopher Bean," comes to radio to portray Charlie Chan, famous Chinese detective of fiction, whose exploits will be unfolded over NBC-KDKA weekly, beginning tonight at 7:30. The Charlie Chan mysteries will form a part of the Five Star Theater series, recently inaugurated.

Mr. Connolly

Re-enactment of the destruction of nine Lutheran churches in the Finnish provinces of Soviet Russia and a dramatization depicting the French and English points of view on the outcome of the recent Hoover-Roosevelt conversation on war debts are highlights of "March of Time"—WJAS at 8:30.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen!

The fog may be a natural phenomenon to the scientific gentlemen, but it's a cough and a sneeze to most globe trotters. One, at least, enjoys the murky atmosphere. He says his creditors can't see him coming.

* * *

The daily mail brings me a lovely letter. After three pages of complimentary rhapsodizing, my correspondent admits that "Globe Trotting" is simply balderdash. Thanks very much—Say? I wonder . . .

* * *

Lillie R. Rudolph, of Mt. Oliver, sends an interesting item showing the progress of newspapers during this generation. She has in her possession a Pittsburgh paper dated 1881. At that time there was only one edition printed daily. What! No 7 Star Final?

* * *

Miss L. C.—No such thing as entering the Olympic Games for 1936. You must qualify in your district to be sent to the national trials. The Olympic committee selects the team on the basis of performance in the trials. Suggest you communicate with John T. Taylor, local A. A. U. commissioner, Vandergrift Building. He will advise about joining an athletic club where opportunity to develop talent is afforded. Good luck.

Eva M. Steele, Latrobe—Did not use the story.

Michael Tauber—The Thirty-first Street Bridge is longer, measuring 2,678.92 feet. The Washington Crossing at Fortieth street is 2,364.42 feet long. Hope you won.

* * *

You can take this for what it is worth. R. M. says that with the European nations crying the blues over their war debts, it seems that after all Columbus was wrong. The world is flat. Tch, tch.

* * *

Children's Concert Features Prodigy

Oskar Shumsky, 15-year-old virtuoso who was featured as soloist in a recent Philadelphia Orchestra broadcast, appears in that capacity during a Children's Concert by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra tomorrow morning from 11 to 12:15 over CBS-WJAS. His contribution to the program is Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in E.

Ohio Girl Makes Bow On Air Here

Glady McNutt, contralto and staff member of Ohio State University's radio station, WEAO, makes her bow from the studios of KDKA at 11:20 tonight in a 10-minute recital of light opera and popular selections.

'Ave Maria' Feature By Street Singer

The Street Singer offers his interpretations of the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria" and "Here Lies Love," from his song role in "The Big Broadcast," at 10 over WJAS.

Downey and Ross On WJAS

"Rock-a-bye Moon," "Baby Dreams" and "When Mother Played the Organ," as sung by Morton Downey, and poetic readings by David Ross are listed on WJAS at 9:30 tonight.

Thurston Describes Thrill Mystery

"Thurston in the Bush Country," the story of the magician's adventures in a prospector's camp 400 miles from a source of water supply, is KDKA's 8:45 feature tonight.

First Nighter Marks Anniversary

Marking its one-hundredth performance, First Nighter offers "One Time in Old Mexico," a romance of native Mexican life written specially for the occasion, over KDKA at 9 tonight.

New Harmony Team On WWSW

A new harmony team, composed of Esther James and Ruth Wible, makes its initial appearance via WWSW at 6:45 p. m. today.

Listening In On Radio Gossip

Norman Brokenshire sets up a new style in boutonnieres . . . the other night he appeared for a broadcast with a sprig of parsley in his lapel . . . with the explanation that flowers are so difficult to procure in winter that it is easier to take the parsley, which he doesn't like anyway, from his plate at dinner . . . Howard Petrie, the announcer, and Alice Wood, NBC hostess and former Broadway actress, announced their engagement the other day. Although both are from Boston, they never met until two years ago in the NBC studios.

Mr. Petrie

The Don Bestor-Art Jarrett combination is no mo' . . . Jarrett plans personal-appearancing while Bestor remains on NBC-WEAF (WCAE) five times weekly.

Les Reis and Arty Dunn are all happy—because a peeved hubby wrote to Columbia's program department asking that they be taken off the air! The boys' program, it seems, interferes with Mr.'s breakfast. Mrs. dropping all activity toward the preparation of the meal throughout the team's morning quarter-hour.

Manzie Johnson, Don Redman's drummer, insists on wearing a battered, once white shoe on his right foot during rehearsal and broadcasts. He says he can't manipulate the foot-pedal on his bass drum in proper time without it.

Arthur Allen has a Scotch-Irish chauffeur and a Chinese cook . . . and is forever worried for fear he'll lose his "down East" accent.

Carveth Wells, born in London of a Cornish mother and a Bermudan father, says he's a full-fledged American—and nothing else. Don't call him English.

The Boswell Sisters, not immune to the lure of a low car license number, got C-1 in the 1933 series . . .

In the face of a spirit such as that shown by these teachers, is there any one of us who dares to says that he cannot afford to give?

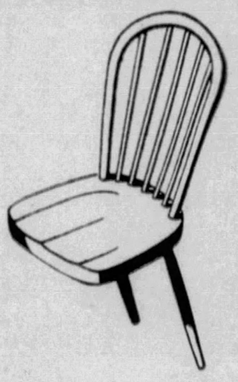
DID YOU EVER SEE A TWO-LEGGED CHAIR?



CHAIRS aren't made with two legs, because you couldn't sit firmly, surely in them. You couldn't maintain your balance. A fundamental principle of balance demands support at all four corners!

The reason the vital elements in Eveready Raytheon Tubes remain balanced is because they have four supports instead of two. Four pillars! All other tubes have only two, because the four-pillar principle is patented for use on Eveready Tubes.

Jolts, jars, vibrations from the dynamic speaker never affect the performance of Eveready four-pillar Tubes. They can't! The four pillars provide firm support for the delicate, vital elements.

Let your dealer demonstrate Eveready four-pillar Tubes to you. Compare them with other tubes yourself!

SHIPPERS HERE SEE LOWER COAL RATES

Western Pennsylvania coal shippers today hoped to obtain more favorable freight rates in competition with Ohio shippers as the Interstate Commerce Commission prepared to study existing rates on shipments in Ohio.

A hearing will be held Monday at Columbus, when the Ohio rate situation will be taken up by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The commission has the power to change the rates on intra-state shipments if it finds them detrimental to inter-state commerce.

The Ohio Utilities Commission some months ago granted railroads the right to reduce the rate on shipments from Ohio coal fields to Ohio centers, but the railroads refused to reduce proportionately the rates on Western Pennsylvania shipments to the same points. Shippers here claim they have been cut off from a large part of their market as a result of the differential.

The Western Pennsylvania shippers have one recent decision of the I. C. C. in their favor. The Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway in October was allowed to reduce its rate on shipments from Pennsylvania to $1.55 a ton from $1.84 a ton. The Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad was a party to the agreement since it had a part of the haul to lake ports. The Wheeling and Lake Erie later filed notice that it would not be a party to the agreement after December 27, whereupon the Pittsburgh and West Virginia asked the I. C. C. to increase the rates to $1.84 on shipments to Cleveland, but at the same time asked the commission not to grant the petition. The commission ordered the proposed new rates suspended until July 27.

KIWANIS HEAR N. Y. CHIEF

Business men through the service clubs today occupy an essential position in the spreading of good will throughout the world, Harry N. Holmes, field secretary of the World Alliance for International Friendship, told the Pittsburgh Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon yesterday in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Holmes, president of the New York Kiwanis Club, pointed out the understanding brought persons of all faiths and political parties through service clubs is minor to the work still ahead. He said:

"Never let the young people of America think the greatness of America is a thing of the past. The friendship between Canada and United States is but an example of world understanding and friendship that can be developed. Kiwanis can play an important part in this movement."

Roxy Asks Hoover To N. Y. Dedication

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—S. F. Rothafel (Roxy) today had invited President Hoover to attend the dedication of Radio City in New York City, December 27.

Depression Misses Debtless County

SEATTLE, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—A county so prosperous it has no bonded debt, whose people may not be rich but at least are thrifty—that's San Juan County in Northwestern Washington.

Made up of a great many islands, San Juan is the smallest county in Washington, with an area of only 178 square miles. Many of the residents are farmers. Stock raising and canneries occupy others.

City Hall Janitor Burns Up Tax Checks

DENVER, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—An ambitious janitor burned up several thousand dollars' worth of checks and perhaps some cash while cleaning up the City Hall. In the rush of last-minute payments by delinquent taxpayers, the checks were misplaced. The janitor believed they were rubbish. Reports placed the loss in checks between $3,000 and $12,000.

Firemen, Sleuths Must Do Own Mending

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Those checker games firemen are supposed to play when there are no fires are going to suffer in Cleveland. Sewing is the latest thing. The safety department's tailor shop has been ordered closed because of a budget cut. Policemen will wield needles as well as the firemen.

Piccard Arranges Trip to America

PARIS, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Prof. Auguste Piccard, pioneer of the stratosphere, is here arranging to sail for the United States January 4 for a lecture tour.

While he is in America, he said, he will investigate the possibilities of a balloon ascension in the vicinity of the north magnetic pole for continued study of the cosmic rays. He will stay two or three months with his twin brother, Jean, at Wilmington, Del.

The second of Hulda Lefridge's morning musicales was held yesterday morning in Hotel Schenley. They are to continue for 10 successive Thursdays and serve a real purpose in the musical life of our town. The program is made up of salon music that otherwise would remain unheard, and the singers and players are local musicians who sometimes despair of a hearing outside churches or studios.

Mr. Lissfelt

Soloists yesterday were Hazel Peck Speer, pianist, and Carolyn Hunt Mahaffey, contralto. Mrs. Speer's playing is characterized by brilliance rather than poetry and was best in the Liszt Etude and Moskowski Waltz.

Mrs. Mahaffey's voice is a rich and true contralto which she uses with some skill. She must pay more detailed attention, however, when she sings French or German songs, for there were many inconsistencies in the French and her direct mispronunciation or misunderstanding of German made her "Im Herbst" utterly ridiculous. This voice has decided possibilities.

Hulda Lefridge played accompaniments.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

The "Order in Diplomacy" is causing considerable worry.

And we thought it would be easy.

Maybe the broad hint given today will help relieve your worries. It tells simply how to start your solution—by writing all the letters of the ciphered message on a horizontal line—using no spaces.

That should be enough. If not look in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph for the solution—and feel ashamed of yourself for missing it.

M'KEESPORT'S EMPLOYES TO GET FULL PAY

McKeesport's city employes will have a full pay for Christmas. It will be the first in four months, and citizens can anticipate a balanced budget for 1933 as a result of a meeting of the City Council yesterday.

Mayor George H. Lysle's motion to continue through December a 25 per cent pay cut inaugurated four months ago had no seconds, and drew little comment, other than that of Councilman J. C. Zwingler, who said:

"I have made a promise to all men under my supervision that they shall receive full pay for Christmas."

Zwingler's promise will be kept.

Council decided to try to balance its own budget rather than bring in Maj. Philip Mathews of the Governmental Research Bureau, here. Mathews' name was suggested by Secretary Watson McKee of the McKeesport Chamber of Commerce, who sought a millage reduction.

CULBERTSON'S TEAM BEATEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(Universal.)—The Knickerbocker Bridge Club's team outplayed 21 other nationally-known bridge quarters throughout a three-session match to win the national open team-of-four contract championship of the American Bridge League, and the Chicago trophy, last night.

The team, composed of B. J. Becker, Philadelphia; S. Garton Churchill, Brooklyn, and George Reith and Waldemar von Zedtwitz, both of New York, scored 50 match points out of a possible 80.

Second, with 49 points, was the team made up of Ely Culbertson, Oswald Jacoby, Theodore Lightner and Michael Gottlieb, all of New York. Another all-New York quartet, Howard Schenken, David Burnstine, Richard Frey and Charles Lochridge, took third with 46.

Five more titles remain yet to be decided at the tournament, which has been running all week and will end Saturday. They are: The national contract pair, the men's national auction pair, the men's national auction team of four, the women's national auction pair and the women's national auction team of four.

How Coughs and Colds Yield to Creosote

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

MINE ATTACHED IN COAL ROW

Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, has granted an attachment against Joseph Nesta, on an alleged contempt of court charge, for violating an order directing that engineers of an adjoining mine be permitted to enter his coal mine property in Patton Township to make a survey.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lelekacs, who own a 38-acre tract, are plaintiffs, alleging Nesta has been mining coal from their land. They obtained a preliminary injunction, pending further inquiry into the case.

Attorney H. M. Lubic represents the petitioners. It is averred that engineers were refused admittance to the mine Wednesday morning and later were allowed to enter, but found slate blocking the entry.

ERK-BROOKS CONTEST HINGES ON 23RD WARD RECOUNT

TROLLEY CRASH IN FOG KILLS MAN, 2 HURT

Motorman Unable To See Wagon, He Tells Police

One man was killed and two others injured, one seriously, when a Crafton-Ingram street car crashed into a huckster's wagon on which they were riding in West Carson street last night.

The dead man was identified as Frank Spilano, 40, of Elm street. Peter Saitana, 39, of Kearsage street, Mt. Washington, who was extricated from beneath the street car, was in South Side Hospital, with a probable skull fracture and internal injuries. Antonio Malto, 40, of 116 Elm street, owner of the wagon, suffered severe lacerations and bruises.

CRASH IN FOG

Malto was driving toward the city in a dense fog when the car, operated by Edward Deremer, of 310 Copeland street, McKees Rocks, crashed into the wagon, according to Homicide Detectives Frank Dodson and Albert Grayber. Deremer told police, they said, he did not see the wagon until his car was within a few feet of it and applied the brakes. Deremer was ordered to post bond pending an inquest.

Suffering a probable skull fracture and internal injuries when struck by an automobile at Chartiers avenue and Emporia street last night, Mrs. Anna Rodgers, 72, of Fairdale street, Sheraden, was reported in a serious condition in Haddon Hospital today.

DRIVER POSTS BOND

Mrs. Rodgers was struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Wilhelm, 54, of 3108 Landis street, as she stepped from behind a parked car, police said Wilhelm told them. Wilhelm was arrested and later released on a $1,000 bond pending the outcome of the woman's injuries.

Mrs. Anna Kelland, 40, of 363 South Highland avenue, suffered lacerations on the head and body when her automobile collided with a car driven by Carl Scholtz, 19, of 229 Braddock avenue, at Collins avenue and Station street last night, police said. She was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Suffering head injuries after being struck by an automobile while working on a road in Schenley Park last night, Harry Tandtle, 33, of Pius street, was taken to Montefiore Hospital. The automobile was said by police to have been driven by Joseph Bruzynski, 23, of 3007 Paulowna street.

J. P. Morgan, 66, of Strong street, was in Presbyterian Hospital today with a fractured leg and bruises suffered when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Allegheny avenue at Beech street. Arthur Wehner, 26, of 1111 Penn avenue, was arrested.

YOUTH KILLED IN GAS BLAST

Trapped in an explosion of gas while working in a pithouse on the Oscar Wehr farm in the Crown oil field, near Warrendale, late yesterday, Clair G. Krishler, 18, who lives on the farm, died before aid reached him, according to a Coroner's report today.

Krishler was believed to have been overcome by gas before the explosion. The fire was discovered by a member of the Wehr family, who went to the youth's aid after summoning firemen.

There was no chance to rescue the trapped youth, however, as flames quickly razed the pithouse.

A scaffold fire at the new Mellon Institute building, Fifth avenue and Bellefield, attracted hundreds from various Oakland entertainments last night. There was no damage.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 2.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:
We haven't got enough work to do to go round, so it looks like they are finally going to try and distribute it more evenly by having a five-day week, and six-hour day. I see now where where the Federation of Labor and almost everyone are for it.

Will Rogers

All this after three years of starvation. In this country everything has to be proved to us. Look at the sales tax. That is coming just as sure as shooting, but you couldn't get the guys in that last Congress to admit it. We hadn't suffered enough yet.

Well, the lame ducks meet Monday, and that's why they are lame, because their constituents were thinking faster than they was. Yours, WILL.

FUND APPEALS TO EMPLOYE GROUPS

30,000 Believed Able To Aid Welfare Campaign

The Welfare Fund campaign for its $2,500,000 1933 budget continued today with a plea to all corporations to have employes' pledges returned before next Wednesday.

Three hundred and forty-six thousand dollars is needed to reach the goal in the remaining five days of the campaign—already extended for two additional weeks from its first-set end, November 23.

An intensive effort is to be made to obtain pledges from 30,000 persons in Allegheny County estimated to be capable of giving although they have not yet subscribed to the fund.

Many of these, campaign leaders say, have failed to subscribe because they cannot afford gifts as large as those of last year. A strong attempt will be made to overcome this sentiment, they say.

Re-solicitation of persons who have already subscribed will be made in an attempt to increase pledges where possible.

BOARD'S RULING TO DECIDE OUTCOME

Congressman Trails by Small Margin With One District Out

Decision of Returning Board Judges W. H. McNaugher and John P. Egan in the recount of ballots in the Twenty-third Ward probably will determine the winner in the Thirtieth Congressional fight between Edmund F. Erk, Republican incumbent, and Twing Brooks, Democrat.

Today Brooks had a slender lead in the compilation of the vote from 184 of the 185 districts, which gave Brooks, 35,244; Erk, 34,681. The ballot boxes of the 10 districts of the Twenty-third Ward, which gave Brooks a majority of approximately 350, are before the returning board and numerous changes in the figures have been found, some of which have voided ballots and others have cut down the Democratic majority. In similar cases in other contests the board refused to take the recount figures, and certified the election board's figures for tabulation.

BROOKS' LEAD CUT

In the Fifth District, Twenty-third Ward, Brooks' vote was cut from 255 to 219 and Erk's vote increased from 165 to 173. In the Sixth District, Erk lost two and Brooks lost three. The changes resulted from mutilated ballots, erasures and duplicate markings. A hearing on the Seventh District is scheduled for this afternoon. In this district Brooks lost 58 and Erk gained 82.

Judges W. H. McNaugher and John P. Egan, sitting as both Common Pleas and return board judges, yesterday certified the election board results from the First District of Scott Township and the First and Second districts of Sharpsburg, where large Democratic majorities were alleged to have been changed benefitting Erk's candidacy.

COUNT NEARS END

The work of the Return Board will be finished today with the exception of a few entries yet to be made from the Recount Board, according to Judges McNaugher and Egan. Six clerks will be retained for this tabulation, they said.

Following receipt of a letter by County Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence from United States Attorney Louis E. Graham, in reply to a request for a federal investigation of election fraud, a representative of the Department of Justice was scheduled to begin an independent study of the situation today.

Representatives from the District Attorney's office and the Election Bureau under supervision of the County Commissioners have been watching developments for several days.

SQUIRE EXPLAINS

Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood today issued a statement explaining why he did not keep the 12 ballot boxes from McKees Rocks districts but had them placed in a cell in the police station next door. Westwood, who also is a candidate for the State Assembly, said he didn't want the boxes in his office because of that fact.

The Return Board today completed its tabulation of the vote in the Twelfth Legislative District, where charges of gross election irregularities had been made. The returning board's figures show the election of Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, Republican incumbent; John M. O'Rourke, Democrat-Republican; Joseph A. Rectenwald and Charles Harmuth, Democrats, victors. The vote was O'Rourke, 52,099; Rectenwald, 28,739; Steedle, 28,022; Harmuth, 27,851. Boyer, 27,527; Westwood, 27,299, both Republicans, and Travers, Democrat, 27,835.

The complete canvas in the Tenth Legislative District indicated the election of William J. McBride and James H. McClure, Republicans, and George V. Beech and James L. Quinn, Democrats. The complete figures, which might be altered slightly before the vote is certified, follows: McBride, 28,369; McClure, 27,244; Steele, Republican, 26,266; Riddle, Republican, 25,829; Beech, 27,863; Callahan, Democrat, 26,408; Quinn, 27,157; Craddock, Democrat, 26,039.

MOONEY FIGHTS BAN ON MOTHER

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Tom Mooney, serving a life term in San Quentin Prison for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, today cabled the following protest to Ramsay MacDonald, British Prime Minister. He declared:

"Berlin British consulate refuses visa to my 84-year-old mother, Mary Mooney. I vigorously protest this attempt to interfere with efforts to secure my freedom. Request orders countermanding deliberate frustration of my mother's plans to inform British people about facts in my case."

Mrs. Mooney is making a tour of Europe in an appeal for her son's liberty.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 2.—(INS.)—A "hands off" policy in the pardon fight of Tom Mooney was announced today by Gov. Rolph. Commenting on a letter signed by 15 prominent citizens demanding reopening of the Mooney case, Rolph said:

"There is nothing further for me to do—the case is closed. I still agree with the report filed with me by Judge Matt I. Sullivan last April."

Penniless Mother Inherits $80,000

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—A month ago, Mrs. Frances Biesemeyer's husband, upon whose part-time job the family depended, died. Two days later her second child was born. Almost desperate for funds, she has just learned she is a beneficiary to the extent of $80,000 in the will of Mrs. Lucretia Meysenburg, who left a $600,000 estate.

Mrs. Biesemeyer was Mrs. Meysenburg's former traveling companion.

Lumber Firm's Store Burns; Loss $30,000

KINGWOOD, W. Va., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Fire destroyed the Caflisch Lumber Company store at Ruthbell today, with loss estimated at $30,000.

Trapped upstairs, Isaac Harned, office clerk, was hurt when he jumped from a second-story window. His wife and three children were away from home at the time.

ROBBERS BEAT VICTIM AT DOOR

Harry L. Steinhauser, of 3607 California avenue, North Side, was knocked down by two Negro thugs who robbed him of $28 at the rear door of his home early today, city detectives reported.

Steinhauser was about to enter the house when the pair attacked him. Though dazed by the blow, he went in and telephoned police after the assailants had fled.

Two bandits looted the cash register in the grocery of Samuel Smith, of 5409 Walnut street, East End, of $50 after holding at bay with revolvers Oliver Levinson, 19, of 321 Stratford avenue, the clerk, and Woodrow Fryer, of South Fairmount avenue.

George E. Herdt, of 42 Watsonia boulevard, attendant in the Supreme Service Station at 71 East Carson street, was held up by two armed thugs, who took $9 from the cash register.

GRAY REBUKES ATTORNEYS

Lawyers who agree among themselves on the time for trying listed cases, thus upsetting the court schedule, were rebuked yesterday by Judge James H. Gray, presiding in Common Pleas Court. He said:

"It is for the court to say when cases shall be tried, and not the lawyers, and the rules of this court are to be enforced. Here we have 200 jurors sitting here at $4 a day. Yet some lawyers make arrangements among themselves, instead of in court, for the trial of cases, interfering with the work of the court.

"One lawyer who has had a case on the list for four years and has failed to try it, now wants special attention and disposition made. Lawyers must obey the rules of this court and not say when it pleases them to try cases."

Four Pittsburghers Hurt in Auto Crash

BAIRDSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Four Pittsburghers narrowly escaped serious injury as a truck collided with their automobile near here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hass, of Woodland avenue, Brookline, and M., and Mrs. Jacob Yeager, of Pittsburgh, suffered bruises and shock.

Company Adopts 'Share Work' Plan

Joining in the "Share-the-Work" movement, a sugar manufacturing company at 2130 Penn avenue yesterday announced plans to employ 28 persons to do the work now requiring 14. Saying adoption of the plan would return the staff normally employed there, R. Calvin McAteer, president, added:

"We believe it is the only way to remedy the unemployment situation and make business conditions in general better. We are trying to do our part."

What Congress Needs Is a Big Old Home Week

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Congress has a good chance on Monday to launch an Old Home Week.

This country needs a nice repaint job from the inside. Let's stop worrying over Manchuria, Europe and way stations.

Our trouble is that the apples have been rolling too far from the tree.

We've scattered our punches all over the world. Let's grab ourselves by the bootstraps and pull ourselves out of the gumbo.

Keep out of the woods where there are toadstools for every order of mushrooms and a wolf for every Red Riding Hood.

We have seen the League of Nation cave in like a barrel with the hoops off. They had us fixed for a first-class cabin on the wreck of the Hesperus. But we missed the boat.

Let charity begin at home and don't even give it Thursday nights out.

GREEN RENAMED A. F. L. CHIEF

CINCINNATI, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—William Green today was unanimously chosen president of the American Federation of Labor, for the ninth consecutive year.

In a speech of acknowledgement, Green reiterated his intention to use vigorous methods to gain acceptance of the Federation's program of unemployment insurance and the 30-hour week. He said:

"We must translate the militant spirit of this convention into action. We will plead for co-operation, but where we cannot get it, we will use every legitimate power at our command to obtain it."

Green took office in 1924 after the death of Samuel Gompers.

New Span Celebration Ends at Dinner

A dinner in Fort Pitt Hotel last night wound up the day's program of the dedication of the West End-North Side Bridge. Speakers were County Commissioners C. C. McGovern, C. M. Barr and W. D. Mansfield.

Hundreds attended the dedication in the afternoon. The program was under direction of a committee composed of representatives of 20 Allegheny County civic bodies. Speakers were the County Commissioners, Harry Tranter, whose idea for the bridge led to appointment of a committee to study the location in 1912, and who was master of ceremonies; James T. Fox, president of the West End Board of Trade, who accepted the structure for the West End; J. G. Shaw, chairman of the committee; Edward G. Lang, director of the city Department of Public Works, and President of Council John S. Herron.

A ribbon was stretched across the West End entrance of the bridge and held by Dorothy Jane Hardesty, 15, of Castle Shannon, granddaughter of Henry Meuschke, one of the founders of Saw Mill Run boulevard, and Betty A. Croup, 15, daughter of B. F. Croup, president of Boggs & Buhl. It was cut, officially opening the bridge to traffic, by Mary Eleanor Hershberger, 7, niece of Mr. Tranter.

Roxie Long Testimony In Rum Trial Ends

On the stand almost continuously since Monday, Rocco Di Pippa, alias Roxie Long, today finished testimony the government hopes will convict 23 defendants in the liquor conspiracy case before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court.

DiPippa, who entered a plea of guilty, is the government's star witness, and since the trial began Monday has been telling of liquor activities in the county. The only interruption of his direct and cross-examination was during a five-minute period just before court adjourned yesterday.

The witness denied he was testifying against his brother-in-law, Harry Kelly, because he had threatened to get "even" with the defendant after they had quarreled. DiPippa said:

"I met him Sunday night and he kissed me on the cheek. Does that show any hard feelings?"

The government placed in evidence a letter written by Defense Attorney John D. Meyer in 1931 recommending a pardon for Di Pippa at the time the latter was on parole in connection with a larceny charge. In the letter addressed to the Pardon Board, Meyer stated he believed DiPippa was conducting himself in a lawful manner.

ROOSEVELT PUTS U. S. INTERESTS FIRST IN DEBT FIGHT

PAYMENT MUST BE MADE, HE WRITES

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, in an article entitled, "Your New National Leadership," in January Cosmopolitan magazine, discusses war debts, stock market speculation, and monopolies. He says:

"Debts owed the United States must be paid. It is sound, common sense to assist your debtors in every way, but there is neither practicality nor honor in cancellation. The stabilization of world finances can best be achieved by a clear understanding of just obligations.

"A policy unduly favoring foreign private loans has resulted in more great sums being owed us, has failed to achieve any real international unity, economic or otherwise, and has confirmed foreign hopes for the repudation of debts.

WILL PUT U. S. FIRST

"The new national leadership will deal fairly, honestly and sanely with this situation. It will remember, however, that as society is now organized, we are divided into nations, and that it is the duty of your national administration first to consider the welfare of its own people.

"I strongly feel that the welfare of the world depends just as much upon ourselves as it does upon others, but there is only one view to take of these great money obligations between nations. These sums represent national labor, the labor of a great mass of individuals.

HITS STOCK THIEVERY

"Domestic speculation and stock thievery, personal and corporate, must be put down if we are to get the confidence essential to industrial and business progress.

"Our credit structure is not only based upon but actually made of the money of small investors and depositors. I shall urge Federal legislation to give full, adequate and understanding publicity to the purposes for which stocks and bonds are issued, full publicity for the accounting of these moneys and full publicity for mergers, consolidations and holding companies.

"Legitimate risk, legitimate investment and legitimate organization will welcome this light. We must have no more of the frenzied speculation and the brutal exploitation of innocent investors that we have recently seen. The 'blindness' of a national administration to it would be criminal.

"I cannot prevent the mistakes and credulity of individuals, but we can all join in seeking to have the information on which you base your judgments made a matter of public record.

REGULATION ESSENTIAL

"Any monopoly on a necessity of life should be outlawed. For example, no one should wish to drive the public utility companies out of business, but they must be controlled by Federal legislation to prevent them from charging more than a reasonable return on their investments.

"A haziness with regard to just and unjust monopolies has been fostered within recent years, resulting in an aggressive encroachment of the desire of the few upon the rights of the many. The few have rights which must be preserved. At the same time the human rights of the many are paramount."

UTILITIES PROBE BACK IN CAPITAL

HARRISBURG, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The scene of the Senate committee's investigation into utilities shifts back to its home grounds tomorrow, when the Dauphin court hears arguments on injunctions incidental to the investigation.

Tomorrow the court here has scheduled hearings on other injunctions. They include another restraining order asked by Shelby to keep his private records from the committee; one asked by four Associated Gas and Electric Company subsidiaries to prevent the committee from obtaining their securities, or subpenaing their officers and employes or looking into their affairs; one to prevent the committee from getting banking and brokerage accounts of former Commissioner James S. Benn and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Morgan; and to keep the committee from issuing any subpenaes or paying any moneys. This last, asked by Ira Jewell Williams, Philadelphia attorney, asserts the committee is unconstitutional.

BANKER IN HUNT FOR BOMBERS

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Solomon A. Smith, president of the Northern Trust Company, today vowed his determination to capture perpetrators of a bombing in his apartment home in which his wife narrowly escaped death or injury.

The bomb was received by mail November 9 and an extortion letter came 10 days later, demanding $4,000 on penalty of Smith's death. The incident, however, was surrounded with secrecy until yesterday.

Mrs. Smith was at home when the bomb, a cleverly devised contraption set in plaster of paris and inclosed in a small wooden case, arrived. She opened the package, igniting the foil. Although hurled backward by the blast, Mrs. Smith was not seriously injured.

On the inside top cover of the wooden case appeared a printed warning, cautioning against notifying police. Mrs. Smith at once telephoned her husband, who immediately enlisted the aid of postal authorities and the Secret Six, but did not call in the police.

SPEED IN HOME LOAN PLEAS ADVISED

Property owners seeking to take advantage of the Federal Home Loan Bank's direct service to individuals today were advised to expedite their loans through application to the bank's stockholder members.

W. F. Bell, executive vice president of the Pittsburgh branch which serves Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Delaware as District No. 3, said rulings on several questions at Washington were necessary before the property owners could arrange direct loans through the bank. He suggested:

"Property holders will expedite their applications by applying for loans through the building and loan associations, savings banks and insurance companies that are stockholders in the local branch. We have many applications for loans from these latter sources already awaiting approval at Washington. It probably will be a matter of weeks before counsel at Washington will rule on questions to clarify the individual loan clauses of the act."

The first loan was issued at the bank Wednesday.

YOUTHS ADMIT KIDNAPING

Confessing to the theft of an automobile and admitting they kidnaped the chief of police of Newton, Kan., two Pittsburgh youths were held for the federal grand jury yesterday at Los Angeles. Their companion, Mabel Hurlston, of Homewood, will not be prosecuted.

The accused are William Conners and Edward Cavanaugh, both of East End, where they attended school together. The three left Pittsburgh several weeks ago in an automobile alleged to have been stolen from J. F. Johnson, of the Schenley Arms apartment.

They were arrested in Newton, Kan., and while being returned to Pittsburgh by Chief R. L. McGinnis, of Newton, overpowered him at St. Clairsville. They returned west and were arrested a second time 10 days ago in Culver City, Cal.

Miss Dietrich declined to comment on what position she might take if the studio and director definitely suspended relations. It was indicated her contract with Paramount has about three months to run.

Didn't I say just yesterday that the debs were going to have a taste of the pre-depression debutante whirl in the Christmas holidays?

And today I have some more good news for the young things, all those interested in them, and that includes just about everybody.

I know that the gracious Thomas H. Eddys are going to give a dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club December 26 for Mary Thaw Dilworth, the debbing daughter of the John Crossan Dilworths.

The dinner will precede the ball which Mrs. Clinton L. Childs will give to present her blonde daughter Laura to the grown-ups' social world.

* * *

The epidemic of Christmas sales isn't over yet. And you'll be glad, when you hear about it. As Ed Wynn would say, it's different.

New Kind Of Sale

All sorts of novelties made of walrus tusks will be sold, for one different thing.

The sale will be conducted by Mrs. Thomas H. Eddy at the College Club Monday and Tuesday with the hours from 10 in the morning to 5 in the afternoon.

All the proceeds will go to the Grenfell Medical Mission. The things, including children's Christmas presents, to be offered at the sale were all made by Dr. Grenfell's patients in the Labrador Hospital.

Mrs. Eddy will have as her aides Mrs. F. B. Downey, Mrs. John E. McKelvy, Mrs. Samuel Ewart, Mrs. John C. Dilworth, Mrs. Walter N. Lissfelt, Miss Eleanor Grier, Mrs. Walter Dearth, Mrs. Robert G. Young, Miss Eleanor P. Kelly, Mrs. T. C. Wurts, Mrs. Robert Marshall and Mrs. J. Brooks Huff.

Lichter and Morris A. Levin, and the ceremony will take place in the ballroom of the Hotel Schenley at 8 o'clock that evening.

Miss Marcus will be given in marriage by her brother, Abraham B. Marcus, and has chosen as her maid of honor, Mrs. Samuel Siegel, and as her matron of honor, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Abraham B. Marcus. Her nieces, Miss Lillian and Miss Gertrude Holtzman, will be bridesmaids. Albert Kulick, cousin of the bridegroom-elect, will be best man and ushers will include Louis Fisher, Max A. Applebaum, Edward Gordon, Samuel J. Sugarman, Aaron Rosenson, Barney Holtzman and Harry Lefkowitz.

There will be a reception after the wedding, and immediately after Dr. Fisher and his bride will leave for a trip around the world.

City Club to Entertain Distinguished Guests During Month

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Woman's City Club events for December are varied and of more than ordinary interest. There is, for instance, a luncheon next Friday at which Henry M. Busch, head of the division of informal adult education at Cleveland College, will talk on "Trends in World Affairs." Another distinguished luncheon guest will be Ossip Gabrilowitch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, who will speak December 14 concerning the orchestra program to be given that evening.

The usual parliamentary law classes and bridge evenings are scheduled. James M. MacQueen, Pittsburgh architect, will talk about "Pittsburgh Buildings Worth Visiting" at the art department meeting on Tuesday; Miss Alice H. Benning is to have "Miniature Antiques" as her topic on the ninth and two book talks will make up the program for the book luncheon on the seventeenth. Mrs. E. J. Searles and Mrs. Robert M. Repp, Jr., will give the reviews.

The Christmas musicale on the eighteenth is, however, the outstanding event of the month. Mrs. Taylor Allderdice and her choral, assisted by Harry Azinsky, assistant concert master of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, will give the recital and if you have heard, rather overheard, any of the choral rehearsals, you will know there's an unusually fine program in prospect and that the choral is fairly outdoing itself this season.

Then there's one more event on the month's calendar, a buffet supper and bridge on the twentieth, for which Mrs. Carl L. Peirce, Miss Karen Fladoes and Mrs. E. J. Casselman are co-operating.

THREE-QUARTER-LENGTH COAT FAVORED FOR ALL-AROUND WEAR

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Dec. 2.—The three-quarter-length coat is an established Paris success. Following its launching at the winter fashion openings, French women have taken it up as an all-round fashion; the three-quarter coat appears with every type of costume, from the sports suit to the evening wrap.

* * *

IN SPITE of the fact that it is the newest kind of wrap in Paris, this three-quarter coat has already taken a dozen new forms. It varies from a tightly fitted formal coat which outlines the curves of the figure to a loose flaring topcoat which is big and bulky and may be worn over a suit jacket; it is made in every conceivable material, from crepe de chines and velvets to heavy tweeds and worsted. But in any form it has many of the advantages of both the short coat and the long one rolled into one, in that it is not too long and cumbersome, yet is warm enough for the most wintry day.

* * *

SOMEBODY OUGHT TO TELL THIS LADY THAT

SURE, there's a big difference in soaps. With some soaps you can't get clothes clean without a good rubbing. And clothes aren't iron. They start fraying and tearing—it's a case of "All aboard for the rag bag!"

Chipso is your soap if you want to get every speck of wear out of your clothes. Why? Because Chipso is all-soap, the richest soap you can buy. Chipso doesn't need your rubbing to get dirt out. Its rich suds soak dirt out in just a few minutes—and such snowy clothes!

Here's something else that makes Chipso different—there is NOTHING in Chipso to harm clothes. Chipso is SAFER!

You can prove that Chipso is safer in just a week. Soak clothes in it. Wash dishes with it. Get Chipso's quick suds in your cleaning pail. And then—LOOK at YOUR HANDS!

You'll find that your hands feel smoother and look prettier. You won't feel as if you had burrs on the ends of your fingers when you draw on your stockings.

Why, Chipso is so safe you should be washing your silk stockings and your pink silk undies with it. It keeps the sheen and the color in silks. Safe even for wool!

Chipso is too good to miss. Why not order a big box from your grocer today?

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

The criticism here about Equity brought strenuous denials, of course, from Equity . . . President Gillmore says I am determined to be unfair, which, of course, I'm not . . . He wants the complaints I've received, which, of course, he won't get . . . All that interested me in his letter was learning that most of the funds go to relieving stranded players and those "immediately embarrassed" . . . He tells me Equity isn't a benevolent group, in the sense of the word, as it doesn't wish to trespass on The Actors' Fund of America—to which Equity contributes large monies . . . This is good news . . . I never argued that Equity didn't do the actor some good . . . I complained that it didn't do enough for the little guy . . . But now I am convinced that Equity is worried. Because it gave The Billboard a false statement about the situation. The Billboard quotes Equity as saying that in a letter to me, President Gillmore pointed out (which he didn't at all) that the "particular person" wasn't a member, but had "merely filed an application" . . . Equity couldn't possibly know the name of the person responsible for the argument, for I said it was a girl, who had to pawn her coat to pay her dues, to throw Equity off the scent if it desired vengeance . . . It wasn't a girl at all . . . The Billboard report also reveals that the $50 initiation into membership represents a large increase in the initiation fee, and was "recently inscribed in the rules for the express purpose of keeping out of the profession the countless drifters who think the theater is good for easy money" . . . In other words, if the Cherry Sisters have $50 they can join Equity and become actresses . . . But if another Lynn Fontanne or Katharine Cornell should be hard up and not have 50 smackers, then Equity believes that such a poverty-stricken Cornell or Fontanne should not be allowed on the stage . . . In fewer words, Equity is now measuring acting ability by the contents of one's purse . . . They probably look upon J. P. Morgan as a better Hamlet than John Barrymore!

It amuses me when I hear radio comedians and other air stars alibi their bewhiskered quips with: "I know it's old in New York and Chicago, but they think these jokes are new in Paducah and Quincy!" . . . No wonder so many of them fail to get over . . . There are no longer any Paducahs and Quincys or Oshkoshes! . . . Since radio became The Thing, every place in the country is a New York, Chicago, or a Los Angeles! . . . There are no small towns any more—so far as the radio is concerned . . . And when some of the air entertainers understand that—they'll succeed . . . There are no hicks, I mean . . . Everybody has been wised-up . . . And to hear some of the stale anecdotes told by the so-called star comics on the air, you know they are only kidding themselves . . . They are desperate for laugh material, I know, but it is a quick death for many of them, unless they quit feeding the air audience drivel and gags they've already heard . . . The big town listeners are in the minority, anyhow—it's the average-sized towners that tune in and who really matter . . . Their opinions have broken many a clown who thought he could get away with the same jokes that he told them in their home towns from a stage years ago! . . . I begged Jolson not to try to be funny when he sought advice . . . I told him to humble himself and use the line I once used: "Thanks for letting me into your homes" . . . Which he embellished by adding: "No matter if you live in a mansion or a hut!" That speech, it appears, won over his most severe critics on his initial broadcast—and now I can't use it when I return, for they'd say I thefted it from him! . . . No one sings a tune better than Al Jolson, and his "April Showers" will never grow old. If he'd only leave the old jokes to the columnists!

The report that Jimmy Walker will write his memwars with the aid of Frank Scully is true, but if Jimmy wishes any notes to jog his memory about his career, he can get them from one of the morning rags here . . . This gazette, which, it is needless to say, was never a pal of Jimmie's, took particular pains to keep a detailed diary of the ex-Mayor's life every hour that he held the office of mayor . . . Ehe editors figured that the diary would be of assistance in their bombardment if Walker's political power ever expanded overly much . . . Now, figuring that his career in public office is definitely done, they have laid aside the diary . . . It has never been known, but Lindbergh almost joined Smith and Coolidge and Hellinger to become a columnist . . . At the time of the tragic kidnaping of his son, Lindy had practically completed negotiations to write a daily newspaper article . . . The plans were abandoned, however, after his bereavement as he is now fully determined to have his name appear in public as little as possible.

I wondered why I seldom see a certain fellow at the dice games, anymore . . . The boys were saying that he can't stand the sight of a pair o' cubes since it happened . . . Because his conscience bothers him, but I can't see why his conscience should be troubled . . . The fates ordered it that way, and that's all there is to it . . . It seems that he was in a game in which a desperate for coin fellow was taking a fierce trimming . . . The desperate one simply couldn't make a pass and went for a mess of sugar . . . Finally he threw a hard number and took the odds that he'd make it . . . His nervousness, as the throw was prolonged, got on the nerves of the other players, and even bothered the guy who laid the odds—three thousand to two . . . Suddenly the shooter, his last $2,000 riding on the throw, stopped his dice and asked the odds-giver if he might take back half his bet . . . "If you asked to have the whole bet called off," replied the man, "I'd do it. But why be cheap about it? Let it ride or call it all off!" . . . The chap paled and perspired freely . . . And then threw a seven—losing the last of his money . . . He excused himself, saying he'd be back with fresh coin later . . . He hasn't returned yet—a fugitive, being hounded by the police . . . For when he left that dice game, he went to a midtown store and held up the cashier, killing two persons in his haste to get away . . . And that's why one of the better known sportsmen tosses in his sleep these nights . . . He feels that if he had allowed the lad to take back half his bet that night—two murders wouldn't have been committed . . . Gee!

Miss Francis In Warner

By MARGARET RUSSELL

"Trouble in Paradise" at the Warner this week is good entertainment. Not a picture for children, this story, based on Laszlo Aladar's play, but highly diverting for sophisticated adults.

The picture belongs to Herbert Marshall and Miriam Hopkins as Gaston Monescu, alias Monsieur Laval, and Lily, a couple of extraordinary crooks. They receive excellent support from the charming Kay Francis, as Madame Colet, widow of a wealthy perfumer, and her two untiring suitors, played by a subdued Charles Ruggles as the Major, and Edward Everett Horton, as Francois, his rival.

Herbert Marshall, an English actor, brings to "Trouble in Paradise" a combined impression of Clive Brook, Clark Gable and Robert Montgomery, without ceasing to be Herbert Marshall.

The inimitable Hopkins is at her very best as Lily, the beautiful pickpocket. Her opening scenes as a bogus countess with Gaston as a bogus count, are extremely amusing. The two "bogi" match wits, pick each others pockets, unmask each other, meanwhile dining in perfect good humor, and end up by falling in love.

The story, full of innuendo and small incident in nice sequence, would spoil in the telling.

Kay Francis does the best she can with a decorative but superficial role. The "trouble" in "Trouble in Paradise" is very evident. But what is the "paradise" is not quite so apparent.

Films to Get Jump On Beer

BY HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 2.—Within a few weeks Hollywood producers will be busier than a bunch of congressmen over the question of beer.

Latest company to hop into the red hot issue of the day is RKO, which plans to rush into production on "Bugaboo," an original story by Bartlett Cormack, former Chicago newspaperman and now associate producer.

As author of "The Racket," Cormack started the epidemic of gangster melodramas, and he still is in the vanguard of the new cycle. Two other companies, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with "Beer," and Charles Rogers, with "Legal Racket," are ahead of him.

In "Bugaboo," Cormack writes of the beer gangs, but also widens the canvas to include the entire reorganization of the underworld to meet the challenge of a country without prohibition.

* * *

Latest star to go on a diet, and pardon my chuckle, is Will Rogers. That airplane trip over South America agreed with him so well that he put on 14 pounds. Now it's pineapple and lamb chops, just like an actress.

Will Rogers

Bill Desmond is passing around cigars. A baby girl was born Tuesday to his wife, Mary McIvor, former Universal star. This is their second child. They'll call her Mary Lou.

A chap is trying to collect $10,000 from Vic McLaglen for a broken nose that he claims to have received during the filming of a picture. He says Vic did it with his elbow.

Two of Hollywood's western stars were working on the set yesterday in the care of nurses. They were Tom Tyler, a recent pneumonia victim, and Tom Mix, who's had a touch of influenza . . . In hasty reparation, let me say that Charles Furthmann was captain of the Notre Dame football team in 1893 instead of 1889. He tells me that three girls read the article and called up to cross him off the list. As a matter of fact, Charles was office boy for Mark Hanna in 1896.

The title of the Kate Smith picture has been changed from "Moon Song" to "Hello Everybody." The first title will be retained for one of the numbers composed by Sam Coslow and Arthur Johnson . . . They're still talking about the party Tallulah Bankhead threw to celebrate the signing of her new Warner contract.

Kate Smith

Saw Dolores Del Rio, Cedric Gibbons, Virginia Bruce and Virginia Cherrill at the opening of the German picture, "Maedchen in Uniform" . . . Clad in a brown masculine suit and wearing a soft felt hat, Marlene Dietrich drew many an eye in the Paramount lunch room. She and Josef von Sternberg were exclaiming over photographs of her daughter, Maria, also clad in trousers.

Stanley Star, Clara Bow, Great

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Clara Bow still has "It." She proved it in her characterization in "Call Her Savage," which opened yesterday on the Stanley screen. The charm and appeal of this swell little actress appear even more attractive in her reappearance as a screen figure than they did in some of the cheap stories that preceded her retirement — films that had as their only excuse the lure of the name of a flaming personality that had flashed ever since Miss Bow, as a virtual child, "stole the picture" in a photoplay called "Down To the Sea in Ships."

Clara Bow will startle the most blase film patrons in her grand portrayal in "Call Her Savage." Most of them have got past the stage of being electrified by any performance, but they certainly will be electrified by emotional impulses that dart in all directions from the screen in her comeback picture.

A WILLFUL GIRL

"Call Her Savage" is the story of a willful girl, a petulant type with a strain of cruelty in her, and yet a character that wins sympathy at once, for one feels that all she needs to make her adorable is for someone to give her a good spanking. And really that is the theme of the story—the need of a spanking—but there is much drama, and tragedy, even, before she herself realizes it. To her credit, it is herself, who finally finds out what is the matter with her character, and at the fadeout, there is promise of happiness after years of turmoil.

She learns that it was all in her blood, partly an inheritance that had extended "even unto the third and fourth generation."

A WIFE FOR A DAY

The specific details cover the story of a girl of the Southwest, whose father, unable to curb her, sends her to a fashionable boarding school. At her "coming out" party her engagement is to be announced to one she dislikes, so she takes things into her own hands and weds somebody else. Her husband is a playboy and they live together only a day. Later she experiences motherhood, the trials of descent from riches to poverty, the loss of her child, the rise to affluence again, divorce and final promise of happiness.

The story covers many years, and for swift movement, has to become episodic in many places, but it is the characterization that will grip you, so the jumps do not matter. Monroe Owsley is fine as the playboy. Estelle Taylor is appealing as Miss Bow's mother, a descendant of western pioneers.

Flying Aces Among Show Boat Acts

Cornell and Enther, known as the Flying Aces, are appearing in the current Show Boat cabaret. The act recently returned from Europe. It played the Winter Garden in Berlin for 16 consecutive weeks. Dorothy Bushey, Elaine Forster and others appear in the floor show. Jack Bruce and his orchestra continue.

Dressy

Kate Smith Leases Blue's Home

Kate Smith, now in Hollywood making a starring picture for Paramount, has leased the home of Monte Blue in Beverly Hills. The home has a swimming pool and a tennis court, which suits Kate exactly for she is an expert in both sports.

Miss Bennett In Fulton

By MARY SHINE

Constance Bennett is the star in the Fulton this week, in "Rockabye," which began yesterday. Miss Bennett takes a hand at tear-jerking, but, as a dramatic actress, she fails to click in this film. She's stilted, unnatural, makes her audience conscious of her "acting."

In "Rockabye," she plays a great actress with a very shady past. One of her affairs becomes public property at the trial of an ex-sweetheart, and the adorable little girl she has adopted and loves is taken from her because of her reputation.

After a trip to Europe to console herself, Constance decides to produce as her next play, a drama called "Rockabye," the author of which is played by Joel McCrea. Paul Lukas, as Constance's manager, objects to the play, as it will revive everything she has tried to forget.

Constance falls in love with Joel, but difficulties arise, as Joel is married, and his wife suddenly has a baby son, preventing his divorce. Right then and there, before your eyes, ladies and gentlemen, Constance runs the "gamut of human emotions before making the supreme sacrifice," as they said of the good old "melle-rdramers." But good old Paul Lukas is right there to comfort her, so don't cry little girl, don't cry.

New Movies On Screen

A large cast, including Gary Cooper, George Raft, Wynne Gibson, Jack Oakie, Charlie Ruggles and W. C. Fields, will be seen on the Penn's screen in "If I Had a Million," opening today.

Tomorrow night marks the finis of the screen version of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" in the Aldine, after a two weeks' showing.

The Davis and the Regent will present identical double bills Saturday. They will be "They Call It Sin," featuring Loretta Young, and "Sherlock Holmes," with Clive Brook and Miriam Jordan.

"Red Dust," starring Clark Gable and Jean Harlow, will open in the Enright tomorrow.

Opening Saturday, the screen feature in the Sheridan Square will be Paul Muni in "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang."

"Town Scandals," a burlesque featuring Alice Duval, a singing and dancing principal, will open in the Academy with a midnight show Sunday.

You . . against all other Women and They against You!

ONE against the other—women must compete—in this game of life and love. Happy the girl who wins! Dejected and dull, the loser. Dull, indeed, as we suspect her skin is!

What's the good of a fine nose, and what does a well molded chin profit you, if your skin is dull? Perhaps it isn't your fault—or nature's—but could it be the soap you use?

Camay, the Soap of Beautiful Women, is soothing—mild. Your skin couldn't have gentler care, if you were a queen or a baby. Let the finest of all beauty soaps keep your skin soft and lovely! It costs you less and it serves you better!

NEVER SUCH VALUES IN SOAP

Camay's new price . . . and Camay's new package are the sensation of the beauty soap world! Women are flocking to buy! New thousands every day! Women keen for value, keen for beauty, in themselves and in their soap.

Never has a soap so fine sold at a price so low! Camay gives a more profuse lather, and comes in a gay new dress, in Cellophane. The price is so low, you can afford a dozen cakes!

CAMAY THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Broadways Of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE GENOA-ROME EXPRESS, ITALY: This train is bouncing along at a terrific rate and my typewriter is doing a Gilda Gray on my lap as I try to pound out this column. More than that, my head is aching, my stomach seems undecided, my feet hurt and my eyes are strained. Otherwise, I feel fine. Hurrah for travel!

I must, however, fight on. It must never be said that a Hellinger tried to travel around the world and got only as far as Italy. Why, I'd be in the same class as the hen-pecked husband who tried to leave his wife and made up before he could deliver so much as one decent crack at his mother-in-law!

Seriously, though, this has been a decidedly tough day. No sleep at all last night, and on the go since early this morning. Along about 10 o'clock, I was seized with the brilliant notion that it might be a swell idea to travel by a car a part of the way to Rome and then take the train the rest of the way.

From my automobile experience of yesterday, I should have known better. Only a madman or a columnist doesn't learn by experience. I not only decided to go by car for a portion of the distance, but I also hired Angelo, the wild chauffeur from Genoa who used to drive a cab in Brooklyn.

It was Angelo who pointed out that a short automobile ride as far as a town called Spezia would freshen me for the long train ride that was to follow.

"You got my word, buddy," he assured me in typical Brooklynese, "that my drivin' don't get you nervous at all. We'll drive through the mountains and I'll be as careful as if I was drivin' my own mother. By the time we get through, you'll thank me for choppin' so much off your train ride."

That one phrase — "drive through the mountains"— should have put some sense into my dome. But it evidently takes far more than that. I permitted Angelo to talk me into the idea. And it was shortly before noon when we started for Spezia. I think that's the way you spell it, but I'm not giving anybody any guarantee.

From the way that Angelo spoke, I had an idea that Spezia was perhaps an hour away on a fine, clear road. We were riding 10 minutes when I learned my mistake. The roads were all of the same type that I had gone over yesterday. And each turn was more dangerous than the one before.

After driving some two-and-a-half hours, we stopped in a small town called Rapello for a bite to eat.

"Have we much further to go?" I asked Angelo.

"Naw," he assured me. "It's just a little way ahead. Your train stops here, but it don't get to Spezia until 5 o'clock. We got plenty of time."

During luncheon, the boss himself waited upon me. That was probably due to the fact that he had no waiters. At any rate, he spoke English, which was something of a Godsend.

"How long a drive to Spezia from here?" I asked him.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"Not far," he returned. "The roads are dangerous, but you can make it easily in three hours."

I hastily swallowed a piece of spaghetti—which was the first piece of the stuff I had been able to swallow. And I sought out Angelo.

"Look here, you Jeff Barnett," I cried. "We can't make that 5 o'clock train at Spezia. It's too late."

Angelo pushed his plate away and glared at me.

"Who says it's too late?" he almost shouted. "All I gotta do is put on some speed. It's only 80 miles—and we got an hour and a half!"

Five minutes later I paid off Angelo and caught this train from the town I was in . . .

Compared to our American Pullman system, the system of first class travel in Italy is strange indeed. You can buy all the tickets you want at any station, but that by no means entitles you to a seat. Every car is divided into some 10 compartments that seat six passengers each. If all the seats are taken when you board the train, you stand up—and you like it. Well, you may not like it—but you stand anyhow.

I was still some seven hours from Rome when a passenger alighted at some God-forsaken station. I had been standing 50 minutes and I fell into the seat with a sigh of relief.

But my relief was short-lived. There were five men in the compartment, and they were all stout and sleepy. The gentleman at the door growled something unintelligible and closed the aforementioned door very tightly. Both windows were completely shut. The gentleman to my left must have been eating gorgonzola cheese: the gentleman to my right must have kept him company. The gentleman across the way shifted his feet from the seat to my lap and snored in perfect harmony with the puffing of the engine.

Tired as I was, I got up and stood outside again . . .

They have no porters on these trains. If you want something, you try to get it yourself. And there being nothing to get, I suppose they figure that they need no porters. They do have one bird who wanders through the train every hour and peers at you very dubiously. But he wears a full military uniform and packs a gun. He's not looking for orders. He's looking for trouble.

At Pisa, by the magiv potion of several American dollars, I was given a private compartment in one of the sleeping cars. That meant that I had a little space all to myself and that I could write this column in comparative peace. The elderly lady in the next compartment did complain about the noise of the typing—but she couldn't find a porter to register the complaint. And I, of course, couldn't understand her.

Incidentally, I always thought that Pisa was a tower of some sort. Now I find out that it's just another railroad station. You see how cock-eyed history can be? . . .

I had dinner on the train about an hour ago—and it proved once again that life is just a bowl of spaghetti. I have now been away from New York about 10 days—or is it 10 years? —and there hasn't been a meal that they didn't toss spaghetti at me. I suppose it all goes to prove that there is nothing noodle under the sun.

They have a novel way of serving you on these trains. The waiter dumps a tiny portion of something on your plate, stands at attention and asks if you want another portion. I was polite and told him as best I could that I would wait until I had finished the first portion.

When I was through with the mouthful, I called him back and said I would have some more. Then he said it was all gone. Oh, well . . .

The train is now nearing Rome and I am nearing exhaustion. I think I'll go to my hotel and sleep for a week. I've got to do something to remind me that I'm still a part of show business . . .

Dr. Lloyd to Speak At Settlement

Dr. Clinton Lloyd, of the drama department, Duquesne University, will be the opening guest speaker in the drama lecture series sponsored by the Green Room Studio of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, this evening. His topic will be "Modern Drama." The Young Players' Guild of the Settlement is to present a comedy, "It Happened in Hollywood," Sunday evening, December 4, in the Theresa L. Kaufmann Theater. Mrs. Kenneth Mulholland is directing "The Sleeping Beauty and "The Ring With the Magic Power," which are to be presented by the Children's Theater of the Settlement, December 18.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Ina Claire is said to be an indefatigable worker. To her no place is more attractive than the theater. She has been known to do three performances in succession. These were a regular matinee, and a night performance, with a bit of volunteer work in between as an actress in a one-act play for the benefit of the Actors' Fund, from which she had to hurry to be back in the theater in time for the evening curtain of her own play. She will make her first stage appearance here in several reasons next week, when she will be presented as the star of S. N. Behrman's new comedy, "Biography," a Theater Guild production that will open Monday in the Nixon.

* * *

"The Devil Passes," which will be presented in the Pitt next week by the George Sharp Players, was written by Benn W. Levy, a young British playwright, whose previous contributions to the stage have been "Topaz," "Art and Mrs. Bottle," "Mrs. Moonlight" and "Springtime For Henry." For this production Manager Sharp will have Hunter Gardner, guest player, in an important role. Alden Chase will literally "play the devil," since his Satanic Majesty will be the basis of Mr. Chase's part. Hugh Banks, who has just returned to the Pitt, and other members of the company also will be seen in "The Devil Passes."

When Miriam Hopkins becomes angry she is plenty mad. So she was plenty angry when Paramount wanted her to play a role she didn't like—not even when the leading man was to be Clark Gable. So she ups and hops to New York to ask her lawyer if she had to play roles she didn't like. Meantime she has been offered a different story, but at last reports she was still in New York—or as still an actress with a mad on can be.

"Let's All go Ahead— the Time for Waiting is Past"

Walter P. Chrysler talks straight to his 7,232 Plymouth Dealers and invites the Public to "Listen In"

... he has spent his lifetime building fine cars ... Walter P. Chrysler, pioneer Automobile Manufacturer.

YOU and everybody else are interested in making business better . . . right now! We introduced a new Plymouth Six two weeks ago with remarkable success.

Our Plymouth factory is running full force. We have put a lot of men to work, not only in our factory but in hundreds of other factories which supply us materials.

We do not believe in waiting around ourselves, nor in asking anyone to wait around for us. The way to get things started is to start . . . and if you want to start something that will keep on going, especially in these times, it has to be good. It can't be just ordinary.

That was the idea back of the new Plymouth Six. Last year's Plymouth was a good car . . . a remarkably good car. We might have offered it again this year by adding an inch or two of wheelbase, a few new gadgets and changing the radiator a trifle.

However, that did not seem to be the best thing to do right now. We wanted an outstanding value in the low-priced field. An automobile we could sincerely sponsor as America's next Number One Car.

It had to be so good people would want it . . . so low-priced they could afford it. A completely new car . . . overwhelming in its appeal in style, performance, price and everything else people demand.

To do this required a lot of money for engineering and testing. Then to produce these newly designed cars at the lowest possible cost required new equipment. Altogether, we spent more than $9,000,000 on this part of our Plymouth Six program.

In addition, we have already bought $42,000,000 worth of materials required to make this new Plymouth Six . . . and don't forget that is going to help business.

We are buying steel and glass and leather, wool and cotton, lumber and rubber . . . and a thousand and one things that go to make an automobile . . . which means that other men are being employed in other plants and mines and farms. Men who are earning wages to be spent for food and clothing and shelter . . . and automobiles as well.

Everyone buys when he can afford to. And when he buys, he makes work for someone else. That makes another customer for someone. And so it goes. It rolls up pretty fast. When everyone gets to working and buying, good times will be here.

The new Plymouth Six is now on your salesroom floor. It is priced at $60 less than last year. It is already on the streets and people are talking about it everywhere.

One point I want to make with our dealers is this: Do not criticize your competitors' products. There is no profit in that. It won't put a man to work or sell a single automobile. Don't worry about what your competitors do. Conversation won't equip an automobile with Floating Power, a Safety-Steel Body or Hydraulic Four-Wheel Brakes.

Sell the quality in our cars. The public is fair-minded and appreciative. People are buying Plymouth because it is presented honestly, fearlessly . . . by straightforward methods that are as sincere as the car itself.

Don't let yourself lose sight of our goal. We want to make Plymouth America's next Number One Car on its merits. We built value first, because we want people to buy now . . . a Plymouth if we can convince them . . . some other automobile if we can't.

So let the buyer be the judge. Never try to hold up a sale. Shoot square with yourself, your customer, your competitor. Ask the public to "Look at All Three" low-priced cars and . . . "May the Best Car Win."

NO DOUBT you are making plans for interesting Sunday afternoons at home for several weeks. This is the big season for Sunday suppers. They can be so cozy and informal. This meal is a splendid way out for the young hostess in a small apartment. The Sunday supper can be a lap supper as easily as not, and given atmosphere in being served by candlelight.

There will be clever discussions, accounts of travels and perhaps one guest asked to tell of some usual experience or travel. The rest should be spontaneous. For refreshment time here are some main course suggestions that might interest you.

DEVILED EGGS WITH CAVIAR—Hard cook four eggs, peel, cut in halves and remove yolks. Mash, add one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon dry mustard and two tablespoons mayonnaise and season with salt and pepper. Chill. Have one two-ounce can caviar very cold, season with few drops each of lemon juice and onion juice and spread over the tops of the eggs, leaving a ring of white showing. Tuck each half egg in a nest of cress or lettuce and garnish with rosette of mayonnaise. Serves eight, one-half egg to a serving.

* * *

DEVILED CHEESE FONDUE—Spread 1¼-ounce can deviled ham evenly over 3 thick slices bread and cut in cubes. Put alternate layers of the bread cubes and ½ cup grated cheese in a buttered baking dish, seasoning each layer with salt and pepper. Beat 2 eggs thoroughly, add 2-3 cup milk and pour over. Dot with one tablespoon butter and bake in a slow oven until firm and the bread on top slightly browns, 20 to 25 minutes. Serves 4.

* * *

CHICKEN HASH—Cut 1 12-ounce can chicken up fine and add 2 cups cold boiled potato, cut fine. Season to taste with salt and pepper and add ½ cup cream or top milk. Press into a hot skillet with enough fat to prevent sticking and brown well, turning often with a wide spatula to promote even cooking and browning. Serves 6 to 8.

And for a tasty dessert to serve at dinner as a late evening supper dessert:

FROZEN FRUIT PUDDING—½ cup sugar, ½ cup water, 2 eggs, 1 orange, ½ cup whipping cream, 1 tablespoon gelatin, ½ cup dry bread crumbs, ½ cup mixed seeded raisins, currants, candied cherries, ¼ cup nutmeats.

Boil sugar and water 5 minutes. Pour slowly over beaten egg yolks, beating constantly. Add the gelatin which has been soaked in 2 tablespoons of cold water. (If the egg and syrup mixture is not hot enough to dissolve the gelatin, put it over hot water for a few minutes.) Cool. Add bread crumbs and fold in the beaten egg whites. Add fruits and nuts and last fold in whipped cream. Freeze in tray 3 to 4 hours. Serves 4 to 6.

* * *

And here is a jellied meat ring made in a tea-flavored gelatin that is a splendid variation for Sunday supper:

JELLIED MEAT RING—2 cups finely diced cooked meat, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, ¼ cup cold tea infusion, ¾ cup hot tea infusion, ¼ cup vinegar, 2 hard cooked eggs, sliced, ½ cup mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup diced celery, 1 chopped pimento, ½ chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons finely minced onion.

Soak the gelatin in cold tea infusion and dissolve in the hot India tea infusion. Add vinegar and salt. Cool. When mixture begins to jell mix in all the other ingredients excepting the eggs. Rinse a mold in cold water, arrange egg slices on bottom and sides, then pour in meat or fowl mixture. Set in a cold place until firm. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise. Serves six.

Serve brown bread and butter sandwiches with this, and have relishes and canberry jelly on the table. Serve layer cake, frosted cup cakes or junket custard and coffee, chocolate or tea for dessert.

* * *

ICE BOX ROLLS—2 cakes compressed yeast, 4 tablespoons lukewarm water, 2 cups boiling water, ½ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, 4 tablespoons fat, 3 eggs, 8 cups flour.

Crumble yeast, add lukewarm water. Add sugar, salt and fat to boiling water, let stand until lukewarm. Add yeast, mixture, eggs and half the flour. Beat three minutes. Add remaining flour. Pour into greased bowl, cover tightly, store in very cold place.

When rolls are desired, pinch off bits of dough, shape and place side by side on a greased pan. Let rise until doubled in bulk and bake 15 minutes in moderate oven.

Apples Found to Be Valuable Energy-Producing Food

The vitamin and mineral substances, such as potash and soda, increase the nutritive worth of this popular fruit.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York

All fruits are pleasing to the taste, but I can think of no other fruit that is more popular or universally enjoyed than the apple. This fruit, known to the ancients, has been improved by cultivation.

In its wild state, it resembled the crabapple. It was small, acid and bitter. The fruit of today is of better grade and improved flavor.

The apple has become remarkably popular because of its refreshing taste and tempting appearance. Methods of cultivation and handling have added to its value.

Apples are grown in many countries, but they thrive in this country because of favorable soil and climate. Today, the United States leads in the apple-growing industry. Watshington, New York, Virginia, Arkansas and Californnia are the most important apple-growing sections.

PRODUCES ENERGY

The apple contains 82 per cent of water 12 per cent starch and sugar, and the balance consists of ash, cellulose and acids. The vitamin and mineral substances, such as potash and soda, increase the nutritive worth of this popular fruit. The high sugar content makes it a valuable energy-producing food.

It is true that apples contain acids, but these are changed in the labcratory of the body, actualy producing an alkaline reaction. On this account they aid in the prevention of acidity.

Like other fruits, the apple possesses a natural roughage. This aids in overcoming any tendency toward constipation. The strained fruit or apple pulp has been given to infants to regulate intestinal action.

Due to its pleasant and tart taste the apple stimulates appetite. Compared to other fruits the apple is more edible and contains little indigestible matter. Even the core tastes good. Providing the apple is fresh and ripe, it may be eaten with benefit.

GIVEN TO INFANTS

As I have suggested, the apple has been recommended, of late, in the feeding of infants and young children. Strained apple sauce is now given the infant as early as the ninth month. This fruit has been reported to be extremely beneficial in the treatment of diarrhea and other intestinal disturbances of children.

When the fruit is given to infants, only ripe and mellow apples should be used. They should be well mashed or pressed through a sieve. This aids the infants to swallow and digest the nourishing fruit.

Apples are always the family's favorite fruit. They can be purchased all year round and are easily stored. There are many recipes for apple dishes that appeal to all. Apples help make up a menu for any meal of the day and at all seasons of the year.

Doors Foil Theft Of 400-Pound Stove

HILLSBORO, Ore., Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Thieves who broke into M. Meehan's house attempted to steal a 400-pound stove, but weren't so hot about the idea when they found the doors of the house were too narrow. They did, however, make a clean get-away with the plumbing fixtures and the hot water tank.

Relatives Sometime Become Too Domineering

No, it isn't mother-in-law this time. You might call it The Story of a Squatter.

And what Bob wants to know is how to do some plain and fancy squelching. Otherwise, according to him, Home is Going Haywire, and no mistake.

Dear Sally:

I don't know what you'll think of this Pet Peeve of mine, but I hope you can suggest something to do about it. I need it.

For some time now a relative has been staying with our family. That, in itself, wouldn't matter; but this is a queer sort of relative. She always takes it on herself to get in on everybody else's business. She especially makes her presence conspicuous when any of us has a friend over. Then she takes complete charge of all the conversation—and the thorough ruining of any plans we may have for entertaining.

FRIENDS STAY AWAY

The problem I'd like to have solved is how can one politely squelch such an individual, and make her realize that she is hurting our attempts to entertain? Of course it would be very bad manners not to introduce her to our friends when she is living in the house; yet each and every time she meets any of our friends she seems to take a fiendish delight in making us miserable, and in having her own nervous and talkative personality dominate everything.

She is beyond the stage of taking a hint, and although some of my friends realize now that she always intrudes on our meetings at my home, they don't like to seem impolite themselves and stay away. I don't like to stop inviting them over, either. I enjoy sharing the hospitality of my home.

But the situation is getting very much strained. I feel terribly put out. Unless something changes her, I feel I will be forced to give up having friends come to the house to visit. Then I will lose them.

What can a fellow do? I have been very patient, and haven't lost my temper yet. But—

BOBBY.

DON'T BE RUN OVER

Well, you do seem to have troubles. And if things are the way you say, you certainly have my sympathy! I've been pestered with squatters, too.

However, you haven't told me how old this "relative" is, or how old you are, or how she happens to be in your home. So I'm sort of in the dark about how to answer you. Are you sure that you're not just having a spasm of kid jealousy? Are you sure that you're not merely resenting an "outsider's" efforts to be one of you? If that's what you're doing, you'd better watch your step, Sonny, and try to understand and sympathize with her loneliness.

On the other hand, if she is actually as bad as you say, and you're old enough to know what you're doing, then give her the works! Tell her, in plain English, that you're willing enough to be friendly, but you won't stand for her running things and spoiling your plans. Then be pleasant to her, but go about your own affairs, and run them to suit yourself, no matter what she does.

You don't have to let yourself be run over. She'll probably sulk, but she will get over it—or move out.

And don't harbor any grudges. After all, meeting situations like that, and not letting them get your goat, is just part of living. It's up to you to take them in your stride, son.

Every Wife Can Be As Diplomatic As 'First Lady,' Says Fay King

By FAY KING

The wives of our Presidents are a great inspiration.

It is not easy to live in the limelight. In her eminent position she must be a credit to her husband in every word and action.

Very few husbands have reached that highest office of President, but every husband's career should be as important to his wife.

Every wife can be inspired by the President's wife. If she will, she can be as gracious and diplomatic in her home as is that wife in the First Home of our Land.

She will not stoop to petty, or unbecoming words or actions.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FCLLETT

Persons employed will find a great comfort in a change of footwear upon their arrival home in the evenings. A fresh pair of shoes after the day's work seems to take away a great deal of that tired feeling.

There's a good deal of whispering going on about the return of false hair, though you mustn't call it that; beauty shops prefer the term "extra hair," which is right and proper since all hair once grew upon the human head and therefore can't be false. The latest creation is a bandeau of curls, thick and wide in front, narrowing at the back. Maybe it will land on ladies' heads. Maybe not. Nobody can make a guess.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Daily Bath Helps You Keep Fit!

During the summer months many thousands of persons indulge in bathing as a daily sport. As the weather becomes colder, outdoor bathing is no longer permissible. Then bathing becomes an indoor sport, but usually is not participated in as frequently as during the warm weather.

Dr. Copeland

I regard the daily bath to be almost as important for health as good food. It has many benefits. It is stimulating to the weak and relaxing to the tense. It aids the appetite, cleanses the skin and rests the tired nerves. In old times the bath was considered merely a means to cleanliness. Today it is accepted as part of the program to maintain health and to prevent disease.

Lack of bathing permits the oil of the skin and the perspiration to accumulate on the surface. This blocks up the pores and in a measure prevents the skin from excreting poisonous substances. On the other hand, daily bathing stimulates the waste disposing function of the skin. It leaves the skin in condition to help the body rid itself of poisonous substances. Likewise, its activity leaves less work for the kidneys and lungs to do.

Centuries ago bathing was used to cure and to prevent certain diseases. This method of treatment is called "hydrotherapy." In hydrotherapy both cold and hot water are used. Though this treatment is not as popular as in former years, it is regarded as valuable in certain diseases. It is useful in the after-care treatment of infantile paralysis.

I am often asked whether cold showers or cold baths are beneficial. This is a question which everybody must decide for himself. If you are accustomed to bathing in cold water and feel no ill effects, you may safely continue doing it. On the other hand, a cold stinging shower or bath may be detrimental when the body is not accustomed to cold water. In any event the cold bath should always be followed by a brisk rubdown. This will start the circulation and prevent chilling of the body.

The cold bath is tonic, but not cleansing. For cleansing purposes the warm bath is the kind to take. This should be followed by a cold spray and vigorous rubbing with a Turkish towel.

Bear in mind that a daily bath will help you to keep fit. It aids in maintaining better circulation, quiets the nerves, induces sleep, protects against colds and gives relief from pains and aches. No one should overlook its advantages.

Start the day with a warm tub bath. This may be followed by a quick shower and rub-down.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Chaperon's Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A few months ago I was chaperon for a sorority at a lake resort. I recently received a letter of thanks from the secretary of the sorority, and I would be pleased to have you advise me whether or not a letter of this kind needs a reply?

I had never met any of the girls, with the exception of two, previous to that time, and as we have nothing in common there is little possibility of my making contact with any of them.

P.

While this letter, strictly speaking, doesn't need a reply, I would like to have you answer it, for I think that it was a charming gesture for the sorority to make, and it would show them that you are an appreciative person. Something like this would be about right, I think:

Dear Miss Allen:

You were most kind to write me such a charming note of appreciation, and I thank you with all my heart. I enjoyed so much going with your sorority to —— Lake . . . and it was a special pleasure to be with a group of such unusually charming and friendly girls. It was a memory-making occasion for me, and I thank you for giving me the opportunity of having it.

My devoted greetings to you and the girls of the sorority, and again my appreciation.

Very sincerely yours,

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Theory Confirmed by Saleswoman's Record

"Mrs. Barnes, of Whitney Hall." The clear voice of the mistress of the school floated up to the window from which had come the query "Who is there?"

"I am sorry to trouble you at this hour, Miss Jenkins," Mrs. Barnes went on, "but it is vitally necessary that I should see you. Don't stop to dress. The only man with us will wait outside."

"I'll be right down." Miss Jenkins evidently was a woman who wasted no words in idle questioning. A minute later, when she threw open the door, we saw a tall, comely woman with hair just beginning to turn white. Her feet were thrust into slippers and her figure enveloped in a kimono, but she radiated kindly efficiency.

"Sit down," she said, when Mrs. Barnes had introduced us. "What can I do for you?"

She listened without comment as Mrs. Barnes told of the disappearance of the girls, and of our desire to know whether or not they had purchased two of the new reversible coats, plaid wool on one side and red cloth on the other.

"I am almost certain they did," she said, as soon as Mrs. Barnes had finished. "Mr. Smith was afraid the coats wouldn't go. He stocked them up on my belief that the girls of Whitney Hall would like them. We have sold five already, four to Whitney Hall girls, and more are looking longingly at them."

"You'll probably have to restock, if I know my girls," Mrs. Barnes said. "A craze like that, especially when sponsored by popular girls like Marion and Carolyn, runs like wildfire through the school."

THEORY CONFIRMED

"That's what I counted on," Miss Jenkins said. "Now, I'm sure I know both the girls whose movements you are tracing, but I fortunately have a memorandum in my desk of the girls to whom those coats were sold. I wanted to keep a private record, to bolster or discourage my judgment when stocking up the next time. If you'll just excuse me a second."

She went into the next room, returning almost immediately, a slip of paper in her hand.

"Here it is, in black and white," she said, showing us the slip upon which the notation, "plaid reversible coats" appeared, followed by five names, headed by "Marion Morton, Whitney Hall," and "Carolyn Brixton, Whitney Hall."

As I read them, I felt as if I had just one lap of a race behind me.

"This settles one point," I said, but Mrs. Barnes quickly interrupted me.

"Yes, indeed; but we must hurry back to the school," she said, and I saw that she feared I might be going to name the thing settled by the information. I did not waste time, once we were again outside after thanking Miss Jenkins and binding her to secrecy, in protesting that I meant to say nothing more.

Mrs. Barnes was so vigilant in the protection of the reputation of the girls under her care that I was perfectly willing to have her think she was guarding them against my possible indiscretion of speech.

TELLS HARRY

Harry Underwood came up to us as the front door of the cottage closed.

"Don't tell me here," he said in a low voice. "Wait until we get back to school."

But I noticed that he made record time over the few blocks back to Whitney Hall, and we were no sooner back in the sitting room than I spoke quickly.

"Both Marion and Carolyn have bought reversible sport coats within a few days, plaid on one side, red on the other, purchases of which their mothers as yet know nothing, apparently, although the information is probably contained in letters already in the mail.

"This confirms the observation of their mates that they were wearing plaid coats upon their departure from the school, and it is extremely probable that they turned the coats after they left the other two girls, so that they appeared wearing red ones."

"Then," Harry Underwood said, a bit breathlessly, "that makes it almost certain that after all they were the girls entering the automobile—the ones seen by the neighbor of the girl, Rose. That gives us the first definite clew, and we've wasted no time by our momentary shelving of it. Brock couldn't get at that man tonight without spreading this all over town, but he'll manage to get at him early tomorrow."

"Doesn't it settle another point also?" I asked quietly. "The girls either recognized the man driving that car, or he made them believe he was a messenger from one of us, bearing a vital excuse for their entering it."

Contract Bridge -:-

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Stopping in Time

There is a certain type of Bridge player who counts the hand lost on which game has not been contracted for. Aggressive bidding is generally much more successful than timid bidding, but the good Bridge player generally follows a middle course and draws precise inferences from the bidding, which guide him in stopping just short of the brink of disaster.

In the recent Vanderbilt Cup matches, one of the hands dealt in the qualifying rounds gave the North player an opportunity to display his caution or his recklessness. The cautious players won. Those who heedlessly failed to draw precise inferences from the information conveyed by the partner's bids met disaster.

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A J 7 4 ♡ 7 ◇ A K 10 ♣ A J 9 5 3
♠ 10 8 6 3 ♡ A K J 9 2 ◇ Q 6 ♣ K 7	North / West / East / South	♠ Q 9 5 2 ♡ 6 3 ◇ J 5 3 ♣ 10 8 6 2
	♠ K ♡ Q 10 8 5 4 ◇ 9 8 7 4 2 ♣ Q 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1 ♣	Pass
1 ♡ (1)	Pass	1 ♠ (2)	Pass
2 ♣ (3)	Pass	2 N T (4)	Pass
3 ♣ (5)	Pass	Pass (6)	Pass

1—A much shaded response, but still the hand contains about 1 honor-trick and partner may well have strength in hearts, in which case a game is by no means improbable.

2—North's hand, containing as it does more than 4 honor-tricks, justifies the bidding of this shaded suit.

3—The first hint of danger.

6—North reluctantly passes.

East's Opening lead was the heart 6, which West won with the 9, and elected to return a diamond. This was won in the North hand and a small spade led, which was won with the King in Dummy. The diamond was returned and won in the closed hand, and the Ace of spades cashed. Now a spade was ruffed with the club 4, and a heart returned to the closed hand and ruffed. The last spade was then led by North and ruffed with the Queen, and a diamond led from the Dummy, upon which West discarded a heart, and East won with the Knave. East now had nothing remaining in his hand except trumps, so was forced to lead through West's King, up to North's tenace. Thus played, North lost two trumps, one heart and one diamond, and fulfilled his contract.

At other tables, North blithely disregarded his partner's efforts to keep the bidding low and undertook a contract of three notrump, which was defeated by 3 tricks for a penalty of 450 points, as neither East nor West felt strong enough to double.

TODAY'S QUESTION

I wonder if you could give me the set-up on the famous Mississippi Heart Hand?

Answer—The story goes that a gambler in the Mississippi steamboat days wagered a large sum on making a Grand Slam on the following hand:

♠ A K Q J ♡ A K Q J 10 9 ◇ A K Q ♣ —

♠ — ♡ 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 ◇ — ♣ A K Q J 10 9

Peel Onions Under Water

Pretty maiden, dry those tears. You can now peel onions without weeping into the soup. A simple trick, but one your grandmother probably never knew. Just peel them under water, and you won't shed a single tear.

-:- Hints for the Household -:-

Turn off the electric iron as soon as you hear a bell that must be answered.

A small window can be given extra width and height by setting the curtain rods beyond the casing on each side and at the top, using material for draperies heavy enough to cover the deception. You will be delighted with the extra width imparted to the window.

We are very apt to continue to wear coral beads after they have become dull and soiled and not realize it. Try washing them in a solution of one teaspoonful of borax to one pint of lukewarm water. Rinse in warm water and dry on a soft towel. You will be surprised at the change.

Oil splashes on delicately-colored wallpaper can be removed by moistening some fuller's earth with gasoline and covering the marks with it. Leave till perfectly dry, then brush off.

When boiling a fowl add a dessert-spoonful of vinegar to the water, as this tends to make the meat whiter and also adds to its tenderness. The same quantity should be added when boiling fish, as the flavor is much improved.

When using dripping for cakes, add the juice of a lemon; not only is the flavor of the cake improved, it tends to be lighter, also any fatty flavor sometimes given by dripping is removed.

To clean lizard-skin shoes make a paste with ordinary whiting and water, spread the paste on the shoes, leave on for 24 hours, then brush off. The shoes can then be polished with an ordinary shoe cream.

Pewter which is very blackened and tarnished can be restored by boiling it for about 20 minutes in some clean water in which a handful of hay has first been placed. Afterwards an occasional wash with warm soap and water, followed by a rub with a leather, will keep it in good condition.

Roll raised sweetened bread dough a half-inch thick and cut in triangle shapes and fry in deep hot fat; roll in powdered sugar and serve for luncheon or tea.

Egg stains on washable fabrics can be removed by soaking the garment in cold water for a short time before washing with soap and hot water in the usual way.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Smart children owe much to clothes that are juvenile yet smart. A charming frock for a young schoolgirl is a jumper model of red wool crepe with a guimpe of white and red plaided georgette.

On the cuff brim depends much of the smartness of the new turbans. A dinner model is of lacquered black velvet and has a bow knot of the fabric edged with silver sequins and a band made entirely of the paillettes.

Go away and wear a suitable traveling suit. An ideal model is of dark brown wool mixture with a swagger coat of seven-eighths length. It buttons high at the neck over a brown sweater with a patterned yoke, while the skirt is of the same material as the coat.

A gray sky in the world of fashion is indicated by the interest in this fabric. A lovely ensemble has a black broadcloth coat trimmed with masses of pale beige-gray fox. The accompanying frock is of pale gray crepe with a stitched belt and a high neckline, cowled at one side. There is a muff of the gray fox.

Step lightly in the new evening shoes, which are most delightful. A new model, a pump, combines black silk crepe with almond green crepe. It has pipings of silver kid and appliques of gold kid.

Hillside Grouping Shown in Housing Exhibit

By PENELOPE REDD

The exhibition of city planning which will close at Carnegie Institute on Sunday, December 4, has just had an important though delayed addition which should be seen to complete the picture of current progress in group housing. The collection concentrates on hillside group housing. This sturdy of housing economies was prepared during the past summer by Henry Wright, site planner for Chatham Village, in collaboration with a group of graduate architectural students.

Miss Redd

The study is remarkable for the clarity of its presentation and for the range of economic groups provided for by the plan. It is pertinent to Pittsburgh students of group housing inasmuch as the difficulties of hillside planning have been utilized in new and daring ways.

The gradients at the Buhl Foundation are about 10 per cent, while these suggested in the new study by Wright, range from 20 to 43 per cent. The architecture used to develop these plans is contemporary, featuring roof terraces in addition to gardens.

The hillside group housing requires thorough study and the exercise of the intelligence with the visual imagination. Anyone who is concerned, as all of us should be, with the important art of housing should reserve adequate time to study this stimulating project.

ASK FURLOUGHS BY U. S. ENDED

A resolution protesting continuation of the furlough provision in the economy law beyond the present fiscal year was adopted unanimously by the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union in Carpenters' Hall, Fourth avenue, last night. The secretary was ordered to send copies of the resolution to all members of Congress.

The furlough provision, affecting 700,000 workers in the federal service, was enacted at the last session of Congress, which reduced the earnings of the federal employes by one-twelfth. It was passed after serious objection had been made to a proposed cut in salaries as an economy measure.

Sponsors of the resolution said the average wage of federal workers is $1,440 annually.

Telegraph Company Manager Ends Life

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Dec. 2.—Sherman L. Waggoner, 39, manager of the Postal Telegraph office here, shot himself to death last night in the garage near his home, police reported. A shotgun was found near the body.

Waggoner's wife died about a year ago.

CASEY APPEALS IN SEAL DRIVE

Calling attention to official figures on Pittsburgh's health, which showed a total of 826 new cases of tuberculosis and 202 deaths from the disease in the first 10 months of 1932, John F. Casey, president of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, today appealed for generous support of the league's Christmas seal campaign to provide funds necessary to combat the disease.

The necessity of purchasing clothing for victims of the disease who are without funds, as well as providing carfare for many to come to the dispensary for treatment, Casey said, has added burden to the league's finances.

Inability of certain large donors of the past to contribute heavily to the cause this year, he said, has forced the league to rely almost entirely on the proceeds of the seal sale.

Homely, Awkward Hornbill Becomes One of Buck's Most Amusing Pets

CHAPTER XLIII.

Oscar the hornbill had a less strenuous career than Mike's, but it was not without its colorful moments. When I first got him he was the most grotesque-looking bird I'd ever seen—the homeliest and the awkwardest—and he didn't improve much. No hornbill is exactly what you'd call good-looking, but Oscar had an edge on most members of the family because he was a fledgling, positively nude except for a few pin feathers around the sides and ends of the wings, and a few on his sad-looking equivalent for a tail. He was a great ungainly-looking squab about the size of a full grown Plymouth Rock chicken and had a bluish skin that added to his weird appearance. He had the long yellow bill characteristic of the great pied hornbill (his particular species). It was six inches long and when open made a cavity large enough to accommodate a good-sized fist.

Full grown, this bird has a body as big as that of the American eagle and a great thick bill a foot long.

I found myself attracted to Oscar, the ungainliest member of an ungainly species. I suppose it was because he suggested a waddling pot-bellied comedian. For after a while Oscar got so fat his stomach touched the ground, and in his efforts to reach me in a hurry he would lose control of his short stubby legs and go over in a heap. It was my own fault that Oscar grew so corpulent.

FED BANANAS

He had a great facility for catching in his huge beak bananas thrown at him, a trick I made a mistake of letting my friends witness. The result was that wherever I went people were tossing bananas at Oscar for the fun of seeing him catch them.

I grew so fond of Oscar that I made a pet of him and for many months carried him everywhere with me. After a while he became one of the world's most traveled birds. The more he traveled the broader he got, which should establish for all time the truth of a well-known maxim.

His Indian travels alone were extensive. In a wire basket-cage he accompanied me to Agra, from there into the United Provinces and back down to Lahore, Karachi and Bombay, and from there down to Madras and back to Calcutta, with every stage of the journey growing more and more of a waddler. He was so full of bananas most of the time that I marveled at his ability to walk at all. It was a feat in itself to drag around so much weight.

After returning with Oscar from a series of collecting trips that took me practically all over the Asiatic continent, I wound up at the Grand Hotel at Calcutta. It was my turn to throw one of those teas (at which tea-drinking is not compulsory) and, to please a friend, among those I invited was an American lady whose head was swollen to pumpkin size by reason of her having recently been invited to Government House.

OSCAR SEES DOG

One of the humorous high spots of this part of the world is the grim determination with which ladies practice for weeks to curtsey in the approved style when presented to the Governor-General. This is about all that happens. They give the Governor a bow and have a cup of tea and go home. Some of them never get over it.

The lady in question spent all of her time raving, in an accent I had never heard before, about "that WAHN-DERFUL reception at Government House." To take my mind off the imbecilic female I started fooling around with Oscar, whom I had let out of his cage so that he might say hello to the company.

Oscar seemed to be having a good time until he caught a glimpse of the dog—a supercilious little Pekinese—that sat in the raving lady's lap. The feeling was mutual, I could see at a glance; for the dog didn't have what I'd call a loving look as she (the Pekinese was a female) looked over at Oscar.

I threw a banana at Oscar to take his mind off the pooch, and everyone seemed to enjoy the way he waddled over and caught it like a regular Hans Wagner. It was good infield work—for my throw was wide—and everyone appreciated the catch except the lady, who was still raving about her invitation to Government House.

Banana or no banana, Oscar couldn't forget that he didn't like that mutt, and he kept eyeing her with suspicion and contempt.

The canine returned the glare. Her mistress was so busy talking about the governor general (who would have been pained to hear her piffle) that she didn't notice it when her darling jumped from her lap to the floor. Or perhaps she did notice it and felt confident that the Peke was going to show Oscar his place.

POOR JUDGMENT

The dog barked at the hornbill and, when the latter backed away cautiously, made the mistake of thinking she had the bird on the run. Some dogs have the worst judgment! This one, following up what she thought an advantage, advanced boldly and barked louder this time, and right in Oscar's face.

This was too much for Oscar. He sidled off, cocked his head to one side, and taking a hop that must have been quite an effort for a bay-windowed bird, landed on top of the Peke and started pecking the daylights out of her with his heavy bill. For half a minute the mutt's yelping, her mistress' screaming and Oscar's hoarse croaking filled the room.

"Stop it!" shrieked the would-be Government House habitue.

Oscar—now fully equipped with feathers but still an awkward fellow—finally wound up in the aviary of Kenyon V. Painter, Cleveland's famous bird-fancier. I hated to part with him, for no bird ever afforded me such amusement.

It's always painful to part with the Mitzies, the Mikes, the Oscars. But parting with them is my business.

It's all in the game. If I kept as pets all the jungle youngsters that struck my fancy I'd have a menagerie at my heels most of the time, and that would never do.

'Pedigreed' Barley Ready for Brew

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 2. — Let beer come—the agronomy department of the University of Wisconsin is ready. It announced today that 12 years of experiment are crowned with success, and that it is ready to offer a new strain of barley, "pedigree number 38," pronounced superior for brewing. In practical tests in Milwaukee and Chicago it was found that it bends more readily to the brewmaster's will in the manufacture of beer. The new strain is exceptionally immune from disease and produces a high yield.

TUNNEY TELLS LIFE STORY IN SUN-TELEGRAPH

The man the boxing fans couldn't understand.

Gene Tunney, who rose from rags to riches in the ring.

From an unknown to the Man of Destiny, who twice whipped the man they said couldn't be whipped, Jack Dempsey, the Man Mauler.

When he reached Park Avenue, New York, and was about to be married to an heiress, he bade the ring farewell, gave up the million dollar title for which he had striven so hard, and he hasn't been back since.

A two-sided man. A veritable Jekyll and Hyde.

Not a knockout puncher in the ring, but a relentless punisher; outside the ropes a man who hated the profession.

He was different. A new type of ring warrior.

Now, Tunney himself explains. He tells his life story, pours out his soul, writes of his triumphs and disappointments in his autobiography, "A Man Must Fight," which will appear exclusively in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in large daily instalments beginning next Monday.

GENE TUNNEY

This story carries you through the hardships of the boxer's preliminary days, tells of his struggle to gain recognition as a serious contender for the heavyweight title and of his dream's fulfillment. Through it run the names of the greats of the heavyweight class—Carpentier, Dempsey, Wills, Sharkey and all of the others. And standing out conspicuously in its narration is the history of Tunney's battles with the late Harry Greb, Pittsburgh's greatest ring product. These chapters will be of particular interest to the readers of the story in this community.

The story takes you to the ringside, behind the scenes in the matchmakers' office, before boxing commissions, tells you how ring champions are made, how the million dollar gates are built up. In short, it leaves out nothing.

It's a story with a punch. A story with a lesson. A story youngsters as well as grown-ups will want to read, for it is the true success story of the most captivating personality—when you get to know him—boxing has produced, not even excepting the glamorous Jack Dempsey.

Read the first chapter next Monday—and you won't want to miss any of the others.

PANTHERS FACE TOUGH JOB ON COAST

THOUGH THE AWARD of the Rose Bowl football game to the University of Pittsburgh came as an agreeable surprise, in view of the fact that Michigan had been understood to have the inside track, there is no question that the honor was fairly earned and richly deserved. No other team in the country played so hard a schedule as did the Panthers, and it is debatable whether any other would have come through it with an equal measure of success. It is a tribute to the football judgment and fairness of the Southern California officials that they recognized the main thing to be considered in a comparison of gridiron records is the caliber of opposition faced.

Howard Jones

The Panthers and the city may justly feel proud of the national distinction the award represents. In thus being invited to the Coast classic for the third time in six years, a record equaled only by Alabama, and in being the only Eastern team upon which the annual honor has been conferred since Navy received the bid for 1924, Pitt attains in football a position of rare prominence.

In a playing way, the game of January 2 is a most difficult assignment. Southern California has never been defeated in a Rose Bowl game in three starts, having beaten Penn State, Pitt and Tulane. The Panthers have not tasted victory at Pasadena in two appearances, having lost to Stanford, 7 to 6, as well as to the Trojans, 47 to 14. And Howard Jones' gridders, with Notre Dame yet to be met one week from tomorrow, have behind them a record of 18 consecutive victories. They have won every game played since St. Mary's downed them 13 to 7 on September 26, 1931. It's a big job that confronts the Panthers, without considering the handicap of a strange climate, but they got away with more than one other big job this year in which the chances were thought to be against them.

THE BATTERING THAT Army took in the Notre Dame game may help Navy's chances tomorrow in the service classic at Philadelphia, but to win the Middies will have to show a stronger offense than they have displayed all season. The Sailors have won only two games, defeating Washington and Lee and Maryland.

Against that pair of wins they lost five games to William and Mary, Ohio University, Penn, Columbia and Notre Dame, and played a scoreless tie with Princeton. In those six engagements they scored only six points, a touchdown against Columbia. A superior attack gives Army the edge.

DR. C. W. SPEARS, of Wisconsin, and Ken Shroyer, of New River, are said to be the only college coaches in the country who go through their football seasons without scrimmage. They became personal friends at the national basketball tournament in 1921 at the University of Chicago, where Shroyer's team was playing for the title.

Spears was then coach at West Virginia University and Shroyer was at Buckhannon High School. They have been friends ever since, but neither knew at the beginning of the 1932 season that the other planned to eliminate all scrimmage. The two are now corresponding, exchanging views as to how the system worked out. Both teams had remarkable success, attributed partly to the unique practice program.

"A FIG FOR your undefeated records!" says George Trevor, football authority of the New York Sun in discussing the gridiron season of 1932. "They often are misleading. Colgate? Why, these Notre Dame wreckers could pick the Little Giants up by the seat of their plum-colored pants and heave them clear back to the Shenango Valley. Purdue probably could do the same. The flat statement is the greatest tribute one could pay to Andy Kerr, who fashioned a silky, smooth Colgate team out of material that did not compare with that at any one of a dozen major universities. With one or two exceptions there isn't a man on the Colgate varsity who could make the Notre Dame team. All the more honor to Kerr and Colgate spirit that so much has been made of so little."

IN THE EVENT it becomes a reality, the proposed Northern Baseball League, now in the formative stage, will feature a prominent Pittsburgh athlete and citizen as owner-manager. Lute (Danny) Boone, of Brentwood, who served as an infielder for the New York Yankees and the St. Paul American Association club for many years, has practically accepted a proposition to head one of the teams.

Lute Boone

The Northern League will include progressive little cities in Minnesota and Wisconsin, and Crookston, Minn., has been set aside as Boone's town. Lute was extremely popular in that section while a player in the Hickey circuit, and the promoters of the new league have made him an alluring offer to preside over the Crookston club.

WILLIAM E. BENSWANGER, president of the Pirates, already has assured Boone that the Pittsburgh club will strive to send him some of its surplus recruits. In fact, the Buccaneer officials will go out of their way to help Lute, as the native son also was a member of the Corsair crew for part of one season, that of 1918.

Boone plans to acquire Pitcher Elmer Knetzer, another Pittsburgher, if the proposed league is organized. The former Hazelwood sandlot star has some fine ideas regarding minor league ball. He contends that with four or five players like Knetzer and himself for a nucleus, he can build up a strong minor league club by using rookies. Always a smart player, Lute should succeed as an owner and manager. He intends to be a playing pilot.

ANOTHER PITTSBURGH BASEBALL product, one whose career was closely associated with Boone's, is being mentioned prominently as the possible new manager of the St. Paul club. Marty Berghammer, former West End resident, may, it is reported, succeed Albert P. (Lefty) Leifield, who was relieved of the St. Paul portfolio this week. Berghammer and Boone were the outstanding keystone pair of minor league ball when they played together at St. Paul. Marty makes his home there and is highly regarded by the citizenry of the neighborhood.

OUT ON THE coast with Mickey Walker, Jack Kearns repeated his denial that he intends to hook up with Jack Dempsey again. He

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Frankie Goosby (or Goothby, as the boys call him), California Negro middleweight, who has been making his home here for months trying to get a break, gets it tonight, when he meets Johnny Peppe, of Philadelphia, in the 10-round main bout of a show in the Arena, on the North Side.

The break comes in the form of a guarantee that the winner will box the veteran Dave Shade in the same ring a week later. A fight with Shade means national recognition and more work in other cities.

PEPPE'S RECORD GOOD

Goosby, handled by Cherokee Tom Cox, who had much to do with the making of Baby Joe Gans and was around Jack Johnson and other Negro stars, is not counting his chickens before they are hatched, however. He knows Peppe is a tough hombre. How does he know it? By taking a peek at Johnny's record, which includes bouts with Gorilla Jones, Vince Dundee, Billy Angelo, Johnny Oakey, Pat Haley, Gene Moretti, Jimmy Smith, Eddie Dempsey, Tiger Thomas, Matt Rice, Pete Suskey, Johnny (K. O.) Roberts, Joey LaGrey, Danny Devlin, George Courtney and Jimmy Rhoades. A fighter doesn't meet such an array of talent unless he has what it takes.

Funny how this pair came to be matched by Lew Raymond. Raymond had Goosby in with Nick Venore several weeks ago, and Venore couldn't get here because he got himself jammed up in an Election Day brawl in Philadelphia, so Peppe was sent on as a substitute. When he arrived, he scaled something like 13 pounds more than Goosby. Frankie was willing to spot him the weight, figuring Johnny wasn't in too good condition, but the boxing commission said nix. However, on the strength of the advertising Peppe received in connection with that engagement, he got the match for tonight. Since coming here before, he has won bouts in Scranton and Atlantic City.

GOOSBY A PUNCHER

Goosby is one of those "sudden death" punchers, a deadly hitter. If he knocks out Peppe tonight, he'll be set. His long wait here will not have been in vain. He already has knocked out Lee Sala and Jack Wilson and beaten Jimmy Belmont since settling in Pittsburgh.

Johnny Roberts, one of Peppe's earlier opponents, makes his local debut in the eight-round semi-final against Sunny Jim McVey, lusty-belting Rankin Negro light-heavyweight, tonight. Roberts, who hails from Huntington, W. Va., now is under the management of the estimable Bunny Buntach. He has met 'em all, from Joe Dundee, the former welterweight champion, up to K. O. Christner, the former heavyweight destroyer.

Two six-round preliminaries round out tonight's bill. Jackie Wilson, East End Negro bantamweight, meets Juan Cruz, the Mexican, in the second number, and Joey Speigal, Uniontown southpaw welterweight, who recently boxed a draw with Billy Holt in the same ring, meets Ray Winbush, Hill Negro, in the opener, set for 8:30 o'clock.

Between Rounds

The Arena has signed Tony Falco and Tony Herrera for its windup on the night of December 23 and will stage another local talent show of four-round bouts on December 13, next week, as already announced, it has the winner of tonight's Goosby-Peppe affair, and, on December 16, it runs a return battle between Jack King and Ted Yarosz. Falco recently defeated Johnny Datto at the Arena.

The amateur boxers of the Pittsburgh Lyceum will put on a show in their gymnasium on the night of December 13 for the benefit of the needy children of the Epiphany Parish. Seven bouts will be arranged.

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: MEASURING THE SMALLEST CURRENT—A vacuum tube, said to be the most sensitive measuring device ever perfected, recently has been developed by the General Electric engineers at Schenectady, N. Y. The tube actually will measure such an infinitismal quantity of electricity as one quintillionth of an ampere, and also will measure the flow of six electrons per second. If an electron could be compared to the volume of a drop of water, then the number of electrons flowing in one minute through the usual 50-watt electric light bulb would equal the number of drops of water in the enormous volume going over Niagara Falls in a whole century. THE MONUMENT TO A PIG—This unique monument, which is situated just off the highway on Route 25, north of Blue Ball, O., bears the following historical inscription: "The first pedigree of a Poland China hog was written on this farm in 1876 by W. C. Hankinson, owner of the farm, and Carl Creigau, compiler of the original record. This strictly American breed of swine originated within a radius of a few miles of this place, and in the making required the period from 1816 to 1850. The first volume of pedigrees was printed in 1878. This monument was erected by the Ohio Poland China Breeders' Association. Unveiled June 15, 1922."

Note—Southern California plays Notre Dame Saturday of next week.

By JESS CARVER

Pitt has a new battle cry today—it's "Westward, Ho!"

The gloom that pervaded Mudville the day the mighty Casey missed that famous third strike wasn't any thicker than that which may be discerned about the campuses at Colgate and Michigan today following the selection of the Pitt Panthers as Eastern representatives for the famous Rose Bowl football classic in Pasadena New Year's Day.

Casey's whiff didn't cost dear old Mudville around $100,000, and when Southern California invited our Panthers to come out there this year to play its Trojans a game of football (and you can bet the rent it will be a game of football this time, too) they just kissed the Red Raiders and Wolverines out of about that much coin. By inviting the Panthers, the Trojans proved they know which side of their bread the butter was to be found, or, that they knew which side they hoped the butter would be. Pitt figures to outdraw Colgate and to do at least as much business at the box office as would Michigan, especially if Notre Dame knocks off U. S. C. next week.

PLANS UNSETTLED

Pitt naturally received the invitation with joy and it takes a hard-hearted person indeed to begrudge the Panther's the honor. There was so much excitement about the Oakland campus following the publishing of the news that it was almost impossible to find out just what plans the Panthers will make toward getting out to the Coast and all, but Coach Sutherland said the squad would resume training today. Light workouts will be in order until a week or so prior to the date of departure, which probably will be Christmas night, and I don't mean perfume, either.

In 1929, when the Panthers went out there and took a shellacking from the Trojans, they traveled via the Southern route, hopping from here to St. Louis, then to Dallas, El Paso and Tuscon, Ariz., arriving on the scene of the battle two days before the game.

Carnegie Tech followed the old Santa Fe trail that same year, going via Chicago, Dodge City, Albuquerque, Winslow, Grand Canyon and Needles to Los Angeles. Pitt may try the same route this time.

PLAYERS PLEASED

When the bid was received yesterday, the Pitt players were called together and the matter put squarely up to them. Coach Sutherland pointed out that it meant a continuation of their already long and hard schedule, resumption of the daily practice grind and that they would have to go into the game determined to secure revenge for the licking of '29. But the Panthers voted "aye" to the proposition and I hardly think a recount was necessary. Coach Sutherland indicated that a squad of about 35 players would be taken on the trip.

Pitt has made the journey to California on three previous occasions, but has played in the Rose Bowl only twice. In 1923, Pop Warner took a Pitt team out and beat Stanford. In 1928 Coach Sutherland led his powerful Panther eleven of that year into the Rose arena for a tussle with Stanford and lost, 7 to 6, and then came the debacle of 1929.

There has only been one out-and-out Eastern eleven in the Rose Bowl since 1924 and that has been Pitt. Notre Dame was there in 1925; Alabama in '26 and '27; Pitt in '28; Georgia Tech in

SULLIVAN, ALMOST DROPPED, SHARES SCHOOL TITLE

M'KEESPORT'S GRID MENTOR VINDICATED

By JULIUS LEVIN

Bill Sullivan, popular coach at McKeesport High School, who brought the Tubers through a tough schedule to share in a three-way deadlock for the class AA championship of the W. P. I. A. L., has more than repaid his large legion of followers for the support given him when steps were taken at the close of the 1931 season to dispense with his services.

Just one year ago rumors were afloat in local scholastic circles that Sullivan, through some differences with the McKeesport school authorities, would not be retained this season despite the fact his team went through the campaign undefeated and untied until the closing battle with Clairton on Thanksgiving Day.

APPOINTMENT DELAYED

When the McKeesport school board held its first meeting after the conclusion of the 1931 schedule, a motion to reappoint Sullivan as coach was tabled until the spring meeting, and students, sensing a movement to displace their popular mentor, started a protest by staging an impromptu strike. That the students and citizens of McKeesport were justified in demanding the retention of Sullivan was proved beyond all doubt by the manner in which the Tubers swept through the last campaign to share the class AA championship with New Castle and Jeannette.

McKeesport and New Castle yesterday completed arrangements for a post-season charity game to be played at New Castle tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Good coaches of the caliber of Sullivan are few and far between and McKeesport's school board is fortunate to have a man of his type at the head of its football team. The McKeesport High elevens have enjoyed more success in two years under Sullivan's guidance than under any mentor prior to Sullivan's appointment.

REBUILDS WINNER

Prospects for a winning eleven at McKeesport prior to the opening of the 1932 season were none too bright owing to the loss of a number of last year's veterans, but Sullivan proved his mettle as coach by developing capable replacements.

The records compiled by McKeesport's teams under Sullivan during the past two seasons are among the best, if not the best, of any school in the W. P. I. A. L.

The McKeesport teams of the last two years have played 18 games with the leading schools in the district and show only one defeat. Seventeen victories, one of them a forfeit over New Kensington because the latter team used an ineligible player, grace the record. The complete record for the last two years follows:

School Notes

The members of the Ambridge High School football team, class A champions of the W. P. I. A. L., will be guests at a testimonial banquet to be held in the junior high school next Wednesday evening. Among the speakers will be prominent college stars of Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University.

The Peabody High School basketball team helps Beaver Falls open its season tonight with a game at Beaver Falls. Eighty-five candidates are out for the Beaver Falls quintet this season.

John Karcis, former star at Carnegie Tech, will lead a squad of Monaca alumni stars against a similar team of Beaver Falls at Monaca tomorrow afternoon. Franklin Hood, Stanley Berkman and several other Beaver Valley stars will take part in the game.

The Ambridge High School basketball team is open for a game at home or abroad on December 23. Teams interested are asked to call Moe Rubenstein at Ambridge High School.

Injuries suffered in the closing days of the football campaign has cost Washington High School the services of its basketball captain, George Bougher. Bougher was the only veteran back from last season and his absence at this time is a blow to the Little Presidents.

Sailors Toss Team Manager Into Bay For Luck

SANDLOT TEAMS IN BENEFIT

With both teams ready for the battle, the largest crowd of the sandlot season is expected at Greenlee Field tomorrow afternoon, when the J. Scott Morgan club, of Homewood, faces the James P. Rooney All-Stars with the Thirteenth Ward relief fund on the receiving end of the gate.

This is the big game of the season so far as charity is concerned, and aside from the charity angle many fans are interested in seeing just how the East End magistrate's gridders perform against the outfit selected by the former Pitt star.

Rooney as yet has not announced the makeup of his club, but he has admitted that Bud Devinney, former University of Duquesne star; Mose Kelsh, the greatest sandlot backfield man ever in the district; Harp Vaughan, another sandlot luminary; Jimmy Clark, former Pitt fullback star, and himself, will be in the game.

The Morningside gridders, of the Lightweight Conference, and the Scholastic All-Stars, of the East End, have arranged a game for the benefit of the Tenth and Eleventh Ward Relief Associations at Heth's Field on Sunday.

Among the well-known stars in the Scholastics' lineup will be Harry Glaas, Howdy Levey, Jack Powell, Bob Noonan, Rink Davis, Buck McCormick, Scully Schaefer and Morrow. Jim Levey, member of the St. Louis Browns, will coach the Scholastics.

Yesterday, at Rockview, the Rooneys defeated the penitentiary eleven, 38 to 6. Hood's forward passing featured the contest. The Pen eleven scored on a 30-yard run by its quarterback in the last quarter.

Andy Gustafson's Mother Succumbs

Joy and sorrow mingled in the Pitt football quarters today as the Panthers began preparations for their Rose Bowl battle with the University of Southern California. Almost simultaneously with the announcement that Pitt had received and accepted the invitation to compete in the Tournament of Roses contest at Pasadena, Andy Gustafson, former All-Eastern fullback and now assistant coach of the Panthers, received word that his mother, Mrs. Emma Gustafson, had died in her home at Aurora, Ill.

Gustafson will leave for his home in Illinois tonight to attend the funeral. He will return Monday to help the Panthers get into shape for the trip to the Pacific Coast.

SKIBOS LEAVE TO BATTLE GEORGETOWN

Carnegie Tech's gridiron squad entrained at noon today for its sixth game on a foreign field this season. The Skibos headed for Washington, D. C., and their game tomorrow afternoon with Georgetown University. It will be played at Griffith Stadium, at 2 p. m., and will be the first meeting of the Skibos and the Hoyas since 1928.

That year both clubs were sailing along to the Eastern championship, and they clashed in Albany, N. Y. Behind the great line charging of Johnny Karcis, and the clever direction of Howard Harpster, the Tartans pushed Georgetown out of the picture, and they have never forgotten.

Despite their spotty record this year, the Hoyas have shown definite improvement since Johnny Hagerty, former Georgetown star, who has been playing pro football for several years, replaced Tommy Mills in mid-season. Hagerty has selected one combination, and he has held it together consistently in an effort to save something out of this season and also to get ready for the 1933 campaign.

SWIM MEET TONIGHT

SPORT VIGNETTES

If you're glad that Pitt has received and accepted the bid to play in the Tournament of Roses game on New Year's Day, consider the plight of a lot of other fellas . . . Spare a tear or two for the football writers, who thought they'd be out of the trenches by Christmas at the latest, with the All-Americas all cleaned up and everything . . . Spare a tear or two for Jock Sutherland, coach of the Panthers, who dragged his team through a tough schedule undefeated and thought he'd be able to get a few winks of sleep in between his Christmas shopping, and now has to start worrying all over again . . . Spare a tear or two for the business offices of the local newspapers, which thought that now was as good a time as any to check up on what those loafers in the sports department do during the so-called off-season and put at least one or two of them to work . . . In other words, who thought up this Tournament of Roses gag in the first place?

Pitt's attitude on the Rose Bowl thing can be easily appreciated . . . In the East, the Panthers are some shucks, but they don't rate on the Far Coast, because they've played in the New Year's day classic twice, in 1928 and 1930, and have been beaten, 7-6, by Stanford, and 47-14, by Southern California . . . They'd like to get revenge, especially for that drubbing of two years ago, when they had a fine team that went all to pieces under a barrage of forward passes . . . That's the main incentive, at least insofar as the players are concerned . . . So far as the university itself is concerned, here is a chance to grab off a nice sum of money to apply to the paying off of the Stadium indebtedness, which has hung like an anchor around its neck since the place was built . . . It means a chance to retire perhaps $50,000 to $75,000 of the outstanding bonds, and that's something.

After Pitt defeated his Stanford team, 7-0, in their game here last Saturday, Coach Pop Warner, whose stars had been beaten, 13-0, by Southern California, pronounced Pitt a better team than the Trojans . . . Whether or not Pitt will be a better team on New Year's Day remains to be seen . . . It is a cinch bet that Southern California would not have swamped the Pitt team of 1929 during the course of the regular season . . . Pitt should benefit from its experience of two years ago on the Coast and go a long way toward redeeming itself in this return meeting . . . For one thing, it is bound to enter this fray the underdog, despite its great record of the season, including victories over Notre Dame and the Army, and that's a fine psychological edge . . . Southern California still has one game to play, with Notre Dame, Saturday of next week . . . It will have two weeks' less of rust-gathering rest before meeting up with the Sutherlanders.

If you don't think the selection of Pitt came as a surprise to a lot of folks everywhere, well you haven't been reading your newspapers lately . . . Everybody thought the Rose Bowl game was being fixed up for Michigan, or at least for Colgate . . . They thought so in California, too . . . Writing of the prospects of the candidates, in a recent issue of the Los Angeles Times, Bill Henry said: . . . "The worst thing against Pittsburgh is a couple of rather sad experiences in the Rose Bowl . . . A whole teamful of All-Americans came out and were slaughtered by the Trojans, 47 to 14, a few years back, and another team, featuring All-American Gibby Welch, lost to Stanford, 7 to 6. . . . Pitt is unquestionably very good — probably one of the very best—but those close to the Trojan throne don't think they'd be much of an attraction . . . Should Michigan not be available, Colgate would unquestionably be a Trojan choice ahead of Pittsburgh." . . . Just another bum guess.—HARRY KECK.

Fields Scores K. O. In Comeback Bout

Last night Fields knocked out Tommy Herman, of Chicago, in the second round of what was to have been a 10-round bout. The champion impressed observers with his punching ability and the eye affliction which caused him to hang up his gloves apparently did not interfere with his work.

Golfers Flock To Schenley Links

Yesterday a crowd that approached mid-summer size was on hand as the winter season was inaugurated.

SOCCER LEAGUE LEAD AT STAKE TOMORROW

By TOM BIRKS

Four games are carded in the Pittsburgh Central Soccer League for tomorrow. At Swissvale, the largest crowd of the season probably will be on hand when Lawrenceville, present league leader and outstanding contender for the title now held by Union Switch, will clash with the defending champions.

With the best team representing Lawrenceville over a period of years, the Strip aggregation of veterans appears headed for the title. Tomorrow's game means much to both clubs, a defeat for the Union Switch team practically will wipe out any chance the team might have to repeat, while a victory for Lawrenceville will give Jimmy Dunlop and his boys a decided edge for the sprint down the stretch.

Clan Douglas will entertain the Westinghouse team at the Westinghouse High School Stadium; Ambridge goes to Mt. Lebanon, and the McKeesport Tubers clash with German Sports at Leslie Park in other games.

Next week National Amateur Cup play will hold sway in the district. Some interesting games are carded. The Valley Camp Club, recently reinstated by the West Penn Commission, meets the German Sports at Leslie Field.

Two Sunday second-round games find two old rivals clashing as Morgan and Bridgeville Rosies meet at Morgan, while Curry and Lawrenceville duel at South Park.

ARMY, NAVY TEAMS ON SCENE OF BATTLE

SAILORS HOLD SLIGHT CHANCE FOR VICTORY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Not on the seven seas, but in seven cities and towns have Army and Navy fought out their football feud in the last 40 years but they'll be on familiar ground when they tangle in Franklin Field tomorrow.

As a matter of fact, the service academies have played oftener in the Pennsylvania metropolis than anywhere else—fourteen times to be exact. New York ranks second, playing host to 11 Army-Navy contests. The other seven games in the series which started in 1890 have been split among five cities or towns, two apiece at West Point and Annapolis, and one each at Baltimore, Chicago and Princeton.

ARMY HAS EDGE

The choice of Philadelphia as the battleground this year might be construed as a "break" for the Navy, for six of the Tars' 12 victories over the Army have been achieved there.

But whatever psychological advantage the Tars might derive from that seems to be more than outweighed by the physical edge Army will enjoy. Navy will have to concede weight, age and experience to the Cadets and most experts have been unwilling to give the Tars better than outside chance of victory.

Yet there is no denying the tremendous improvement Coach Rip Miller has brought about in Navy's play since the Tars' disappointing performances in early season games. They threw up a brilliant defense against Notre Dame two weeks ago and held the Ramblers to a 12-to-0 score, while Army surrendered a week later, 21-0.

Both teams arrived here last night after a final practice whirl. Navy's squad of 46 drilled intensively on a passing attack before boarding a train to the accompaniment of the cheers of the regiment of midshipmen and hundreds of townsfolk. Every member of the squad was in first-rate shape and apparently confident of checking the long string of Army victories.

CADETS CRIPPLED

There still was a heavy casualty list among the Army squad of 35 but the players, apparently recovered from the shock of the Notre Dame disaster, seemed in good spirits and entirely confident. Felix Vidal, Pete Kopcsak, Abe Lincoln, Lawlor and Winn are the chief "cripples" but most of these were expected to see service.

The biggest surprise of the final Army workout was a shift that put Bucknam, a second classman, at the center post in place of Evans. Bucknam saw considerable action against Notre Dame and was at center throughout yesterday's workout.

Clash Tomorrow in Army-Navy Game

WEST POINT CADETS IN TYPICAL DRILL . . . NAVY WILL PARADE, TOO, TOMORROW AT GAME IN PHILADELPHIA

The Army and Navy resume their long-standing rivalry on a contractural basis at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, tomorrow, with a sellout crowd of 79,000 looking on. The service teams met last year and the year before in charity games, following the break that pulled them apart. Army has been established as a 9-5 favorite. KERR WISHES PITT WELL ON COAST

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 2.—(INS.)—Although disappointed because Pittsburgh was chosen instead of Colgate as Southern California's opponent in the Rose Bowl football classic on January 2, Andy Kerr, Colgate head coach, today praised the Panthers and wished them the best of luck. He said:

"Pitt successfully played a very difficult schedule. The Panthers are a strong team in every respect and will be an able representative of Eastern football. The Colgate players naturally are disappointed because they desired a chance to play in the Pasadena game.

"I believe Colgate also would have been a satisfactory representative of Eastern football. The Colgate squad wishes the Pitt boys luck in their representation of the East."

CHICK NOT SURPRISED

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(INS.)—Chick Meehan, Manhattan College coach, didn't seem a bit surprised today when apprised that Pitt had been selected to meet Southern California in the Rose Bowl game. He said:

"That's a sweet team that Jock Sutherland has at Pitt, and it'll give an account of itself against Southern California."

Lou Little, Columbia coach, admitted he had expected Colgate to be picked, but he put in a good word for Pitt. Little said:

"Any team that can beat the Notre Dame eleven I saw whip Army last week certainly must have a lot."

Charleroi Elects Two Grid Leaders

Ulhard (Hank) Hangartner, assistant coach and scout of the University of Pittsburgh, and Leroy P. (Hank) Day, Wash-Jeff coach, were the principal speakers.

W. H. Clipman, Jr., Charleroi High principal, was toastmaster. Among the other speakers were J. S. Russell, president of the athletic association; T. L. Pollock, superintendent of schools; C. S. Bateman, of the school board; D. W. Copeland, faculty manager; Steve Stepanian, head coach; F. H. Cantoni and D. L. Glunt, assistant coaches; Nestor Henrion, retiring captain; Harry Barnett, of the Charleroi Mail, and Julius Levin, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The Rev. G. Meade Dougherty, of the Methodist Church, offered the invocation.

HENDRICKS RESIGNS

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 2.—Jack Hendricks has resigned as business manager of the Indianapolis Club, it was announced here last night. Wade Killefer, manager of the team, also will serve as business manager.

WILLIGS IN LEAGUE

The Willigs of McKeesport, have replaced the Knickers as a member of the West Penn League. The Willigs play at the I. K. S. tonight.

HERMAN EASY FOR MEINE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

While the Cubs were sadly in need of a lefthand socker to vary their attack, it is much too early to shed any tears for Owen Donie Bush, new pilot of the Reds, who gave up Babe Herman in exchange for a quartet of uncertain players; plus a bundle of cash.

Perhaps the first consideration with the Cincinnati owners was money. In bad financial straits, the Reds probably will clear off some of their notes with the money received from the rich Cubs. That, in itself, is a victory for Owner Sidney Weil, who seems to be in a fog to a large extent in his manipulation of the Cincinnati team.

EASY TO FOOL BABE

To get back to Bush and his part of the transaction. Donie saw plenty of Babe Herman while he was in the league. Now the Babe can drive a ball just about as far as any batter in the league; moreover, Herman is a fine boy and popular around the circuit, but the smart pitchers will tell you that the Babe is not so good when you pitch to him correctly.

Heinie Meine, for example, made a bad spectacle of Herman at the plate on many occasions. And there are quite a few pitchers in the league who work along similar lines when they face the battering southpaw.

RED OUTFIELDERS O. K.

Herman's slant on the sport is hardly serious enough to place him among the ranking players of the game. Babe has lots of natural ability, but he does not bear down as much as he should.

Bush, also, may be able to do something with fellows like Lance Richbourg, Bob Smith and Rolly Hemsley. Johnny Moore, the fourth man in the deal, appears to be very doubtful quantity, but the Reds are not in a bad way for outfielders as long as they have fellows like Chick Hafey, Taylor Douthit and Estel Crabtree fit for duty.

CUE STARS SET FOR TOURNEY

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—(INS.)—The headquarters of the National Billiard Association here was a scene of busy activity today as the officials who govern the destinies of the artists of the green baize prepared to move to New York, where they will establish temporary headquarters during the world championship pocket billiard tournament.

Ten cueists will participate in the tournament, which opens December 5. The final, and championship match, will be held December 22.

George Kelly, Philadelphia, runner-up last year, is a seeded contestant, as is Benny Allen, of Kansas City, three-times world champion; Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, champion seven times; Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, champion of 1930, and Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia.

The other contestants won their way into the tournament by capturing sectional titles. James Caras, Wilmington, Del., won the Eastern sectional tourney; Pasquale Natalie, Chicago, Northern; James F. Mills, San Jose, Cal., Western; Walter Franklin, Kansas City, Southern.

The value to the winner is $5,000, plus 15 per cent of the gate receipts and a diamond emblem. Purse for the runner-up is $2,800, and 14 per cent of the receipts; for the third-place winner $600 and 13 per cent of the receipts.

PANTHERS GET COAST BID

MICHIGAN ANXIOUS

Both Michigan and Colgate were very anxious for the bid. The Wolverines, although their athletic director, Fielding Yost, ever has been against post-season tilts, and prevented Northwestern from going out in 1930, did an about-face this fall and while they may not have instigated the movement which was launched to have the Big Ten Conference rule suspended to permit the unbeaten Conference champions to make the trip, certainly did nothing to block such a move.

Colgate, too, wanted to go. Andy Kerr even making plans to take both his Red Raiders and the all-Eastern team he and Dick Hanley, coach, westward together. Graduate Manager Bill Reid, of Colgate, said last night when informed that Pitt had been tendered the bid, that the boys would be greatly disappointed.

The selection by Southern Cal was made after a study of the records of the three candidates. Such a study could not help but bring the Panthers into bold relief, for neither Michigan or Colgate attempted a schedule nearly as tough as the one the Panthers went through.

ASSISTANT IN CHARGE

Backfield Coach Gustafson will have charge of the Panthers next week while Sutherland is in Baltimore handling the Northern all-stars, who meet a team of picked Southern collegians in a charity tilt in the Oyster City, December 10.

Definite announcement of Pitt plans for the jaunt will not be made known until the return of Director Don Harrison from Philadelphia. W. Don hopped a choo-choo last night for Philly.

Heller, Cuba, Dailey and Tormey, Pitt seniors, who had been invited to play on the all-East team by Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley and had accepted, withdrew their acceptances. The same four had been selected by Coach Sutherland to take part in the North-South contest in Baltimore next week, but will not now participate in the contest.

Following is the record of the Rose Tourney series:

1916—Wash. St.	14	—Brown	0
1917—Oregon	14	—Pennsylvania	0
1918—M. I. Mar.	19	—Camp Lewis*	7

Long's Sport Comment

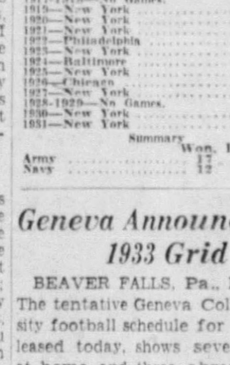
says there was no sentiment in that handshake at the Schmeling-Walker fight, and that he is not interested in old-men fighters.

Kearns also expresses the opinion that Jack Sharkey never will fight Max Schmeling again—not because Sharkey is afraid of the German, but because the former sailor has the title and plenty of money and just isn't interested.

WILLIAM A. BRADY, who managed two heavyweight ring champions in Jim Corbett and Jim Jeffries, takes exception to a statement made by Joe Vila, veteran fistic authority, that John L. Sullivan was the most pugnacious of all the big title holders.



John L. Sullivan

Overlooking the fight with Charley Mitchell in France, a 39-round draw, and meetings with Dominick McCaffrey, of Pittsburgh, and others, Brady asserts that in all his years as champion Sullivan defended his crown only once, adding that "at the time of his defeat by Corbett in 1892 there were at least six other fighters who could have turned the trick just as easily as Corbett did."

THE SIX OTHERS referred to by Brady were Peter Jackson, Frank Slavin, Bob Fitzsimmons, Joe Choynski, Peter Maher and Joe Goddard. Vila insists that the Sullivan Corbett defeated was not the real John L. at all. "I covered Sullivan when he was training for the Corbett fight at Canoe Place Inn on Long Island in the summer of 1892," he relates. "Sullivan ignored his trainer, Phil Casey, then handball champion of the world, and did as he pleased. He drank plenty of mixed ale, smoked cigars incessantly, and did very little hard work. When he left for New Orleans, Sullivan weighed almost 225 pounds, and was hog fat and not the real Sullivan."

STOCK PRICES AGAIN DRIFT DOWNWARD

It was one of the dullest sessions of the year, however, and few losses were much in excess of a point. With such economic uncertainties impending as the war debt situation, and other problems confronting the Congress session convening next week, the tendency, even among professional traders, was to let the market drift. The list stiffened a little toward mid-day, but the price movements were of a decidedly indecisive character.

Brokerage quarters expressed the hope that some decisive action might be taken by Congress early in the session which would stimulate business and in consequence, the securities markets. It was recalled that the tendency in the market in recent years has been downward early in December, with a new year's recovery getting under way toward the end of the month, but the market appeared so completely sold out that bullishly inclined quarters were hopeful that a rally might get under way earlier in December than that it has in the past three years. The uncertainties were so plentiful, however, that Wall street was inclined to extreme caution.

A fresh factor appeared in international financial affairs, with the recommendation of the advisory committee of the Argentine government that negotiations be started to obtain a reduction in the service payments on the country's debt. That country's predicament is largely attributed to the extremely low prices prevailing for wheat and livestock.

The reaction in commodity prices since early September, which has been even more severe than that of securities, has brought considerable discouragement. The movement has evidently been hastened by the weakness of the pound sterling. Bar silver in the New York market today sagged ¼ of a cent to 25 cents an ounce, the lowest in history. Commodity price indices now show that but a tiny fraction remains of the recovery in prices from June to September.

The weekly mercantile reviews were somewhat mixed in tenor. Dun's felt that the pre-holiday retail trade was starting under circumstances more auspicious than a year ago. Bradstreet's, however, stressed the declining tendency in a number of lines of business.

PRICE DECLINE STUNS FARMS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Low prices and poor markets were described today by the Department of Agriculture Bureau of Economics as dominating the farm situation.

In its December report on the condition of agriculture, the bureau said:

"Farmers are finding it extremely difficult, and many find it impossible, to pay their taxes and other fixed charges, while there is universal complaint that fixed charges now swallow incomes.

"In the last three years the producers of grains, of cotton, of meat animals and of dairy products have seen their income shrink a billion dollars in each of those lines. The report said farmers were carrying over about twice as much corn this year as they did last year, milk production was running about 6 per cent less than in November, 1931, and wheat and pork exports continued small, while cotton and tobacco were moving abroad in 'fair volume.'"

SILVER DROPS TO 25c FLAT

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—The price of spot silver dropped ¼ cent today to 25 cents an ounce, a new record low level. A similar decline occurred yesterday.

Silver dealers reported that the market was affected by the heaviness of the London market for bar silver, which felt the weight selling by Indian bazars. The continent, however, was a buyer.

Selling here was not particularly heavy, being estimated by traders at about 350,000 ounces.

BUYING POWER SHRINKAGE BARRIER

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Business has reached a juncture where there should be less emphasis on retrenchment and more stress on building up gross volume.

The barrier to a resumption of prosperity no longer consists of relative inefficiency in business processes, but rather of high unit costs resulting from a more or less fixed overhead and a declining volume of trade. The shrinkage in gross turnover has prevented business from benefiting in profits from the substantial improvement made in the last three years in operating efficiency.

Mr. Rukeyser

However, with much of the deadwood removed, certain well-managed corporations will be able to show remarkable gains in net income when, as and if gross volume picks up.

As the new year looms, the main thought of executives should be concentrated on improving the will and the power of the people to buy ordinary consumption goods and also more durable products. Thus the hope of economic salvation, it seems to me, must be taken for a time out of the hands of the efficiency engineer and placed with advertising, selling and merchandising geniuses.

From this viewpoint, anything which diminishes the capacity of men to buy must be seriously challenged.

This does not mean of course that in individual businesses it may not be necessary to retrench further along lines which may be harmful to the general situation. The individual business man must, of course, think of his own solvency.

A number of genuinely analytical economists, though sympathetic to the demand for a reduction in wasteful public expenditures, question whether the time is opportune for indiscriminate reductions, which will further add to the vicious forces making for a decline in gross volume.

RESERVE SEES GAIN IN JOBS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—An increase in employment, of greater than seasonal volume, was reported for the fourth Federal Reserve District in October by the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank.

Compared with the low level of August, the bank said, the employment gain was about 4 per cent and improvement in all major lines of activity was reported in the latest month.

Trade and industry in the district continued better than seasonal expansion in October, but in the first three weeks of November some irregularity appeared in several lines. In a number of cases, the bank reported, the slackening was seasonal in character, although in a few cases it was more than that amount.

'Detroit the Daring' Hums With Talk of New Cars And Increased Sales

—By B. C. FORBES—

DETROIT, Dec. 2.

"DETROIT, THE Daring." That aptly describes this city.

HOW REFRESHING it is to rush up against leaders in America's most amazing modern industry. They are aggression personified. They refuse to be licked, refuse to be daunted, refuse to capitulate to conditions most other business men lose heart bucking.

Mr. Forbes

This city is humming with talk of new models, new cars, humming with preparations to spring "surprises," humming with the enthusiasm and excitement of launching into large-scale production of next year's never-before-equaled cars.

Are our motor manufacturers downhearted? Not so that you'd notice it.

But there are sales gains recorded in certain directions both at home and abroad—W. J. McAneeny, of Hudson and Essex, for example, fired at me expanding sales figures, for his terraplane, from places I wouldn't like to have to locate in a hurry on a map of the world. (Out with it: Where's Caracas?)

And there are expectations and estimates of 1933 increases.

One big corporation official modestly looks for only 10 to 15 per cent improvement. Another is confident he will more than double sales of one popular line.

TALK OF liquidation! Wall street can't hold the candle to motordom. Never since the industry outgrew its swaddling clothes have dealers throughout the continent been so thoroughly bare of cars. Many are completely sold out. And they are going to stay that way until the new models make their debut.

Ponder the significance of these General Motors figures: During the current year its dealers had to sell some 35,000 cars that were built in 1931.

This season the total number of cars in possession of dealers, including their personal cars, demonstration cars, etc., will be only 13,400. A year ago the total was 49,200.

Thus, even without selling one car more than sold this year, there will be needed the steel, cotton, rubber, copper and labor next year for 35,000 additional cars.

NOW FOR a sample of expanding sales. Take Dodge Brothers Corporation:

Last week dealers delivered 35 per cent more cars and trucks at retail than in the previous week, being 20 per cent above a year ago.

Factory shipments during the first 21 days of last month ran 400 per cent ahead of October. The new Plymouth (handled by Dodge dealers) has helped, of course.

But vision this: I rode yesterday in a shortly-to-be displayed Dodge 6, and General Sales Manager A. Vanderzee told me, after remarking that prices are to be cut 20 to 25 per cent:

"We have produced approximately 25,000 Dodge passenger cars this year. We expect to build between 60,000 and 75,000 the coming year."

WORKING FORCES are being increased. I haven't any Ford figures, but am told that company is tuning up to combat constantly quickened competition. General Motors is adding men to expedite production of its many new models.

Chrysler has kept on re-employing men until today the total is 21,949. And Vice President K. T. Eller tells me:

"By the middle of December there will probably be another 1,000 re-called to work."

LET NO mechanic or other wage earner migrate to Detroit in the hope of finding work, because every manufacturer has a large line of his own laid-off employes to draw upon. Hence an outsider hasn't a chance.

IF THE U. S. A. isn't pushed ahead in coming months at a better pace, it won't be the fault of motordom, of Detroit, the daring.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Prices were rather jumbled in the bond market today, most traders and investors holding to their recent policy of ultra-caution. It was uncertain whether publication of the latest British note on war debts had any material effect on American bonds. The sagging of foreign loans, however, was generally attributed to the problem of payments due this country on the fifteenth of this month.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

THREE WOMEN

By FAITH BALDWIN

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Passing down the corridor to the room which had lately been set aside for her own use as a study, she went in to get some books. The room, once a guest chamber, was next door to her mother's. As she entered it she heard sounds from the other side of the wall—quiet, hopeless weeping.

Joyce's heart turned over. Why? She was afflicted with a sense of basic unfamiliarity, she was a stranger in this house, a stranger to the women with whom she lived. Were they as alien to one another as she to them? Or did they meet on some common and, she felt, inimical, ground? That was the thought to which she was becoming accustomed. Was the mutual ground a battlefield, sodden with secrets, with the shedding of spiritual blood which cried from the soil with an unvanquished voice?

She went to her mother's door hesitated and then, without knocking, entered, painfully embarrassed but determined.

Elizabeth lay across her bed. Her hands clutched at the counterpane, her thin shoulders were convulsed. She had not heard Joyce's step, her own low sobbing deafened her.

ASKED ABOUT BASIL

With, it seemed, a superhuman effort, the sobbing ceased. Elizabeth turned on her side, her swollen eyes, reddened, childishly pathetic, met her daughter's.

"I didn't hear you—it's nothing. A miserable headache. I hate pain," she exclaimed, trying to smile. "It makes it worse to cry about it, I know, but I'm such a coward."

Joyce put her hand on the hot forehead. Yes, there was fever there, disturbance. It might be true, then.

"I'm so sorry. Can I get anything, any one?"

"No—thank you, dear."

Joyce rose, bent over her mother, kissed her. As she turned to go, the slender arms held her a prisoner.

"Joyce!"

Elizabeth had raised herself, was sitting on the edge of the bed, a disheveled creature, her gentle, old-worldly charm blotted out. She spoke hoarsely, yet in the merest whisper.

"Tell me. I'm your mother. Do you love this boy, Joyce, do you love him?"

Joyce looked down at the strained face from which all resemblance to the woman she knew had vanished. She slipped from the relaxing arms until she reached her knees, and so, looked up, their positions reversed.

"I think so. I'm not sure."

DOES NOT UNDERSTAND

"But—you understand, don't you? You must be sure!"

"How?"

"So that nothing else matters," she stammered, "except the man. Nothing in all the world."

"Is it ever like that really?" Joyce asked her. "And if it is, is it right that it should be so? Nothing else mattering? But other things must matter—terribly."

As her mother was silent, Joyce added, forgetting the situation, thinking things out courageously. "Nothing else mattering—that's just passion, isn't it?"

As if she had pronounced a spell, the hands fell from her shoulders, the tense figure quieted and Elizabeth Sheldon sat still, hushed, controlled. Her face had veiled itself. She spoke with a quick, harsh intensity.

"Is there anything else?"

"That," she answered, "is what I am going to find out."

As if everything had been said between them she passed from the room, gravely, unhurried. Elizabeth sat still, her hands braced flat on the bed as once, long years before, they had been braced on a berth in a ship's cabin.

MOTORING

That is what I am going to find out—

Cold terror iced in her veins. She felt as if she were dying. She had not found out. Not she!

* * * * *

Spring was late that year—reluctant, reticent, it tiptoed through the city, laughed in the sunlight and feathered the trees with a translucent green, then retreated before a flurry of snow and a high whistling wind cold with the kiss of winter. April was no moody month of tears and laughter, but a procession of clear, frozen days with interludes of driving rain and rattling frost. Now and then a day eluded the regulations and held for twenty-four hours, misty and sunny and heavenly warm.

Basil Staines and Joyce had started out very early on a Saturday morning and were rocketing over the rutted country roads of Long Island in the car he had just bought, a smart little thing with wicked low lines and a feline engine. Joyce had left her house without further explanation than the announcement that she would be gone for the day. She had come to that, latterly, for seeing Basil was a signal for lectures from Louisa and silences from Elizabeth.

Basil had had luncheon put up and they ate it in the car, halfway down the Island, with an unconquered sun above them and a rioting of birds about them and the smell of the sea on the wind.

Reaching the stage of repletion, relaxation and cigarets, Joyce looked out over rolling meadows, a broken down fence and the little brown road into which they had turned. Frost was still deep in the ground, but a puddle of rain water near the car was as blue as the reflected sky.

"Nice day," she commented, "clean day. I could keep on going forever. It's hideous to think of getting back to town, and the wind cutting through the canyons and the dust flying."

"Let's not go back!"

TEA TIME

She turned, smiled into his eyes.

"Where to, then?"

"Oh—on——"

"All the roads will bring us back again," she mused, "or lead into water. I suppose you want to go clear to Montauk Point and just naturally jump off?"

"Well, why not?" he asked, suddenly gloomy.

"Because I don't like tragic endings, wasted gestures. Come, we'll have to start back now if we want to get in by tea time." She laughed, "Tea! We do nothing but eat and drink. It's too stupid. The only way I can see you comfortably is over a table somewhere. Ridiculous!"

After a pause he asked her, diffidently, "Would you come to my place for tea then, instead?"

She looked at him gravely. He went on, smiling now.

"It's not twenty years ago—perfectly nice girls do that, and frequently. We could have tea sent in from around the corner. I gave the dusky southern gentleman who looks after me the day off."

She said, slowly, almost apologetically, "Do you know, I want to—dreadfully—but I'm afraid."

"Afraid?"

The reproach in his voice, his eyes, wounded her. She turned, put her hand on his. "Oh, not of you—not, even, of myself, although that would be more like it."

BECOMES ANGRY

"Joyce," he said harshly, "you drive me insane with your constant weighing and worrying and quibbling. You love me, I love you. Yet you won't say when you'll marry me. You allow us to go on in this semi-engaged, secret fashion. You let me take you in my arms, kiss you, you keep me dangling, longing, hoping. It's not fair of you! It's not cricket! You're not that sort, really, you know. I can't ask you to see my point of view for you're a girl, and girls are, I suppose, different. But it's darned hard for me and I think you should face it. We can't go on indefinitely. Either we must break it off and soon, or else—"

His voice shook, his eyes, the hurt, hungry look of a small, defenseless animal, looked directly into hers. She leaned nearer, gave herself momentarily to his arms.

"I'm sorry, sorry," she murmured. "I know—please believe me—I understand, even—but—oh, I can't tell you, Basil, can't explain."

He pushed her from him, not very gently and set the car in motion. They drove out of their little byroad and took the main highway toward the city. She looked at him as he drove beside her in silence. His face was hard, older, set against her.

After a long time she said, with a sigh of surrender, "Don't look so, please. We'll go to your place, where we can be quiet and alone—and perhaps I can tell you then how I feel. It's hard, you know, saying things in a restaurant, or even like this. I'll try, Basil, I'm such a fool!"

His face relaxed, he turned to smile at her, almost gaily.

It was a lunatic drive, even the villages were left behind in a whirl of dust, to a hooting of the horn. But they escaped the law and were presently driving through the long, golden shadows of late afternoon, through the town. They put up the car at the garage and walked to the nearby flat in the east sixties.

"Let's not have tea sent in," she begged him. "You've a stove and a kettle, haven't you?"

"Certainly. And tea, too. What do you suppose I drink in the morning?"

"Then let's buy cream and cookies and things and make tea ourselves."

They stopped at a grocery shop on Madison avenue and later, with their arms full of packages and paper bags, went laughing into the apartment house. It was an old, remodeled dwelling, no switchboard, no lift boy, the lift was electric, one of those alarming things with buttons. Basil pressed the correct one and the case ascended with unusual dignity to the third floor. He led the way toward the back of the house, stopped, inserted a key, flung the door wide.

Joyce stepped over the sill. Her knees shook. She said to herself, "I ought not to have come—this is madness."

All the way back in the car she had thought of being closed in with him, alone as she had never been alone with him before and her heart had trembled in her side.

"Oh!"

"Jolly, isn't it?" he asked, pleased, as he closed the door and stood beside her.

"Jolly, isn't it?" Basil asked Joyce.

The Boys Are Pals Again

If you don't think time will heal everything you are as dizzy as a mine mule in a sun parlor.

We got real corroboration of this old adage yesterday when we saw a local Republican shake hands with an equally local Democrat.

The boys sparred a little. But they finally got there. They met accidentally. And at first there was a coolness that would have saved a big ice bill.

Then they looked each other over like bathing beauties in a contest.

One of 'em sniffed. The other snorted. Then one guy looked so sheepish that wool started to come out in back of his ears.

The other fellow turned pinker than a baby pillow.

Both of them hemmed and hawed while the adam's apples ran up and down their necks like silver balls in a shooting gallery.

Finally the Republican pushed out his mitt and the Democrat made a lunge at it. And in five seconds they were pumping away like sailors in a cardboard navy.

They shook hands for 15 minutes. Then they cried on rough, manly shoulders. Finally the barkeep said "Boys, this is on me." Where else could it have happened?

Those two men are friends until the next election. You've got to admit that the last campaign was tough on neighbors. It was a real old-fashioned bushwhacking contest in which no prisoners were taken.

We left those two lads passing and muzzling one another and swearing eternal armistices. We know they will fall out again eventually. But we will have civic peace for another three years or so.

They are going to let bygones be begonias.

It is fast work when you realize that election is only three weeks elapsed. But it shows that Americans are willing to forgive and forget if the other bird will do the forgiving.

Advice to Love-Worn

Each girl should heed this sage advice:
She'll rue it soon or later
If she is tempted to be nice
To any aviator.
He may be fair and keen of eye,
His chestnut hair be curly;
But still she'd better say goodby
And travel homeward early.

For if she steps within his plane
And his designs are brutal,
Remonstrances will be in vain
And protests only futile.
Once far above the beaten track
With safety far beneath her,
A girl can't very well walk back
Through insubstantial ether.

The Taxpayers' Threat

The Remedy for Extravagance Lies, Not in a Strike, But in Putting Good Men in Office.

The Building Owners and Managers' Association threatens Council with a taxpayers' strike if taxes are not reduced.

While the threat of the strike may impress Council with the seriousness of the tax situation, the folly of such a movement should be thoroughly understood. Refusing to pay taxes is sabotage, and would result in chaos.

Taxpayers are to blame for the present situation because they have put unworthy persons in authority at City Hall. They have their remedy at the polls, in the opportunity to reward those that fight sincerely for lower taxes and to defeat those that try to take care of the payroll at the expense of the public interest.

That opportunity will not be long deferred. We are to elect a mayor and five councilmen next year.

The Inquiry Blocked

But It Is Unthinkable That the Investigation of the Utilities Shall Be Abandoned.

The Pennsylvania Electric Company's statement as to why it obtained an injunction restraining the Senate Utilities Investigating Committee from subpenaing its records showed a desire to placate the public. The company said it was willing to let the records be examined at its office, but objected to their being removed and locked up for a long period.

The public will not be so ready, however, to accept excuses from those members of the Public Service Commission, past and present, who have refused to permit an examination of their financial affairs under any circumstances. If they have been upright, what have they to fear?

Their desperate resort to the courts to block the investigation has achieved temporary success. But it is unthinkable that the inquiry shall be abandoned. The obstacle raised by the injunctions will simply strengthen the people's determination to get to the bottom of the bribery charges.

This business cannot be hushed up.

The County's Children

Judge Sara M. Soffel's comment on the auditors' report to the County Commissioners concerning the maintenance of the county's juvenile wards confirms the opinion expressed in these columns that it would be unwise to proceed forthwith to build an institution for these children, as proposed by Commissioners C. M. Barr and W. D. Mansfield.

Judge Soffel, who presides in Juvenile Court, admits that the present system for placing the children in the care of families, who receive $5.60 per week for the support of each child, has not functioned perfectly. Her figures indicate, however, that conditions at present are better than they were several months ago, when the auditors made their investigation.

And conditions would be greatly improved, Judge Soffel believes, if the Juvenile Court were to be made a separate court with a permanent judge, housed in a building of its own and with an adequate staff selected solely on the basis of merit.

The Penal Affairs Committee of the Public Charities Association and the Children's Service Bureau are of the opinion that it would be a grave mistake to take the county's 1,900 dependent children out of the foster homes and commit them to institutional care.

The County Commissioners would be well advised if they heeded the recommendations of Judge Soffel and the social service agencies in dealing with this problem.

A Snobbish Practice

The Custom of Giving Low-Numbered Auto Licenses to The Rich and Powerful Is Undemocratic.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot has announced the names of 100 persons to whom automobile licenses Nos. 1 to 100 are to be issued next year.

Inasmuch as the low numbers are regarded as badges of distinction, and are intended to be so regarded, they would be issued, one might suppose, only to those who have rendered distinguished service to the state, or have done something notable to make life sweeter for the people, or by their achievements in art, literature, science and industry have brought fame to Pennsylvania.

We find in the list, however, a number of persons whose only claim to distinction is that they have inherited or married fortunes. The rich and the powerful have been favored.

The State's Finances

It Is Important, as Senator Harris Says, That There Should Be No Confusion About the Figures.

Senator Frank J. Harris told the Allied Boards of Trade that an occasion arose during the last session of the Legislature which called for a statement as to the costs and expected revenues of a certain department. The department submitted one set of figures; the State Treasurer declared they were incorrect and submitted a different set; and the Auditor General disagreed with both. Confusion resulted.

According to Senator Harris, this was by no means an isolated example. Time and again contradictory statements have been issued, with the consequence that the legislators were unable to proceed intelligently.

Senator Harris proposes as a cure that a financial board of review be created and charged with the responsibility of preparing an authoritative and official statement as to the condition of the state's finances. The board would be composed of the Auditor General, the State Treasurer, the Secretary of the Department of Revenue, the Budget Officer and the Attorney General, and would meet one month before the convening of the Legislature.

The plan is sound and sensible.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Thoughts while strolling: Helen Broderick suggests a baby owl. And a waiter at Lindy's is a double for Dennis King. Helena Rubinstein and Fannie Hurst fix their hair alike. Abe Lyman's broad shoulders. Broadway's chanticleer crow has become a peep-show bark.

One-word description of Sophie Tucker—booming. Who remembers when tablecloths came clear to the floor? No one expresses diffidence better than Brock Pemberton. That dice gambler with a ring circling his scarf, like Ralph Barton's. Frank Sullivan, a Saratoga Springs (N. Y.) boy, who made good in the city.

Martha Wilchinski is remindful of Pavlowa 25 years ago. Lady Astor leaving Scribner's. What a gal! I'm always promising to see the Keats manuscripts in the J. P. Morgan library. Ted Saucier is the town's buckitty-buckittiest press agent. I'd rather smell pine shavings than rare perfume.

Wilfred J. Funk, sedate businessman who writes girly-whirly poems. The Palace Theater seems a ghost. Police Commissioner Mulrooney, plenty freckled. Something fascinating about the middle part in Amelia Earhart's teeth. Glad to see the fake investment houses deserted.

One of my favorite people—Damon Runyon. Everytime I see a window washer working high up, I'm jelly inside. Morton Downey's still shrinking, for heaven's sake! Eddie Cantor's vivid, unresting eyes. And Pauline Lord's, suggest fish-pools of Heshbon. Say that, stewed—"fish pools of Heshbon!"

Every evening, no matter the wind, rain or snow, you will see him on the northeast corner of Broadway at Fiftieth, a gray-haired, gentle spirit, seasoned but never toughened by the Tenderloin's tempests. He arrives around 7 and remains until theaters erupt for the night. To thousands along the big apple, he is Jimmy Cunningham, expert swimmer and perhaps the most ardent baseball fan in town. Jimmy, in many ways, is one of the white way paradoxes. He neither smokes nor drinks, and his attitude toward life is utterly villagey. A merry sparrow picking up crumbs of pleasant gossip, greeting the great and side-tracking the bores without offense. Each night for 15 years, he had been there—a rock in the shifting sands.

A predominating taste in clothes is for shepherd plaids. It always has been my secret conviction, every male wardrobe should include one of these dazzlers. Yet, tailors, here and abroad, always will dampen one's ardour. Either, it is out of date or a trifle tom-tom. If you insist, you may be outfitted—but your tailor will have a wounded look.

Someone tells me, Jimmy Gleason has a similar hanker for shepherd plaids, beglamouring them as "a swell set of threads." The last of the dandies to wear one, I believe, was Robert Hilliard. Between acts the other evening, I asked Earl Benham, tailor and indefatigable first nighter, the why of the tailors' aversion of such plaids. All very simple. Workmen do not like to handle it. After an hour, they are in optical dazzle, beginning with sudden black spots and winding up in a whirligig of gleaming motes, like opening eyes under water.

There is shrewdness, also sudden chill, about those yes-smirking secretaries of high-powered tycoons. No wonder such ladies make $25,000 a year. Insisting I must talk to a nabob today, I exaggerated: "It's very important." A cool voice inquired: "Important to whom?" That'll make a sucker out of anyone.

I saw "Camille" for the first time, a few weeks ago, with Lillian Gish as the languorous Lilly. It also was my first view of Miss Gish before the footlights, other close-ups of the sonsy lady being encompassed at first nights as the companion of that accomplished aisle-sitter, George Jean Nathan. As a muffled lark, La Gish is tremendous, but it is those slumberous shafts, so heavy with doom, from her fluttering lids that make her unforgettable. I came away all gish-ish!

Frank McIntyre, Ann Arbor's Adonis, tells of two Scotsmen at a bar, trying to out-maneuver, as each spit cotton, for the drinks. Finally one remarked he had just returned from an American game hunt, toppling over a bull elephant. "I plugged him right through the yures," he added. "What's yures?" inquired his friend. And, like a shot, he replied: "So long as you're asking, I'll have Scotch and soda."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Are you alive?

And if so, how much?

A startling question? You've always taken it for granted that you were alive, that everyone you see is alive? But you're wrong.

Millions of people are alive only at special times, or on special subjects. Millions are never completely born. They eat; they sleep; they move around—but they are not really alive. They are merely animated flesh and bone. They have no part, no place, in actual Life.

ONLY A COMPARATIVELY FEW PEOPLE IN EACH GENERATION REALLY LIVE—AND NO ONE EVER SUCCEEDS IN LIVING ALL THE TIME.

What does it mean "to be alive?"

IT MEANS TO BE COMPLETELY A PART OF THE PRESENT MOMENT.

Now you may not like the present moment. It may prevent pressures and problems from which you would like to escape. It may be a very dull moment, or a very dangerous one. But that doesn't matter. THAT PRESENT MOMENT IS LIFE.

IT IS ALL THE LIFE THERE IS AT THE PRESENT TIME.

AND IF YOU PASS IT UP, YOU'VE PASSED UP LIFE.

"But how can I pass it up unless I die?" you say.

There are a million ways of passing up life beside physical death.

You can pass up real life by day dreaming; by building "castles in Spain;" by putting on some act which tickles your conceit, but has nothing whatever to do with your real self.

You escape from real life by living in memories—sweet memories; proud memories; sad memories; bitter memories. Lovely things, memories; but nine times out of ten they're damnable dope. For any memory, no matter how noble, which takes you away from the present moment, robs you of that much life.

And you can shut out real life by burrowing into the dust of your peeves and prejudices. Countless times you've watched old folks doing that; watched them literally turning their backs on life, stubbornly clinging to some absurd notion instead of accepting the truth.

You despise old people when they do that. Yet you, yourself, do that every day. Watch yourself. Check yourself. You'll be surprised.

PASSING UP LIFE; RUNNING AWAY FROM LIFE; HOW OFTEN WE DO IT! YET IF SOMEONE TOLD US THAT WE HAD TO DIE THE NEXT MINUTE, WE'D SCREAM IN TERROR.

STRANGE, HOW WE REBEL AGAINST DEATH, AND YET WE SPEND A GOOD SHARE OF OUR DAYS IN AVOIDING LIFE!

Why are so many lives wrecked and frustrated. That's why. Those lives haven't really been lived. They've been spent in dreams and memories, in hopes and remorse. Hardly ever have they known the prick and pressure of the present moment. They are like the lives of the unborn.

Have you ever seen a picture of an unborn child? It is a curious little creature—that tiny lump of flesh and cartilage which is to become a man. There it lies, waiting, curled up on itself, wrapped in its own small knot of self-consciousness.

Millions of us, though born physically, never scramble loose from that tight knot of personal consciousness.

WE ARE WAITING TO LIVE, AND WHILE WE WAIT LIFE GOES BY US.

Are YOU waiting?

Are YOU passing real life up, for the sake of a memory, for the sake of a dream?

AND, IF YOU ARE, WHO WILL BE TO BLAME IF YOUR LIFE COMES TO NOTHING?

Mr. Drinkwater Hears A Voice From the Street

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy" "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

We share in the general admiration for much of that which has been written by John Drinkwater, albeit the first act of his Lincoln play takes too many liberties with the truths of history. We prefer his poetry to his plays. And, assuredly, Americans are glad to have him visit them, and will want to make his sojourn pleasant. We wish, however, that at the complimentary dinner given him in recognition of his genius as a writer, that he had refrained from observations on the debts.

And yet we are sure that he meant nothing offensive in what he said. When he referred to newspapers seeking to stir up strife and cause international ill will that leads to war, he may easily have been referring to certain papers in London and Paris that have been offensive in their attacks on America because of the debts. The papers here opposing the transfer of the debts from the people who borrowed the money to those who loaned the money have not indulged in sword-rattling of any sort. Aside from this, Mr. Drinkwater said:

"I do know that no decent American—and America is full of decent people—thinks of the Englishman as a person who doesn't want to pay what he owes. And I know that no decent Englishman—and if I may say so, England is quite full of people—doesn't want to pay his debts."

All of which is quite true. We have said it many times in this column and in opposition to the transfer of the debts.

* * *

No Hatred Held Here for England

We have also said many times that, of all the debtor nations, England has received the smallest consideration in the settlement made some years ago. We were much more considerate of France, Italy and all the rest. But that was due, in large measure, to the very qualities in the Englishman to which Mr. Drinkwater refers—his sportsmanship and indisposition to beg off on an obligation. Stanley Baldwin asked no better terms that he was given in the negotiations; and our representatives could hardly urge upon him better terms than he asked. The result is that England today, bearing a much heavier proportionate burden than any of the other debtor nations and in a much more serious economic and financial condition, does appeal to the honest sympathy of the average American. In fact, many believe that there should be a reconsideration of the English debt with the view to putting England on a par with France in the consideration shown.

There is no hate of England over here, because of the debts or for any other reason. There is regret that she should have associated herself with others, undeserving of more consideration, in a common cause.

Brady Answers As 'Man in Street'

It was fortunate, I think, that William A. Brady, the theatrical producer, gave Mr. Drinkwater the view of the average American at this dinner. He was there to pay tribute to the literary genius of a notable Englishman; but he dissociated this tribute from any disposition to transfer the debts. Thus he said:

"I'm the man in the street, and perhaps I'm in high class company tonight, but perhaps sometimes it's good for high class company to hear the man in the street. The man in the street thinks that Europe owes us our debts. We taxed our people to raise that money and if it's not paid we'll have to pay them in our income taxes."

Reading the memoirs and letters of distinguished foreign visitors, particularly Englishmen, I have been impressed with their apparent incapacity to understand American sentiment or our American life. The reason is patent—they never meet the man in the street. They seek only "high class company," or are monopolized by it; and thus they are given an erroneous idea of what America is thinking. This has resulted at times in sad miscalculation in the determination by other nations of their American policy.

Failed to Hear Average American

In the earliest days of the republic the distinguished visitor from Europe never came into contact with the people here. They were wined and dined by the Hamiltons, the Cabots, the Rufus Kings, the Christopher Gores, the Binghams, and the Otises, and they carried away strange views. They learned from these that democracy never would be tolerated in America, that republican institutions were a rather sad experiment, that men like Jefferson and Madison were "demagogues" and "anarchists," without sense or decency, and so they reported home. Thus we find more than one English minister predicting to his government the early fall of the republic and the crushing of the democratic spirit. And on these representations policies were formed.

They were formed without any reference to the sentiment of the American people.

'Man in Street' Wants Debts Paid

Perhaps, we wonder! — Europe conceived the notion that the American people were not only ready, but eager to assume the debts of all the debtor nations from too much "high class company" here. It could not possibly have predicated any such theory from talking with the man in the street. The foreign statesman has again failed to divine America, because he has failed to take the sentiment or to learn the sentiment of the average American.

Right or wrong, Mr. Brady was the voice of America at this dinner for Mr. Drinkwater, and he rendered a service not only to the country, but to the honored guest by speaking right out like a plain, blunt man. If Mr. Drinkwater will take a survey of the opinions of the great mass of the people he will find this to be true. And, after all, wise foreign policies can only be built upon the truth.

And, seeking the reason, should Mr. Drinkwater question these men in the street, he would not find that their position on the debts is based on any hatred or dislike of the debtor nations. He would be told that America does not owe the debts; that she has been more than generous in the settlements made, with possibly the exception of England; that with a great deficit, appalling taxes, business prostration, and 11,000,000 men on the streets, America not only does not have the obligation, but does not have the capacity to pay for all the debtor nations of the world. He will be told that these nations with the possible exception of some of the smallest do have the capacity to pay; that all of them are spending enormously every year on preparations for war, and that by reducing on war expenditures in times of peace to the extent of the money due on the debts, they have the capacity to pay without increasing their own taxes.

This is what he would hear from the man in the street. It may be wrong—it sounds like common sense. And it does not sound like international hate at all.

We ended the war by entering—and bringing peace on the battlefields. We took no reparations and no territory—and thus made our contribution to lasting peace. We have reduced the debts on money loaned which came from our own borrowings—as a contribution to peace. If, on top of all this, we are told that peace can only come by the dumping of all these debts of all the nations in our lap, the average man will say that it is far too much to ask.
